PUBLIC SCHOOLS HELD EXERCISES

In Observance of Columbus Day
—Supt. Molloy Reads Original
Poem at High School

Columbus day was observed in all of the public schools in this city today and in some instances the programs were quite elaborate. A fine program was carried out at the high school at the noon hour. Owing to the large enrollment this year it was necessary to dismiss the members of the freshmen class in order to make room for the other pupils.

The exercises at the high school were opened by Supt. Hugh J. Molloy. Continued to page three

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

Harvey B. Greene Exchange
Compliments

Commissioner Lawrence Cummings and Harvey B. Greene, chairman of the park board, didn't weigh in at the ring, side and nothing was said about weight of gloves, but for a few minutes it looked as if there might be something doing.

You see, it was just like this. Harvey, at a meeting of the park board on Tuesday night, said that Larry wasn't on the level with the park department and that the municipal council had a funny little way of playing politics at the expense of that department.

The controversy had to do with an appropriation of $2000 for improvements on the South common, including a band stand and wading pool. It was stipulated in the order appropriating the money that it should be spent under the direction of Commissioner Cummings and Mr. Greene. Mr. Cummings declared that this stipulation was inserted in order to give Commissioner Cummings the political benefit of it.

Perhaps Larry wasn't sore when he heard what Harvey had said about him. The matter came up at a meeting of the municipal council yesterday and Larry indulged in a diatribe at Harvey. Larry said that Harvey had a political streak and that he could never get over his defeat of last year.

Well, to make a long story short, the municipal council, yesterday, voted to have Mr. Cummings confer with Mr. Greene relative to the $2000 and the building of the band stand on the common and a meeting was arranged for this morning at Mr. Cummings' office.

Mr. Greene Resolute
Chairman Greene arrived shortly after ten o'clock and he was escorted to the private office and Mr. Greene's first words were: "I resent the statement you made at the council meeting yesterday."

Mr. Cummings: "And I resent what you said in the newspapers."

Mr. Cummings: "My statement was true."

Mr. Cummings: "So was mine, but I am here to do business for the city and not argue this question."

Mr. Greene then went along and told how he received a letter from Supt. Kernan of the park department saying he questions who is to spend the money appropriated by the council for the construction of the wading pool and band stand. Mr. Kernan further stated he had a conference with City Solicitor Hennessey last July, the time you said I was enjoying my vacation, who said the park department was to spend the money. I got things started and sometime in August I learned you were going to spend the money. On Sept. 1, we stopped all proceedings and if you remember well, I called you up and said that thus you said you did not understand the order.

Mr. Cummings: "I signed the order for the appropriation of $2000 for the work, but did not take time to read it, and did not know that there was a supplement attached to it in reference to me spending the money."

Mr. Greene: "If the order is carried out the way it was voted, the park department is practically abolished."

Mr. Cummings then said he was waiting all the time for a conference with the members of the park board. Speaking about the council proceedings Mr. Cummings said, according to the charter the park department is under the supervision of the commissioner of public property. He said he did not believe the council would have any right to designate him to spend money for the water department, and Mr. Greene replied that it would have been right to do this as to designate him to spend money for the park department.

Not Park Department Head
Mr. Cummings said he wanted Mr. Greene to understand that he did not consider himself the head of the park department. "About a year ago," continued the commissioner, "I was unofficially notified that I was in charge of the park department. However, I did very little attention to this, for I was in reference to work and in every instance I referred to the park commissioner." He said he asked the council what the park department was

SULZER UNFIT FOR OFFICE SAYS PARKER

A Second Robert Bruce Says Herrick—
—Trial Nearing End

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 10.—In speech delivered today before the high court of impeachment, now in its last hours of existence, Governor Sulzer was alternately described as an arch-criminal hiding behind his wife's skirts and as a man that had been impeached because he had not played the political game.

Judge Alton Parker speaking for the board of managers, assailed the governor bitterly.

Every disguise has been torn from his back," Judge Parker said, "from the petticoat in which he trusted for safety to the armor of defiance with which he threatened attack and expose a political leadership to which we have found him suing for a merciful obliteration of his misdeeds and offering the bribe of submission."

Judge Herrick, a counselor of the old school, began speaking slowly and distinctly. The last word was being said for William Sulzer.

It was not Sulzer the man, nor his ethics, that Herrick defended. His was an argument intended to convince that the governor had played the game contrary to the rules of those who would have profited by controlling him and that the end fought for by the impeachment managers was not supported by the law and the evidence.

It was in order to shield his wife,

Judge Herrick said, that Sulzer had attempted to obtain political influence to stop the trial.

"There are some things," he said, "that a decent man cannot do to save himself, some things that a man of even low ethical standards cannot shield himself by. Which would you do? Run the risk of losing the empty honor of being governor or to lose the respect of every decent and honorable man in the whole United States by saving yourself at the expense of the honor and integrity of one you are bound to love and protect."

FORMER SEN. BRACKETT SAYS

SULZER COULD TEACH

STILLWELL CRIME

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 10.—The trial of William Sulzer, the impeached governor of New York, was brought up to the stage of the balloting of the judges today by former State Senator Brackett, who closed the case for the board of impeachment managers. In the course of it he asserted that former State Senator Stephen J. Stillwell, who is now serving a term in Sing Sing prison as a barterer of his legislative vote and influence, "might have sat at the feet of Gov. Sulzer, and learned crime."

"And this is the pharisee," he said, "who, pointing to the width of his phylactery in proof of his own virtue, demanded that Stillwell resign—Sulzer, who if all charges against him were true and more—could still have sat at the feet of this man and learned crime, even as Saul sat at the feet of Gamaliel and learned all the wisdom of the ancient Jews."

Attempt to Terrorize Members

From the beginning of the impeachment proceedings Mr. Brackett said there had been a persistent attempt to terrorize the members of the court and every person associated with the prosecution.

"Every means known to the demagogue has been attempted to accomplish it," he said. "Against all this, I hold up to you the simple oath you took at the beginning of the trial. Its solemn words are fresh with you and I know that in their presence the least sense of his duty, as I know, too, that this wave of clamor will never arise in influence to the level of the soles of your feet."

Mr. Brackett then launched into a discussion of the evidence supporting the charges in the fourth of the articles of impeachment, charging that Gov. Sulzer, sought to prevent testimony before the Frawley committee. The attorney held that the article was broad enough to include the alleged at-

SHORTSTOP FLETCHER FINED $50 BY NAT. COMMISSION

Demaree Opposes Bender

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Oct. 10.—Twenty thousand excited Philadelphia and some hundred anxious New Yorkers came out to Shibe park today to see the New York National league champions engage the Philadelphia Athletics in the fourth game of the world's baseball series. A victory for the Philadelphia club today would make it only necessary for them to win another game to capture the baseball honors for 1913, while the Giants would have to reel off three straight games to win the series.

Still another murky day was furnished for the sport. Dull clouds screened the sun, giving indications of showery weather, while now and then a vagrant drop of rain fell. The diamond was in fine condition and the players said it was lighting fast, but the outer meadows were sudden and slow.

Demaree Confident
The New York boys came on the field and Manager McGraw told "Stemmer" Demaree to be ready to take up the pitching burden and the former Mobile moundman replied: "Give me half the lead the Athletics gave Bush yesterday and we go back to Broadway winners tonight."

Some of the Athletics players admitted that Demaree would probably prove a puzzling proposition because of his peculiar delivery.

The crowd filled the unreserved stands long before the players came on the field, but the reserved sections filled slowly. It was not until the fielding practice had ended that the last of the seats was occupied.

There was a rift in the clouds a little after one o'clock and with the breeze coming out of the west in cupfuls there were better prospects for an uninterrupted game by rainfall.

Fletcher Fined $50

Complaint was made to the national commission today by Umpire Connolly that Fletcher used profane and obscene language to him after Shaffer had been called out at second in the ninth inning of yesterday's game.

commission also decided to permit him to play in the world's series.

The Batteries

Bender and Schang for Philadelphia, Demaree and McLean for New York. Umpires: Egan at plate; Klem on bases; Connolly left field; Ripier, right field.

Snodgrass went out to play center; Herzog replaced Herzog at third; Herzog not having made a hit in the three previous games. The lineup:

Philadelphia
E. Murphy, rf
O'Driscoll, cf
Collins, 2b
Baker, 3b
McInnis, 1b
Strunk, ss
Schang, c
Bender, p

First Inning
Snodgrass popped out to Baker. Doyle threw out Fletcher. It was a quick play. No runs, no hits, no errors.

McInnis got a Texas leaguer to center, which the limping Snodgrass could not reach. It was a lucky hit for McInnis. Strunk out, sacrificing. Demaree to Merkle. Demaree used a slow drop ball on the outside corner of the plate. Merkle dropped Barry's foul after a good run. The official scorer gave it an error. Merkle scored on Barry's long two base drive to left field. Barry claimed that Merkle interfered with him as he rounded first base, but the claim was not allowed. Schang walked after Demaree had two strikes on him. Bender flied out to Burns. Murphy flied out to Snodgrass. One run, two hits, one error.

Third Inning
Demaree flied out to Murphy. Snodgrass out, buntling. Bender to McInnis. Doyle flied out to Strunk. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Herzog went out to play third base and Shaffer went back to center field replacing Snodgrass, whose strained leg began to bother him again. Demaree took O'Driscoll's hopper and threw him out at first. Burns caught Collins' fly. Doyle took care of Baker, throwing him out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning
Fletcher offered vigorous objection when Umpire Egan called a strike on him. Then he flied out to Collins. Burns popped up a fly to Baker. Bender appeared to have more "smoke" than during his first game against the Athletics. The Indian broke his curves around the knees and then shot fast. Shaffer fanned out for the second time and angrily pitched his bat the bench.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

GAMBOA DIKE WAS BLOWN UP

Waters of Gatun Lake Flow Into Culebra Cut at Panama, Removing Last Obstruction

PANAMA, Oct. 10.—The Gamboa dike was exploded at 2 p. m. today. The electric spark that set off the blast was sent forward by President Wilson from Washington. The occurrence was in every way successful.

The Atlantic and Pacific oceans were not actually united today, when the waters of Gatun lake were allowed to flow into Culebra cut as lake and cut are at the normal surface of the water, 85 feet above the level of the sea.

The destruction of the Gamboa dike, however, removes the last obstruction to the navigation of the greater part of the canal by light draught vessels and opens up direct connection between the waters of Gatun lake, which already is practically ready to discharge vessels into the Atlantic through the Gatun locks and the Pacific division.

The first draft to enter will be the greater steam dredges whose work is to clear and deepen the channel. The presence of small craft in portions of the canal, however, does not as yet mean ocean to ocean navigation. This will first be possible when each link in the canal has sufficient depth of water and all the locks are working.

In the intermediate stages, however, navigation may be effected in local lengths of the canal and to some degree may be extended from length to length along the whole waterway.

Today's event served to demonstrate the nearness of the canal to the operating stage.

Gamboa dike was built in 1908 to hold Chagres river in check during its turbulent period and to prevent its waters from entering the nine-mile long section of Culebra cut and delaying the work of the steam shovels.

It was important solely for its location. Twenty-four miles to the north is the mighty Gatun dam, which to the uninitiated appears to be nothing more than a low mountain range stretched across a valley keeps the waters of Gatun lake from escaping to the sea. These two barriers, one of the greatest man-made dams in history, and the other a low ridge of earth and rock have kept in check the rising waters of Gatun lake. Today there is only one and the waters of the lake now extend from Pedro Miguel rock on the south to Gatun locks on the north, a distance of about 33 miles, approximately two-thirds of the canal's length. Drills were at work on the dike nearly the whole month of September and it was mined over with 1200 holes charged with dynamite. The barrier contained about 9000 cubic yards of material. Only once since it was built had it failed in its purpose. This was during the big freshet in the Chagres river of November, 1909, when the water came so close to the top that it was deemed advisable to open the sluice in the gates and fill the cut with water in order to avoid danger of heavy washing.

Since that time the overtopping of the dike was never even threatened.

passed ball. Schang scored when Merkle made a muff of Bender's grounder. Murphy popped out to Doyle. O'Driscoll singled to center. Bender got to second. McLean threw out Collins at first. Three runs; four hits; one error.

John Scullane Injured
While in the Employ of Boston and Maine

The case of Scullane vs. Boston and Maine railroad was resumed at the superior court this morning. The case is one in which the plaintiff, John S. Scullane of Ayer, sues for damages sustained while on duty as an employee of the company some time ago. The ad damnum is $10,000. The plaintiff claims he was riding on a passenger engine of the company and was stationed in a designated position on the tender. He states that while thus riding he, the plaintiff, was struck by a retaining wall and injured. He claims that the accident was due to the failure of the operator to give warning. The plaintiff is represented by Messrs. D. J. Carney and W. J. Patton, while the firm of Trull and Wier appear for the defendant.

Mr. John S. Scullane, the plaintiff, was the first called to the stand this morning and he stated that he had been employed by the Boston and Maine for about two years previous to the time of the accident. He testified that he was a night employee and never frequented the railroad yards on the engine or in the vicinity at the time he was injured. He said he was ordered by the foreman to go down to an ash pit located a short distance from the yards with the engineer and further stated that he was not acquainted with the spot to which he was sent.

Dr. Peter W. Deehan of Boston was the next witness and he told of examining the plaintiff last May, after he, the plaintiff, was removed from the hospital. He said he found that Mr. Scullane had suffered from a dislocated hip and other injuries.

A recess was then ordered while Dr. Deehan and another physician examined the plaintiff.

DEFENDS THE DEMOCRATS

Lieut. Gov. Walsh Says Reforms They Advocated Now a Fact—Big Rally at Attleboro

ATTLEBORO, Oct. 10.—A big democratic rally was held last night in Armory hall, this town. There was a large attendance. Judge Philip E. Brady presided.

The speakers were Lieut. Gov. David I. Walsh, candidate for governor; Secy. of State Frank J. Donahue, Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston, candidate for treasurer; Frank H. Pope of Leominster, candidate for auditor; Richard P. Coughlin of Taunton, candidate for registrar; Edward P. Barry, candidate for lieutenant-governor; Thomas J. Boynton, candidate for attorney-general; and the local representative candidates, John Devlin and Hugh Gaffney.

Lieut. Gov. Walsh said among other things: "As a poor man I am faced by one of the most exciting campaigns in the history of the state. I have been told that rallies, advertising and circulars to get out the vote would cost $25,000. I plead for an opportunity for poor as well as rich, and advocate forbidding all advertising and the stand that all cities and towns hire halls for rallies and that the state issue circulars setting forth candidates.

"A review of the democratic party platform of Massachusetts is proof positive of the progressive tendency of our party at a time when those who now seek the confidence of the public because of what they promise along progressive lines were opposing, in and out of legislative halls, the very principles we advocated for years."

The speaker then reviewed the demands of the democratic state platform of 1897 and 1898, and continued:

"The demand so emphatically made 16 years ago by our party for tariff reduction was finally accomplished on Oct. 3 last, when President Wilson signed the Underwood tariff bill.

"The demand for the establishment and maintenance by the government of a United States postal savings bank system has recently been recognized by the passing of the necessary legislation, and the people are now enjoying its benefits.

"The constitution of the United States was amended this present year providing for an income tax, and the measure signed by President Wilson on Oct. 3 established the method of taxing incomes.

"The election of United States senators by popular vote is now assured—the amendment to the constitution being ratified this year.

"Our emphatic protest against the usurpation of power by the speaker of the house of representatives and our wisdom was justified by the extensive changes made in the rules of that legislative body.

"The eight-hour day which we then demanded has now for several years been incorporated in our public service, and the adoption of the workmen's compensation act three years ago removed the defense of assumption of risk which for years has prevented injured employees from recovering compensation.

"The independence of Cuba has been granted, the initiative and referendum reforms have steadily grown in popular favor and have been adopted in many states of the union and also in many of our municipalities.

"As far back as 1897 we favored legislation to encourage municipalities to establish their own systems of public utilities and declared for 'the public resumption of public functions which in private hands have subordinated public service to private profit. The wisdom of this demand is now clearly seen and the extension of public control—especially to railroads and public service corporations—is constantly increasing.

"The direct primary which we demanded 16 years ago is now provided for in our own commonwealth, but there is yet legislation necessary to enlarge its scope and improve its application.

"We also advised the construction by the state of the Cape Cod canal and the time is coming when it will be seen that this advice should have been heeded.

"In view of this record of our party's foresight and progressiveness, why should any democrat hesitate in this contest to give his loyal and enthusiastic support to the democratic ticket?"

CHEER KNOWLES LIQUOR SALOONS

Returns to Boston From the Maine Woods Clad in Skins

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Wearing crude garments he had fashioned from skins of animals Joseph Knowles, a Boston artist, with a record of having lived two months in the wilds of Maine as a primitive man, having only such clothing, implements and food as nature supplied him, was accorded an ovation on returning to this city yesterday.

At least 3000 persons awaited his arrival on a Portland train at the North station at 12.15. Football tactics were necessary to force an exit from the terminal.

He was driven in an automobile to Newspaper Row, where another crowd was waiting, and then went to the common, where 5000 persons gathered in a drizzling rain and cheered him. Knowles mounted on the Parker Memorial bandstand and made a brief address.

"I want you to know," he shouted, "that I appreciate this wonderful reception. All along the line people have been very kind. Thank you again."

"Come over here and talk to us," shouted some of those at one side of the bandstand. "It would be impossible for me to shake hands with all of you," replied Knowles. "I am too tired after the train ride, but my heart is with you."

He showed himself for about 15 minutes. His face, shoulders and arms were deeply tanned. He did not look tired and appeared in perfect health. Leaving the common Knowles was driven in an automobile to Cambridge to undergo a physical examination by Dr. Sargent of the Sargent gymnasium.

Mr. Knowles attended the Cambridge Y. M. C. A.'s opening last evening and fully 5000 persons gathered to greet him. He was accompanied by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, who introduced him. He wore his bearskin covering his body and deer skin leggings. For more than half an hour Mr. Knowles related his experiences in the woods.

He described how he trapped and killed a bear, how he skinned the bear and his various methods of catching fish without hooks and lines. The bear he trapped in a lean-to, which he baited with fish. His greatest difficulty in skinning the bear was the cutting of the skin with sharp rocks. He said that for two weeks he was without any covering for his body, and the first few days it rained so hard that at times he thought he would have to give up the experiment.

His costume, he said, cost him $25, which he paid in furs for killing game out of season. He said he came out of the woods in Canada, so that he would not be taken by the Maine game warden.

At the close of Mr. Knowles' talk Dr. Sargent bared the artist's back and called attention to the tough, yet velvety, condition of his skin after its exposure to all kinds of weather. He said the same condition prevailed among the "Brownies" at South Boston. The skin was in such perfect condition that heat or cold did not affect it.

Mr. Knowles held a short informal reception and was warmly greeted. Mayor Barry was among those to congratulate him upon his successful experiment.

who read the following original poem entitled "Into the Light."

Into the western darkness, piercing primeval night, Armed with a faith abiding, bearing Fearful of naught but failure, filled with his purpose grand, Christopher, great Christ-bearer, sailed for the dreamed-of land.

Dreamer of dreams, some called him, chaser of phantoms, some, Never from that mad sailing, safe would his ships come home, But with a spirit obeying more than a king's command, Christopher, strong Christ-bearer, sailed for the western land.

Over the uncharted waters that grow never had cut before, Straight on the line that his vision had laid to the uttermost shore, Soul of a project audacious, and heart of a craven band, Christopher, brave Christ-bearer, held for the western land.

What though the seas did buffet, or when the compass failed, What though the affrighted sailors from undefined terrors quailed, On through the light and the darkness, leading with master hand, Christopher, bold Christ-bearer, swept toward the western land.

Set as the stars in their courses, changed as changing ideas, Easing the hearts of the fearful, unmindful of scorn that derides, Unmoved by all timid entreaty, untethered by rebellious demand, Christopher, firm Christ-bearer, drew near the western land.

Seventy suns had arisen, and seventy suns gone down, And fear and doubt and misgiving, and cowardly mutiny's frown, Have vanished, for, lo! at the dawning their eyes catch the virgin strand, And Christopher, glad Christ-bearer, steps forth on the western land.

Won from the western darkness, won from primeval night, Out of the womb of the ages, into the living light, Planting the cross of redemption, the banner of Spain unfurled, Christopher, son of the morning, gave man the western world.

FOURTH GAME OF SERIES

Battle With Athletics at Philadelphia Today

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—With one team determined to even up the series and the other anxious to improve the advantage won yesterday the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics were prepared today to battle their hardest for the fourth game in the world series. Victory for the American league champions would mean that they would have only one more game to win to carry off the blue ribbon of the ball field while a defeat for the champions of the National league make it quite doubtful if they could recover sufficiently to win three straight and baseball fame.

The Real Dangers of Rheumatism

Cure It as Promptly
as Possible

Few rheumatic sufferers realize that their pains and aches are Nature's warning of more serious disease which is creeping upon them. The occasional rheumatic victim should realize that he has an excess of uric acid in his system and that that is only another name for the beginnings of kidney disease which is likely to develop into diabetes or Bright's Disease. The way to avoid this danger is to start driving out the uric acid at once. Gyarcol drives out uric acid in the natural way by stimulating the kidneys the better to perform their work, and it does this in an easy gentle way. Get it in liquid or tablet form at any drug-gists. 50 cents and $1.00.

the veteran Tetreau has measurably increased the optimism of the Athletic adherents as to the final result of the series.

Praises For Bush

Along the line of waiting fans at the grounds today could be heard praises of Leslie Bush and predictions that more of Mack's young pitchers would give a good account of themselves before the series ended.

Many of the Athletic adherents believed that Shawkey would be the pitching choice of the White Elephants manager and figured that he would be as putting to the Giant batters as was Bush yesterday. Bender, however, was anxious to go in and there was a strong possibility that his wish might be gratified.

The Athletics have now faced the pitching of Marquard, Crandall, Mathewson and Tetreau, three of whom are the pick of New York's twirling staff, while the Giants have battled against Bender, Plank and Bush.

Not Worrying About Pitchers

Manager Mack has Shawkey and Brown in reserve while Manager McGraw has Demaree, but neither manager has given any intimation who would be used. Mack said he was not worrying a bit about pitchers.

The result of yesterday's game bore out my claim that we had young pitchers who could be compared to any of the Giants' staff," said the Athletic manager. "Of course a club that is equipped with hitters does not have to depend so much on pitching to win. Mathewson twirled a wonderful game against us but I do not think one pitcher can win a world's series."

Despite the seeming advantage held by Philadelphia in the two victories to one for the Giants, Manager McGraw appeared at all dismayed and declared his men had just begun to fight.

Marquard Anxious

It is believed by many here that McGraw would depend on "Steamer" Demaree to lead his team to victory, although Marquard, who was taken out of the game after pitching five innings in the opening contest in New York, was said to be anxious to redeem himself and may be given an opportunity.

As a result of the overcrowding of the roofs of residences bordering Shibe park on two sides while Wednesday's game was on, the chief of the bureau of building inspection served notice on the property owners warning them that such crowding was dangerous and that the owners would be held strictly responsible for any accident that might occur.

For the first game of the series one householder said that he had made more than $100 by selling seats on his roof.

Fights For Positions

There were lively times around Shibe park in the early morning hours. More than 1000 fans were in line at 7 o'clock. In the shift of the night police detail to the day squads the police for a time lost control and there were free fights for positions in the lines. Strong men pulled weaker ones out of their places; boxes and boards were hurled about and there was a general mixing up before order was restored. At 8:20 o'clock the police estimated that seven thousand persons were waiting for the gates to open despite threatening weather.

Shibe park is situated in the residential part of the city and many complaints were made to the police of the snapping up of bread, milk, newspapers and doormats from the front doorsteps of the householders. The police picked up more than two dozen of the mats they found in the possession of the waiting fans but no arrests were made as the authorities could not prove who stole them. Two fruit stands on street corners near the grounds were broken open during the night and ransacked.

400 Policemen on Duty

Four hundred policemen who were detailed for the game were ordered out at 5 a. m., two hours earlier than usual.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Found Near Track

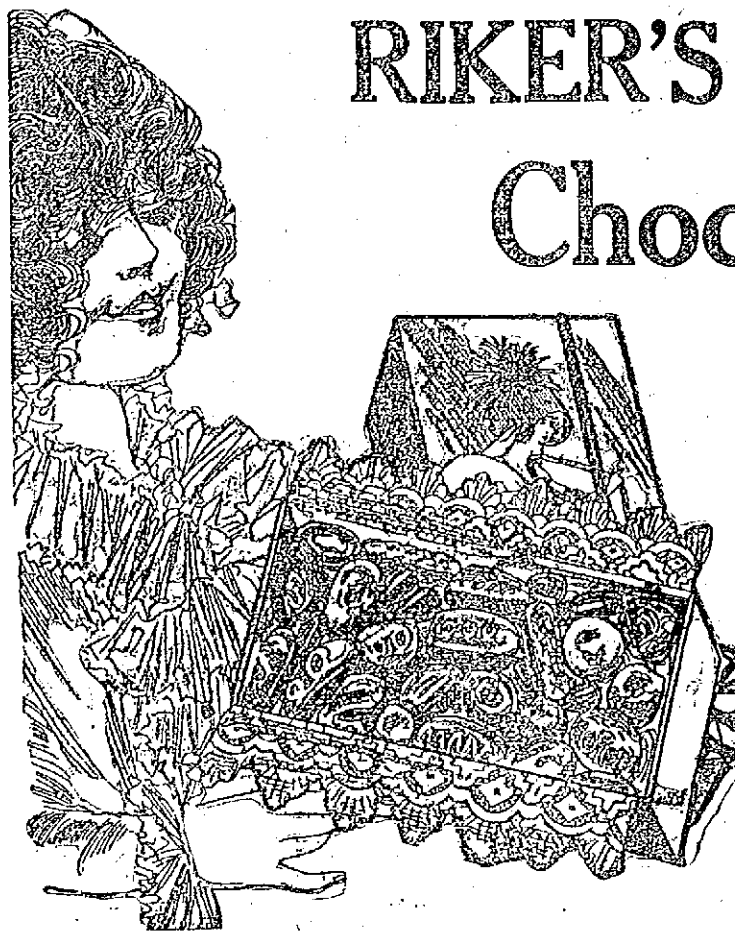

MILFORD, Conn., Oct. 10.—Beside the railroad tracks at Indian river today was found the body of Edward Avery, aged 27, of Bristol, Conn. Last night as the New York express for New Haven, pulled out of here two men tried to board it. Each got a hold on a Pullman car platform rail but the vestibule door was closed and the platform down. One man dropped off quickly but the other clung as the train was lost to view. This man retained his grip on the rail for nearly a mile and then was flung wide of the track and killed. Effects from the clothing pockets, including considerable money were found scattered along the tracks.

Just twice a year we have these sales, each year endeavoring to surpass the results of the previous one. This sale will be no exception to the rule. One year ago, at the October sale, we disposed of 18,004 boxes at our various stores—over nine tons in one day. We created many new customers on that day, and the increasing sales on every succeeding Saturday have proven to us that these chocolates have met with the approval of the public.

We sell these Chocolates only on Saturdays.

We use them as sort of a magnet to draw attention to our candy counters and our stores. This year we are prepared for a greater sale than last. We expect to sell twelve tons. We have this amount ready in our stores made expressly for this sale, every box fresh from manufacturer.

They are as pure as Chocolates can be made and consist of a choice assortment of desirable kinds.

They are in every way equal to any of the extensively advertised 40c Chocolates.

Take home a pound on our recommendation. If you are not pleased with them we will buy it back from you at full price

Woman Lies Motionless
Identity Unknown

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Hearing and understanding all that is said to her, in the opinion of physicians, but unable to utter a sound or make a sign in response, an unknown woman lies motionless in the city hospital. Since she was brought there a week ago after being stricken while boarding a street car the physicians have made repeated attempts to have her indicate to them her identity or residence. Several times they have named over all the cities and towns in the state but not once has she moved a muscle in reply although the physicians believe she understood what they wanted to learn. Her illness is diagnosed as cerebral hemorrhage, causing paralysis of the body but leaving the brain unaffected.

WOMAN WINS SUIT FOR DIVORCE — Husband Made Her Eat 'em

PLYMOUTH, Oct. 10.—Even a Massachusetts woman may rebel if baked beans are too persistently forced upon her. Mrs. Carolyn Langdon was ways of interest to women and very

When she protested that this unvaried diet had caused valvular leaks of the heart, her husband replied: "Beans are good for me and I guess they're good enough for you."

The next is "The Man in the Moon," who has some excellent hits and some hard knocks upon local affairs, local abuses with special reference to the great number of airplanes ready to serve the city. "The Spellbinder" has something pertinent to say about the state campaign, the Gardner "wallop" and a possible "wallop" from Dan Cosgrove later on, together with an explanation of how Representative Butler was treacherously defeated in his fight against Mr. Killpatrick and why the latter should not be elected. # My Eighteenth Store

On Thursday of last week I opened my eighteenth store in Philadelphia, one of the most expensive pieces of property in the city of Philadelphia. I will occupy two floors, which will be a picture palace of mahogany, plate glass and mirrors, a proper setting for the finest and most complete line of woollens in the world.

THIS NEW ACQUISITION will mean that I will be in the style centre of the country. You must know that all styles start in Philadelphia and New York six months before you get them here, and the ready-made clothiers there are laughing at my nerve, coming to their town to sell custom clothing, but believe me, they knew I was there last Saturday. I TOOK ORDERS FOR 375 SUITS and OVERCOATS, and I won't sit around waiting until a customer comes in, as I intend to go out into the highways and byways to prove values, and when they buy of me they will get nothing but pure wool or worsted fabrics, and these values which are on my counters here in Lowell, are what I am showing in Philadelphia.

But what has that to do with you, MR. READER, you might ask, and in reply I say: "This is the eighteenth reason why you should trade with me here in Lowell; 75 per cent. of the woolen mills of the country are in New England, within 40 miles of city hall, Lowell."

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY I AM LIQUIDATING, and at liquidation prices I give you worsteds. WHERE CAN YOU BUY THE SHERRIFF MILL WORSTEDS AT MY PRICES? High grade, heavyweight, dark, all wool, double and twisted worsted suitings from Sherriff Mills of Fitchburg. Not a few pieces, but one hundred different styles. Why, the name guarantees quality.

I HAVE THE ROCKVILLE OVERCOATINGS—I have them in all their styles and quality; plaid backs, polo cloth, serges, blues, fancy kersays and black meltons. I have more of them than any concern in the city; more than any woolen dealer. I want you to see them before you buy elsewhere. I am looking for a sensation on them, and I deserve the credit for being able to turn them out at popular prices.

MR. MATHEW'S GOOD WORK

REV. E. J. CORNELL, D. D. I.

MICHAEL J. DOYLE,
President of M. T. I.

Discussed at Observance of 123d Anniversary of His Birth — The M. T. I. Honors His Memory

The formal observance of the 123d anniversary of the birth of the late Mr. Mathew, the apostle of temperance, was held last evening at the home of the M. T. I. in the city of Lowell. The occasion was a most interesting and profitable one, and was attended by a large number of the members of the society and their friends. The program of the evening was most excellent, and was well received by all present. The address of the evening was given by Rev. E. J. Cornell, D. D. I., who spoke of the life and work of the late Mr. Mathew, and of the progress of the temperance cause in the city of Lowell. His address was most interesting and profitable, and was well received by all present. The evening was most profitable and interesting, and was well received by all present.

FOR BED SORES
USE COMFORT POWDER.

Caroline Adams, a trained nurse of New York City, says Comfort Powder is a certain preventive and cure for bed sores. I have used it in my practice for many years. It certainly keeps the skin comfortable, cures prickly heat, chafing and other skin eruptions. There is nothing equal to Comfort Powder for all skin eruptions. Be sure you get the genuine with signature of B. C. Spence on box.

When the kidneys are clogged up and inactive, nature has a way of warning you. Backache is one of the first symptoms. You may also be troubled with disagreeable, burning bladder disorders; have attacks of lumbago or rheumatism; become nervous, tired and feel all worn out; purpish swellings show under the eyes or in the feet and ankles; and many other symptoms are noticed. If they are neglected, dropy, diabetes or Bright's Disease, which so often prove fatal, may result.

The Demon Rum is the most dreaded enemy of domestic happiness, as you all know, but no one knows better its terrible results than the parish priest who is forced constantly to come in contact with its victims, and who sees so much suffering caused by it every day. It is a devil which sooner or later, for a time at least, blots out and destroys all that is noble in man, the most treasured gifts of God, and makes him a beast.

As I glance about me and see this great and intelligent gathering of Mathew members and their guests, I wonder if possibly anyone could now ask "Will the Mathews perish?" Will they go out of existence? And the answer is most emphatically no. It is a long time since the Mathews have seen a brighter day than this, and I believe and hope that it will constitute a turning point in the existence of the society.

You must realize that nothing can be done without cooperation, without each of you abandoning individual prejudices and prizes and working in conjunction for the one great object of the society, that of temperance. Your

BACKACHE A WARNING YOU SHOULD HEED

It is One of Nature's First Signs of Kidney Troubles, if Neglected Serious Diseases May Follow

When the kidneys are clogged up and inactive, nature has a way of warning you. Backache is one of the first symptoms. You may also be troubled with disagreeable, burning bladder disorders; have attacks of lumbago or rheumatism; become nervous, tired and feel all worn out; purpish swellings show under the eyes or in the feet and ankles; and many other symptoms are noticed. If they are neglected, dropy, diabetes or Bright's Disease, which so often prove fatal, may result.

It is not only dangerous, but needless for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, when a little Croxone will quickly and surely end all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for all such troubles than Croxone, because it reaches the cause. It works right into the kidneys through the blood and cleanses out the clogged up pores; neutralizes acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains; and makes the kidneys filter and sift the poison out of the blood and drive it from the system. You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to end the worst backache, relieve rheumatic pains, or overcome urinary disorders.

watchword should be unity and harmony and you should pull together, realizing the great work you can do among the young men of the city. In spite of all else, remember that the great object of the society is to promote the cause of temperance. It is for you to do something practical that will benefit people and this impulse of the society will make you true disciples of Father Mathew and will be historic in its results.

Mr. Jas. Meally then gave vocal selections with such delight to those present that he was forced to respond to encores. Mr. Richard Noonan presided at the piano and assisted materially in the excellent musical program.

The next speaker to be introduced was His Honor Mayor James E. O'Donnell and his address was as follows:

Mayor O'Donnell's Address
Members of the Mathew Temperance Institute:

It is indeed with feelings of pride and pleasure I come here to be among you on this occasion of the 123d anniversary of the birth of Father Mathew, the great apostle of temperance. It is fitting that you should do him honor, and it is just as fitting that as mayor of the city of Lowell I should be here to congratulate you on the splendid ideal to which you are endeavoring to attain. In my official capacity I may not come in touch directly with the work which you and kindred societies are doing because in the routine duties of my office I meet only the practical, the unromantic, the matter of fact. But I am deeply conscious of the fact that underneath the prosaic run of daily events, societies such as the Mathew Temperance Institute are doing a wonderful work—a work that cannot be measured by statistics or scientific weighing, but a work that is transcending the souls of men. There are many who are not heroic enough to self-sacrifice enough to belong to your society, but no man worthy of the name fails to honor and respect you and your purpose in his heart of hearts.

It is superfluous for me to speak to you of the great patriot and preacher whose anniversary we celebrate tonight. Every loyal Mathewian knows the leading facts of his life and work, and you are all loyal Mathews. You are aware how in the comparative obscurity of a simple word, the experience he dreamed his great dream of a world-wide temperance movement which carried his name into every part of the globe and made the world stop and listen. You all remember how from the slender confines of a small parish his personal magnetism and saintly sincerity spread and drew millions to fight him until he kindled a fire of righteousness, the flames of which are not quenched after the passing of a century. The name and work of Father Mathew are also a powerful force today. They live, as his disciples were lofty and his work sincere. The greatest proof of his power lies in the fact that you are here tonight, faithful to his memory and pledged to carry on by your noble example the work he founded so strongly and securely.

In these days we are only too familiar with so-called apostles who come among us to kindle fires that often are of destruction. We hear on all sides the misleading appeals of the agitator who would destroy the traditional and social security of the nation. When he said his famous, "Our ears are offended by appeals to visit to America he was received as a passion and prejudice instead of a great benefactor of humanity and in son. But we must not be misled by our city library his name is now listed among those of the world's greatest men. They live their day but it is a brief one. They quickly pass the shallow pretence that hides their motives and reveal them in their true character. Contrast with them an apostle such as Father Mathew, whose efforts were nobly unselfish. At the beginning of his mission he was met by distrust and doubt and strong opposition. His sincerity and his noble efforts were sometimes questioned. But they have stood the test of time and their name of Lowell? could be shining brighter with the passage of time in no nobler task tonight than urging you to persevere in the good work in which you are engaged. Appreciate your cordial invitation to be here with you, and I wish you the greatest possible success and prosperity, now and always.

Rev. E. J. Cornell, D. D. I.
Rev. Edmund J. Cornell, D. D. I. was then introduced by the townmaster and he spoke on the life and work of Father Mathew, his words being highly interesting and inspiring. In part he said: "There are two kinds of courage: physical courage by which a man is enabled to face danger without flinch; and there is moral courage, urging you to persevere in the good work in which you are engaged. Appreciate your cordial invitation to be here with you, and I wish you the greatest possible success and prosperity, now and always."

FATHER MATHEW'S DAY

spired by which men are empowered to strive for one moral object in spite of the opposition, criticism and scorn which is heaped upon them from all sides. Father Mathew was a man of the greatest moral courage. He was able, as one distinguished man said, to stand before the devil and tell him that he was the devil. In this instance, the devil was rum, for it is truly a devil as all will admit. Father Mathew rose up and took his stand against this demon, as history tells us and as our presence here manifests, and in doing so he exhibited the qualities of "the morally brave man."

Rev. Theobald Mathew received his first call to the cause of temperance in the year 1823. He was not, as is thought, the originator of the plan which he followed. The true originator of the temperance movement was a Quaker, William Martin, a great temperance advocate. He started a society, but was unable to reach the majority of the people. So on one occasion he appealed to Fr. Mathew for aid in this matter and the latter finally impressed upon a call for a public meeting, this being attended by the Quaker and his band of followers. Together with William Martin, he went through Cork, making speeches, and in five months he had a society of 120,000 members. He went to all cities and towns, with banners, parades, etc., organized the people into a great temperance society. Everywhere his work was successful, not only the same, but increasing success. Even orangemen turned out and displaying their banners, marched in the parades organized by Fr. Mathew and joined his society. After having covered practically every inch of Irish soil, he was called across the sea and spoke and organized the people in Glasgow, London, Liverpool and other places with not only the same, but increasing success. Even the enemies of his faith praised the work which he was doing for temperance. One man said that he would place Father Mathew, the apostle of temperance, immediately after the 12 apostles of Christ. This latter was the statement of a Protestant divine.

More than 7,000,000, it is estimated.

HUGH J. MOLLOY,

signed the roster of Father Mathew's society at the time when he left these shores. The society comprised 500,000 members here. It is now for us who claim his name to keep up the work which he began. We must be enthusiastic with the same spirit and must work in union and with earnestness. If we accomplish this, then we shall be true and worthy successors of Fr. Mathew and perpetuate his name; we shall accomplish good for men of the city and of the community at large.

Commissioner James E. Donnelly delighted the gathering with several of his inimitable Scotch songs after which Congressman John Jacob Rogers was introduced. His subject was "Father Mathew in Washington." In part he said:

John Jacob Rogers

"Mr. Chairman, The toast to which I have been called upon to respond is so vast in its dimensions, so far beyond my feeble powers even to begin to fathom, that I shall ask your indulgence this evening in discussing a topic perhaps not too remotely suggested by the toast itself."

"You all well know that that great man for whom your society is named made a journey from his native land to this country in the year 1842, remaining on our shores for some 16 months. Perhaps not all of you know of the signal honors which were accorded him while he was in Washington during December of the year 1842. My subject then, for the few moments which are accorded me, is 'Father Mathew in Washington.'"

"In order that we may understand the nature of his reception in Washington it will be necessary to recall what befell him in Boston when he came shortly after his arrival in America on July 2, 1842. At that time, as you all will recall, the country was in the throes of the slavery problem. Although the Civil war was still 12 years distant on the horizon the murmurings had for a considerable time been growing louder and louder and many keen observers even at this time foresaw that strife would be the inevitable result. The minds of men, the columns of newspapers were filled with the pros and cons of this great question."

"In Boston, the abolitionists, led by William Lloyd Garrison and others were even now at fever heat in their zeal for the cause of the abolition of slavery. Shortly after Father Mathew's arrival in Boston when he received a letter of invitation to be present at a meeting to celebrate 'The anniversary of the most thrilling event of the 12th century, the abolition of slavery in the West Indies.' In this letter of invitation he was reminded of the fact that, in 1842, he with thousands of others had started an address from the people of Ireland to their countrymen in America, in which the latter were called upon to treat the colored people as their equals, to hate slavery, and to cling to the abolitionists. It was also asked therein to improve every suitable opportunity while he remained in the country to bear a clear and unequivocal testimony, both in public and private, against the enslavement of any person of the human family."

"On the 27th of July, the day after he received this letter, William Lloyd Garrison waited upon him in the Adams house in Boston in the endeavor to secure his acceptance of the invitation. You will at once observe the extreme embarrassment of the position in which Fr. Mathew was thus put. His mission to this country was of contran, to be moved by the horrors of slavery in the United States, and yet with the country almost evenly divided upon this great question it was obvious that he would fail in the mission to which he had consecrated his life if he took the radical anti-slavery position to which his humane instincts would naturally have led him. He therefore replied to Mr. Garrison somewhat as follows:

"I have as much as I can do to save men from the slavery of intemperance, without attempting to overthrow any other kind of slavery. Besides, it would not be proper for me to commit myself on a question like this under present circumstances. I am a Catholic priest; but, being here to promote the cause of temperance, I should not be justified in turning aside from my mission, for the purpose of subverting the cause of Catholicism."

"I think we shall all admit that this reply was sane and indeed inevitable; yet the abolitionists' society rose as one man to denounce Father Mathew's attitude. Garrison, for example, said, in bitterness of heart, in reference to this interview: 'Not a syllable fell from his lips, expressive of pleasure that the American slave has his faithful and devoted advocates—or of joy in the emancipation of 800,000 bondmen in the British Isles. It is with great sorrow of heart that I lay these facts before America, Ireland and the world.'

"The attitude of the abolitionists continually rose up to plague Father Mathew in his mission in this country but there was also a Charybdis to this Scylla. The anti-slavery memorial which I have already referred to as having been signed by Father Mathew in 1842 was incessantly referred to by the pro-slavery advocates of the south; and as of course Father Mathew did not take any position in favor of slavery, he was throughout his journey in this country subjected to the abuse both of the radical pro-slavery and radical anti-slavery parties.

"With this preliminary explanation I can perhaps more intelligently describe the reception accorded to Father Mathew in Washington, where he arrived on December 18, 1842. On the following day, when the house of representatives assembled at noon, Representative Baker of Illinois obtained recognition and said that he held in his hand a resolution which he desired to offer and which, he was sure, would receive the unanimous consent of the house of representatives. The resolution was: Resolved, that the Reverend Father Mathew be respectfully invited to take a seat upon the floor of this house."

"The question on the resolution was taken and was decided in the affirmative, apparently without a dissenting vote. Then in the words of the Congressional Globe, which was the official reporter for this, the 31st congress of the United States, 'The door-keeper of the late house of representatives, Robert E. Horner, Esq., was directed to see the order of the house executed. Thereupon, the Rev. Theobald Mathew was conducted to a seat within the bar. The honor thus accorded was the highest which could be conferred by the house of representatives upon the subject of another country."

"A similar resolution was introduced into the senate by Senator Walker, of Wisconsin, the same day, but on motion of Senator Clemens of Alabama, went over for further consideration until the following day. The debate on the senate on this resolution when it came up for action on Dec. 20, is one of the most noteworthy in the preliminary passages of the great movement which resulted in the war of secession. The debate takes up 23 long columns in the Congressional Globe; it was participated in by 21 senators out of 54 who were then members of the body. As I shall explain in a moment, from the very outset the debate unfortunately assumed a pro- or anti-slavery tone, and the real merits of the case

THE YOM KIPPUR

Greatest of All Jewish Feasts Will Open at Sundown Today

With the setting of the sun tonight, the synagogue in Lowell will be packed with hundreds of Hebrews, who will gather in with prayer and all the impressive ceremonies of the Hebrew ritual, the Yom Kippur, or Day of Atonement.

Yom Kippur, the holiest day of the Jew in the entire religious calendar, will last until the stars appear tomorrow evening, when the blast of the "shofar" or the trumpet in the synagogues and all the places of worship will announce the end of the Day of Atonement—the most ancient of all Jewish festivals. During the entire 24 hours that the celebration lasts the rigidly observant of the Hebrews eat nothing, nor does a single drop of water pass his lips. The reform Hebrew does not hold tenaciously to some of the old traditions to which the more orthodox cling, though the reform Hebrew observes the day.

Many Americanized young men and women and even boys and girls fast on this great and terrible Day of Judgment. It is needless to say that they do it willingly and cheerfully. At night all are happy in the thought that they have been purified of all sin and have received a verdict of not guilty.

The observance begins tonight in the synagogues with the evening service called "Kol Nidre," from its opening which deals with the vow of the individual and his conscience. Throughout the following day in the orthodox synagogues a continual service is held which, towards the middle of the afternoon, becomes most impressive by a solemn commemorative service for the dead.

The "shofar" or ram's horn is blown once after the sun has gone beyond the horizon, and then the devout worshippers turn homeward.

ABLE WHEAT AND FLOUR

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 10.—Fire that destroyed the six-story plant of the Southwest Milling Co. in Kansas City, Kas., early today and burned 25,000 bushels of wheat and 15,000 barrels of flour caused a loss estimated by C. M. Hardenburgh, manager of the mill, at $600,000. Ten men who were at work on the top floor when the fire started and who at first were believed to have perished, were found to have left the building safely. The cause of the fire is unknown.

STAY AND STARVE

Militant "Hunger Striker" in London Will Not be Released

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The belief of the militant incendiaries that under the "cat and mouse" act they were assured of speedy release from prison by "hunger striking" and could then repeat their offense, received a rude shock yesterday by the announcement of the home secretary that Miss May Richardson, who has been in prison since Oct. 4, on the charge of arson and who has been refusing food since her arrest, would not be given her freedom. The prison authorities have been instructed to resort to forcible feeding, if necessary to prevent the incendiaries from starving themselves to death.

The home secretary says that the act will continue to be applied as heretofore, to minor suffrage offenders whose crimes do not include acts of serious violence.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—The death by gas poisoning of C. H. Byron, an aged resident in a Berkeley street lodging house, was the subject of police investigation today. ## AUTO HITS CAR

Automobile and Electric in Collision—E. J. Frost Injured

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Swerving his automobile from the road to the car tracks, in order to avoid certain collision with another machine, Edward J. Frost, general manager of the William Filene's Sons' company's store, received injuries last evening, on Commonwealth avenue, Chestnut Hill, when an inbound Boston Elevated car crashed into his auto, pinning him beneath it, and hurling his chauffeur, the only other occupant, 20 feet through the air to the opposite road bed.

At the Frost home, 7 Williston road, Auburndale, last night, it was stated that his injuries were not serious, and that he suffered mostly from the shock and shaking up. Persons on the scene of the accident, however, feared that he had been badly injured. The chauffeur, Peter J. Rooney, who was on the seat beside the owner, did not require medical assistance.

The accident happened just after 6 o'clock while Mr. Frost was driving his car toward the junction of Chestnut Hill and Commonwealth avenues. Suddenly out of the gloom a big touring car, traveling at terrific speed, approached on the wrong side of the roadway. Quick action was imperative, and Mr. Frost, failing to note the approaching electric car, turned quickly on the track. The motorist had no time to stop the car and crashed into the Frost machine, half overturning it and pinning the driver beneath. At the same moment the other touring car whizzed past and vanished into the night.

The car crew, assisted by volunteers from the passengers, righted the overturned machine and freed the driver. He was conscious, though visibly in pain. Physicians were summoned, and Mr. Frost was taken to his home in another automobile. The accident happened so quickly that no one was able to identify the machine which had caused it.

The fender and front vestibule of the electric car were damaged, but none of the passengers suffered from the crash. The front of the automobile was not badly damaged.

Who Was Thrown from Horse at Madrid

MADRID, Oct. 10.—On the way back from the royal hunting lodge, yesterday, where President Poincaré of France and King Alfonso had lunch, the automobiles frightened the horse of a civil guard and the driver was thrown against a post.

King Alfonso, who was driving, his own car, witnessed the accident. He jumped out, picked the man up and skilfully bandaged his head and then placed him in an automobile and sent him to a hospital. All this was done so quickly that President Poincaré, who was in a car ahead of the king's, was unaware of the accident, but on learning the details he sent a gold medal back to the guard.

FIREPROOF ROOF

Lowell Will Have First of its Kind in New England on Church

Work on the fire-proof roof of St. Joan Baptiste church in Merrimack street is progressing rapidly and those in charge hope to complete the job in a couple of months. Their work would be finished before that time, so they say, but they are being delayed some by the men who are doing the stone work on the rear part of the church.

It is indeed very interesting to watch the crew of men laboring 120 feet from the ground, stationed on small stagings, which is very dangerous, but nevertheless although this work has been conducted for the past two months, an accident is still to occur.

The roof is constructed of a steel layer covered with cement, and that is the process that is being done. This particular work is being done by the W. P. Kearns Co. of Boston and 22 men are constantly perched on the roof, laying the cement in the coffers. John Cooke of Boston has charge of the work, and he says his company is very precautions for accidents and in order to avoid them, he had small stagings constructed and upon them two men work at one time. There is a large staging extending the whole length of the church on the edge of the roof, and this is encircled by a strong railing, so if one should lose his balance from the top of the roof, his fall would be checked by this railing and staging.

The roof of the church, according to an engineer, is exactly the same height as the Sun building, owing to the fact that the steeple is built on an incline. A hoister was erected on the north side of the church and this is run by steam power, and from the hoister runs a large staging to the centre of the roof, which by the way has a pitch of 45 degrees.

When the cement work is finished a slate covering will be put on, and the centre of the roof will be ornamented by a copper railing four feet in height. Work on the interior of the edifice is also progressing. Both galleries have been taken down and two were constructed in the rear, one for the congregation and the other for the organ. The steel work on these galleries is finished and as soon as the interior of the temple is cleared of its debris and the roof finished, the wood work will be started.

It will be a year before the church is ready for occupancy and then Lowell will have the first church with a fire-proof roof in New England. Fire traps will not be in evidence in the church for the walls of brick will be covered with plaster, and wood will be utilized for the floors and pews only. An ell is being added to the rear of the church which will afford more floor space for the sanctuary choir and sacristy. Architect Henry L. Bourke has full charge of the work, while the woodwork is under the direction of Contractor William Drapeau.

The Knights of Columbus are particularly anxious to make Monday a red letter day in the history of Manchester and they have made detailed arrangements not only for their members but for their friends and the public generally to be present at the great parade and the host of other attractions which will make Monday memorable to all who attend. The neighboring city is leaving nothing undone to arrange a program that will satisfy the most exacting. ## ITCHED FOR 20 YEARS, RESINOL CURED IN 10 DAYS

Baltimore, Md., July 10, 1913.—"About twenty years ago both my legs began to itch from ankle to knee. Little pimples came out that looked very much like heat. The itching and burning was something terrible. I would start to scratch and could not stop. I would even scratch through the skin and that of course would leave a sore which I was compelled to bandage. I tried several prescriptions and treatments, but received not a particle of benefit—no more than if the treatments were cold water. I then began to have very little faith in anything and of course could do nothing but scratch, away. After suffering constantly for twenty years, a friend recommended Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. From the very first application, I found relief, and was entirely cured in ten days. The itching and stinging sensations have ceased and my skin is smooth as a child's." (Signed) Charles Warner, 1123 N. Stricker St.

Physicians have prescribed Resinol for eighteen years and every druggist in the country sells Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. For free trial, write to Dept. 14-B, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 10.—The cutting of the locust tree for all purposes, including thinning operations and for private commercial use, should be done between the first of October and the last of March. To destroy the locust borer before they enter the wood, the removal of the bark from all desirable portions of the trunks of the trees (felled) is important and necessary. Tops and thinlings should be burned.

The yellow striped, long horned, winged beetle that produces the devastating borer is found from August to October on trees and the flowers of the goldenrod. During this period, eggs are deposited in the crevices of the bark of growing trees and the young borers, after being hatched, pass the winter there and in the spring bore through the bark to the heart of the tree.

The injury to the trees consists of wounds in the bark and sapwood, which if sufficiently severe and repeated year after year, result in a worthless growth or the death of the tree.

The local council of the Knights of Columbus hold an overflow meeting last evening in their new club rooms on Anne street and after the transaction of the usual routine business, the rest of the time was given over to making arrangements for attending the Manchester celebration next Monday. It was decided that the members of all the local divisions meet in the evening rooms in the morning, and march in a body to St. Peter's church where services are to be held at 9 a. m. After the church services the members will march back to the hall where a short social session will be held. It was voted that all members with the exception of the fourth degree shall wear dark clothes, derby hats, grey ties and grey gloves. The fourth degree will wear their formal regalia.

The Knights are particularly anxious that the general public should know that all people are at liberty to avail of the special trains provided for the occasion and of the reduced rates. The outward train will leave the northern depot at 12:15 p. m. immediately following the passing of the 11:30 train from Boston, and there will also be a special train for the return trip which will leave Manchester at 6 p. m. These trains will be taken by the Knights accompanied by a band, and they request that those wishing to seize the opportunity to attend the splendid celebration should plan to avail of this special service also as it will be far more convenient for all concerned. Tickets are $1.05 for the round trip and are now on sale at the following places: Goodale's drug store, Central street, D. S. O'Brien clothing Co., Merrimack street, Carter and Sherburne's, Merrimack square, and James Brown's pharmacy, Broadway.

Record Breaking Crowd...

The local Knights have notified those in Manchester in charge of arrangements to be ready for a record breaking crowd from here and to see to it that the hotels, restaurants, etc., will be prepared for the great influx of visitors. Plans will also be made by the Lowell delegation to provide special amusement features for those from this city and they, therefore, wish that as far as possible our people should keep together when in Manchester. Any one in doubt about any part of the arrangements or wishing to seek further information will receive same by telephoning 1112, the new home of the Knights of Columbus on Anne street.

brother affected. The numerous wormholes in the wood also reduce its commercial value.

The prevalence of the insects in injurious numbers is indicated at this season of the year by the frequency of the adults on the goldenrod flowers and on the trees. So extensive has the damage of this pest been in some sections of the eastern states and the middle west that it is now considered unprofitable to grow the tree for either shade or timber. One important reason for holding this borer in check is to prevent its extension into the far west and other sections which are at present free from it.

How to Kill Grubs

Experiments have demonstrated that the grubs may be killed by spraying the trees and branches with a strong solution of kerosene emulsion. This should be done not earlier than November and not later than March because this spraying when the trees are in leaf will destroy the foliage and check growth.

This emulsion may be prepared as follows: Kerosene emulsion (soap formula): Kerosene, 2 gallons; whale-oil soap (or 1 quart of soft soap) 1/2 pound; water, 1 gallon.

The soap, first finely divided, is dissolved in the water by boiling and immediately added boiling hot, away from the fire, to the kerosene. The whole mixture is then agitated violently while hot by being pumped back upon itself with a force pump and direct discharge nozzle, throwing a strong stream, preferably one-eighth inch in diameter. After from three to five minutes pumping the emulsion should be perfect, and the mixture will have increased from one-third to one-half in bulk and assumed the consistency of cream. Well made, emulsion will keep indefinitely and should be diluted as wanted for use.

For the treatment of large orchards or in municipal work requiring large quantities of the emulsion, it will be advisable to manufacture it with the aid of a steam or gasoline engine, as has been very successfully and economically done in several instances, all the work of heating, churning, etc., being accomplished by this means.

The use of whale-oil soap, especially if the emulsion is to be kept for any length of time, is strongly recommended, not only because the soap possesses considerable insecticidal value itself, but because the emulsion made with it is more permanent, does not lose its creamy consistency, and is always easily diluted, whereas with most of the other common soaps the mixture becomes cheesy after a few days and needs reheating to mix with water. Soft soap answers very well, and 1 quart of it may be taken in lieu of the hard soap.

The Rain Water

In limestone regions or where the water is very hard some of the soap will combine with the lime or magnesia in the water, and more or less of the oil will be freed, especially when the emulsion is diluted. Before use, such water should be broken with live or rain water employed.

For use on locust trees dilute 1 gallon of emulsion with 2 gallons of soft water.

Pure kerosene and pure petroleum will effectively kill the insects, but may do some damage to the bark of the trees.

Experiments with carbolic emulsion indicate that this preparation is of no value to kill the young grubs.

According to Dr. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology, the brown and apparently dying condition of the yellow or black locust trees in the states of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio is caused by the insect known as the locust leaf beetle. Nearly every summer the brownish appearance of these trees attracts attention and causes considerable inquiry and some alarm. However, with a few exceptions, the trees recover and come out fresh and green the following spring.

A more complete description of the locust borer and methods for its control may be obtained from circular No. 33 of the bureau of entomology, which is written by A. D. Hopkins in charge of forest insect investigations. The bulletin contains photographs of the borer.

NEW BIRD REGULATIONS

LAW AS TO MIGRATORY BIRDS IS NOW IN EFFECT—PROHIBITS NIGHT SHOOTING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Hunters in all parts of the country are much interested in the new regulations governing the shooting of migratory birds. These regulations were issued October 1. The department issued a few months ago the proposed new law and requested that if any one took serious objection to these regulations they would be given a chance to be heard. There were many protests at first from the Cape, the Vineyard and other sections of New England, but so far as is known here there have been no hearings in Washington with regard to the matter, and it is to be assumed that the sportsmen are satisfied with the proposed law.

In some states the new law will not materially affect the hunting privileges because it will not make any greater restrictions than are imposed by the state laws already in existence. In others the change will be more keenly felt. The five-year closed season for certain game birds, the prohibition of shooting between sunrise and sunset, and the long closed season for birds along certain navigable waters are the most important features of the new regulations. The new law authorized the department of agriculture to formulate regulations covering the points needed for the federal protection of migratory birds. These regulations were to fix and prescribe the closed seasons with due regard to temperature, breeding habits and the times and lines of migration of the different classes of birds. A committee of experts were selected to prepare these regulations which were made public for three months before final adoption and approval by the president.

This committee has fixed suitable districts in different parts of the country in which it shall be unlawful to shoot, kill or capture migratory birds, and at the same time give the hunter all the sport possible without threatening the total extinction of the birds. It is understood that where the states have suitable laws for the protection of migratory birds nothing in the new regulations shall be permitted to conflict with them. Hearings have been held in different sections of the country, and the general approval with which these regulations have been received as a whole has been most gratifying to the committee, and it proves pretty conclusively that public sentiment has become aroused to the need of protection of the native birds and what opposition there may have been, it is believed, will be thoroughly overcome when the new law is in operation. The provision that the new law should not interfere with the bird laws already existing in the states required much work from the committee. There are something like 700 laws governing bird shooting in the 48 states, and in order to harmonize them a number of exceptions have been included with the regulations which, it is believed, will make the new law a harmonious scheme for conserving the bird life uniformly throughout the country.

As has already been concisely stated, the country has been divided into two zones, the first zone to be known as the breeding zone, and number two as the wintering zone. The new law prohibits shooting between sunset and sunrise, and this restriction has been seriously objected to in New England and a few of the western states, but the objection is sustained because this protection already exists in a number of states including New York. It is claimed that at least half of the hunters in the country have been subject to this restriction for years by the laws of their states and most of them endorse it as a proper measure. The state of Louisiana has gone a step farther, for the shooting of birds after the noon hour is prohibited.

A five-year closed season has been authorized, extended to September 1, 1918, covering band tailed pigeons.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM READY

Will Meet Rindge Manual Tomorrow — Lawrence Academy Plays Here on Monday

Lowell high will meet Rindge Manual Training school of Cambridge on the gridiron at Spaulding park tomorrow afternoon and a stashing game is expected to be the result. Rindge Manual is an unknown quantity in high school circles for they have not met any of the large teams. Tomorrow's contest, however, is sure to be a hard fought battle as Lowell high does not want to lose a game this season and the boys from Cambridge hate to lose to a small city aggregation.

Captain Jake Cullen asserts that his team is in great shape. They have not been in competition but once this season when they defeated Nashua high school and have appreciated the long rest. All of the first team are anxious for a game and feel certain that the team which outplays them now will have to be made of championship material.

On next Monday afternoon at Spaulding Park Lowell high will play the strong Lawrence Academy football team. It is seldom that the local team has two games as heavy as these contests coming together in the early part of the season.

This team should prove one of the best aggregations that the local team has turned out in years. The line is heavier than that of the ordinary schoolboy eleven and the ends and back-field are fast. MANY DESERTERS
MEXICO CITY, Oct. 10.—The failure of General Aubert to get to Torreón in time to relieve it—a mission upon which he set out from Saltillo nearly a month ago with a large force of federal troops—is explained by the fact that the greater part of his men deserted him before he had completed half of his journey. He is reported to have reached Madero, 25 miles to the east of Torreón when news of the evacuation of that city reached him. Immediately the vanguard of the retreating federal troops came into view, General Aubert's men fled with all their ammunition and arms.

General Aubert is said today to be at El Paso, 50 miles west of Saltillo, to which point he retreated with the men who had evacuated Torreón.

ARTICLE ASSAILS COURT

Sensation Caused at Kier, Russia by Item Denouncing Court for Action in Murder Trial

KIEV, Russia, Oct. 10.—A sensation was caused here today by an article in the conservative and anti-semitic newspaper Kievlianin, assailing in the strongest terms the court trying Mendel Belish on the charge of murdering Andrew Yushinsky, a Christian boy of Kiev in March, 1910. The newspaper, which usually sells at 2 cents, fetched $1.50 a copy today.

The newspaper besides attacking the court and the public prosecutor, tears the indictment against Belish to shreds in terms which would be surprising even in the most radical journals.

The article, while denouncing the alleged unscrupulousness of the Jews in attempting to obtain the release of Belish says the charge against him is a charge against the whole religion of the most infamous superstition.

"The articles deplore the decision of the prosecution to appear before the world with such a burnt offering."

"Minutiae will not produce the desired fruits. However, advantageous or necessary it may be from a party standpoint to prove the existence of 'ritual murders' the prosecution ought not to have and has not the right to undertake the supply of the living object indispensable for a trial of this kind."

"It is a monstrous theory that Belish is of no account and may even be acquitted providing that the ritual is established. Belish may be insignificant. Nevertheless you have no right to imprison him unless you are convinced of his guilt. You have treated him like a rabbit on the table of a vivisectionist. The time, perhaps, will come when the charges of the public prosecutor of the Kiev court will be replaced by some one anxious to produce the inciters of outrages against the Jews. What would you say if the choice fell on you for such a sacrifice?"

SISTER MARTINA

Receives Visit from Her Brother, Fr. Tragesser of Emmitsburg, Md.

Rev. George J. Tragesser, pastor of St. Anthony's parish, Emmitsburg, Md., was in Lowell this week and visited his sister, Sister Martina of St. John's hospital. Sister Martina has been in charge of St. John's hospital nights for the past 26 years. She possesses a wonderful memory and can recall the name of every patient that has been in St. John's hospital during that time.

Fr. Tragesser's parish is located within the shadow of Mt. St. Joseph, the mother house of the Sisters of Charity, and about a mile and a half from Mt. St. Mary's college. While in town Fr. Tragesser was the guest of Rev. Fr. Kerrigan of St. Patrick's church, at dinner. Fr. Kerrigan was ordained at Mt. St. Mary's college and was a close friend of Fr. Tragesser. The latter, after spending a day in Lowell left for Montreal to attend the consecration of Bishop Forbes, an old Mt. St. Mary's friend.

Nurses Graduated

A class of seven nurses was graduated at St. John's hospital last evening. The exercises were attended by the nurses and nuns and a very pretty program was carried out. Ice cream and cake were served after the banquet. The young women graduates were: Miss Margaret O'Dwyer, Lowell; Miss Mary B. White, Boston; Miss Helen Fitzpatrick, Lowell; Miss Cecile Picard, Lowell; Miss Teresa Forbes, Fitchburg; Miss Agnes Donnelly, New Brunswick; Miss Mary Lynch, Lowell.

AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

HARVEST SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT LAST EVENING A BIG SUCCESS

A harvest supper and entertainment constituted the attraction at St. John's Episcopal church last evening. The affair was under the auspices of the ladies of the parish and there were over 100 persons present.

The tables abounded with epicurean delights, and the menu embraced the usual wide variety of fruits, vegetables and dishes associated with the time of bounteous harvests.

The kitchen was in charge of Mrs. Mary Spencer, while Mrs. A. E. Moors and Mrs. Bishop had supervision of the dining-room.

One of the most attractive tables was that on which harvest vegetable and fruit products were piled high in all their many forms and colors. This table was in charge of Mrs. Maria Palmer, Mrs. Clarence Edwards and Mrs. Willis Holt.

For those inclined to sweets, a wide variety of candy was displayed in an attractive manner on a table in charge of Mrs. George Walker and Mrs. James Regan.

Following the supper, an entertainment was given under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Wilde. A clever sleight-of-hand and juggling act was "put over"—to use a theatrical term—by Joseph Vennard, while the violin and piano duets rendered by Miss May Tyler and William Galloway received enthusiastic applause.

A full evening of merriment was concluded with general dancing, in which the young people engaged until the fair broke up at a seasonable hour.

DEFENDS CURRENCY BILL

Pres. Wilson Says Action of the Bankers at Convention Did Not Represent General Sentiment

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—A concerted defense by administration forces against the criticisms of the currency reform bill by bankers at the Boston convention of the American Bankers' association, and against what was alleged to be an organized effort to hinder its consideration and passage, served to clear the air in Washington yesterday, and to inspire a new feeling of confidence in democratic circles.

A senate debate in which the bankers' criticisms came in for sharp answer from friends of the bill on the senate floor, found its echo later in the day when President Wilson made plain to callers his own view of the recent developments surrounding the bill.

The president let it be known that he did not think the views of the Boston bankers' convention, as they bore on the currency bill now before the senate, represented the general public sentiment of the country.

In the president's view, the attacks made on the bill by the Boston conference represented the activities of men whom he believed to be acting with sincerity but who as individuals refused to yield their position of control of the country's financial system.

The expressions in the senate were more emphatic.

"I think this Boston meeting had for its obvious purpose to work up opposition to this bill," said Senator Owen, "and either to force the bankers' view or to delay or defeat this bill."

Senator Thomas talked of an "organized conspiracy" to misrepresent the president and impede legislation; Senator Overman declared the Boston conference did not reflect the views of the general public, and Senator Owen, answering a question by his democratic colleagues, said he believed there was an organized propaganda against the bill that found its reflection in the Boston conference and in the various state bankers' conventions which have adopted resolutions criticizing the currency measure.

The results of the senate debate, and of the later discussions by the president with visitors at the White House were to develop the following facts:

That no effort will be made to make the currency bill a party measure in the senate, unless it becomes impossible to get it through in any other way.

That the president believes early action on the bill is essential while many democratic senators will oppose any effort to unduly force the situation.

That the criticism of the Boston bankers' conference has tended to solidify the democratic ranks in support of the bill.

HUMAN WELFARE

Says Hon. D. A. Poling—Saloon Problem

The Lowell Christian Endeavor union held a public meeting in the First Congregational church, last night. The meeting was addressed by Hon. Daniel A. Poling of Columbus, O., who is at the head of the Christian Citizenship movement of the Young People's societies.

The meeting was in line with a general program to be mapped out throughout the country, for the fulfillment of the motto adopted at Atlantic City, at the C. E. convention, and reiterated at Los Angeles: "A saloonless nation in 1920." The method to be employed, is summed up in the words, "educate and exterminate." Mr. Poling was introduced by Secretary John A. Nichols of the state prohibition society.

"We will all agree," said the speaker, or "that the paramount issue, today, is human welfare. The highest conservation is conservation of humanity. Only as men are able to convince people that they do stand for these things, can they win the confidence and support of the people. We do well to remember that no machine ever takes the place of a man. There must be a man somewhere, to man the machine. 'Nothing I can do as a citizen, takes my place, the place that I ought to fill every day, persistently, insistently, throughout the year. My responsibility does not end on election day. No law on the statute books ever takes the place of an enlightened, conscientious, patriotic citizenship. I am just as responsible for good government as the public officials—to the limit of my opportunity. When we come to understand that the city, the state and the nation are all wrong morally, when we come to appreciate the fact that we are 'it' things will happen that perhaps are not happening today."

"We make a great mistake in criticizing indiscriminately, the man who employs a child. The child is fighting for a chance to get bread and clothing. We do not solve the problem by taking the child out of the factory; we must go back and find the reason. Until we do something with the unspeakable institution that forces them into the factories, we will not solve the problem. John Barleycorn stands in the middle of the state highway. Jesus said, 'Suffer little children to come unto me,' but they do not have half a chance to go to him today. I believe in pensions for mothers; but one out of every five children born to a drunken father is an idiot or insane. Frank Neil, author of the movement to pension mothers, said, 'As long as the state does not pension mothers, thousands of them will live on with drunken husbands, and the state run the risk of having to care for these idiotic or insane children.' I believe in the destruction of the system that is responsible, more than anything else, for the condition that makes pensions for mothers necessary."

REUNION AND SMOKE TALK

The members of Division 5, A. O. H., are planning a reunion and smoke talk in their hall next Monday evening and at a meeting of the division held last night reports were read and the affair promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the society. Several of the state and county officers have been invited to attend and speak and there will also be speaking by local men.

The committee having charge of the affair is as follows: President D. P. Reilly, Vice President P. J. Mahoney, Secretary E. J. Flannery, Financial Secretary Thomas Dorsey, Treasurer P. J. Finney, Michael Ryne, H. McGowan, John Murray, Michael Monahan and John McGarry.

NATIONAL RESOURCES STUDIED

Large Amounts of Field Work Being Carried on by United States Geological Survey in All Parts of U. S.

Questions of material development—of the value and best use of land or of the utilization of the country's latent resources—occupy a prominent place in the public thought these days. Among such questions are those relating to the location or development of gold and silver deposits, or oil wells, or artesian water supplies; to the value of coal lands; to the possibilities of developing the water power on rivers; to the use of land for dry farming; and to the proper location of transmission lines or interurban railways. On all these questions and others relating to the United States geological survey is the court of last resort. In answering these inquiries the survey distributes over a million printed reports and maps each year and answers thousands of letters concerning areas not covered by printed reports.

Some 25,000 inquiries are received by the survey every year from the general land office as to the character of lands—whether these lands are valuable for coal, mineral deposits, or agricultural use, or have any possibilities for the development of water power or reservoirs or for irrigation, as the classification of the public lands is by law made one of the primary functions of the geological survey.

To prepare these maps and reports and to answer these letters of inquiry requires and intricate, first-hand knowledge of the questions involved that can be had only in the field, so that, at this season of the year, the Washington office of the survey is almost deserted and the men are scattered from Maine to California—from the lava slopes of Hawaii to the snow fields of northern Alaska.

The work is carried on in these lines:

The topographic branch makes maps showing the surface of the earth, with its streams, rivers, lakes, roads, houses, towns—maps that are being used by the geologists as base maps, by engineers to locate railroads, roads, canals, sewers or drainage ditches, water power and irrigation projects, by automobile and trappers as road maps, and for a hundred other purposes. The demand for these maps may be judged from that most of the eastern states have appropriated or are appropriating money to help pay for them, the states paying one-half or more of the cost, and by the further fact that though the maps are sold, over half a million of them are distributed each year.

The geologic branch is studying the earth's rocks, their history and contents, and, with this foundation, is mapping the whole United States so as to show, ultimately, just where gold and silver and the other precious and useful metals do or may occur; where coal, oil, gas, phosphate, potash and other salts lie; where clays, building stones, and other structural materials of the highest grade can be found. A large share of the work is in the west, where the public lands are being examined for classification at the rate of 10 million acres a year, so that the government may know which are great phosphate, oil and mineral lands, and thus dispose of them under the proper provisions of law.

The water-resources branch studies the underground waters for the purpose of determining their availability for domestic use or for irrigation; the surface waters to determine their amount and fitness for use as water supplies of cities and towns; and for power for irrigation and also makes studies bearing on flood control and similar projects.

At present a large amount of the survey's funds is expended in examining and classifying the public lands in the west, this expenditure reducing the work in the eastern states much below the amount formerly done. In fact, a large part of the work now in states that contribute one-half or more of the expense of the work. It is, of course, to be regretted that lack of funds will not permit the continuance of the work in the east on the former scale and at the same time the carrying forward of the much-needed classification work in the west.

RECONSTRUCTION OF NEW HAVEN

It is indeed a persistent and prejudiced pessimist who would deny that the officials of the New Haven railroad are making honest efforts to repair the injury brought on by willful extravagance and impractical policies. Yet it has been the fashion to find fault with the road so long that there are still many people adversely critical about all that concerns the future of the road and especially its management. Much of this attitude is due to the continual attacks of those who have had an axe to grind and others who blindly followed disgruntled leaders, but much of it was founded on a sincere desire to see better things dawn for the railroad which could be and should be one of the greatest contributing influences to the prosperity of this region.

The management of the New Haven may answer much of the violent criticism directed at it more fitly, by silence, but there has been serious criticism of a type that called for explanation and action. Of this variety was the finding of the interstate commerce commission which after patient investigation condemned the road on its management, its acquisition of extraneous interests, its equipment, its provision for safety and many lesser points. In the days of the able Mr. Mellon we would expect such a harsh finding to be met by a dignified silence and possibly an answer in kind, but the New Haven road is now in different hands, and the fact was never emphasized more strongly than by the answer which has been made to the finding of the commission.

The directors of the road held a very important meeting on October 3rd for the declared purpose of giving "closer supervision to the details of the business and also in considering the financial, corporate and physical condition of the properties for which they are trustees." They covered all the main points in the report of the interstate commerce commission and took steps to have the recommendations attended to as soon as possible. They laid stress on the important fact, however, that "making large changes in the structure of any organization is necessarily a slow and delicate process, which should be done so far as possible without demoralizing the forces." Even the most aggressive member of the commission will agree with that.

The most important step taken was the naming of committees of the directors, "confering with others" to proceed on the following phases of former New Haven activity: The Connecticut trolley situation, the Rhode Island trolley situation, the steamship lines, the relations of the company with the Boston and Albany railroad, Western Massachusetts trolley lines, and relations of the New Haven with the Boston and Maine. These various committees were given full power "to call upon officers and employees for any and all information which will be promptly furnished," and they were also given permission to "incur reasonable expense." A representative committee was formed, headed by Howard Elliott, to call upon the interstate commerce commission and the attorney-general to lay before them the plans that were formulated for the upbuilding, or more properly the reconstruction, of the New Haven railroad.

It seems as though at last there are practical men at the head of the involved affairs of the New Haven and the voice of public opinion has been heard and heeded. This public opinion has been largely destructive in the past, possibly with good results, but it should now become constructive. When the officials of the road are showing such an evident desire to meet reasonable requirements, there is no valid reason for a continuation of an adversely pessimistic public attitude.

BIRD TO GARDNER

He is a very game Bird indeed who answers the invitation of Mr. Gardner to a walloping party in Faneuil hall, Boston, on Oct. 15th, for the purpose of giving one hour to the discussion of personalities. Incidentally he is a brave and wise Bird even though he refused to be walloped for he reminds the exorable republican nominee that if the latter has exposures sufficiently weighty to make against the progressive candidate, exposures which would make imperative the hiring of a special hall and one hour of revelations. It is his duty to the voters of Massachusetts to make these exposures now. Apparently Mr. Bird, whose character, by the way, sincerity of purpose and devotion to principle, should make him indifferent to vindictive attack, has discovered the vote-catching motive back of the tiresome bravado of Mr. Gardner and refuses to take part in any controversy which would "lower the dignity of Massachusetts campaigns for governor."

It is nice and delicate of Mr. Gardner to set aside one hour for giving a "wallop" to the progressive nominee, but it would be far more creditable to him if he had decided to do this before ridiculing and assailing the character he has called "Dr. Jekyll." If Mr.

Gardner has suffered from the personal attacks of certain progressives he must find consolation in the reflection that he has invited that regrettable type of political attack. Had he treated Mr. Bird with the courtesy displayed by Mr. Walsh, which courtesy Mr. Bird publicly commends—he would have been treated by Mr. Bird as Mr. Walsh has been treated, with dignity and moderation of speech. If it has been made a campaign of personalities, Mr. Gardner is the greatest offender.

Democrats and the Walsh sympathizers in all parties may be encouraged by the fact that in his latest letter to Gardner Mr. Bird calls Mr. Walsh his "formidable opponent." If Gardner continues to blunder so lamely, the same epithet will apply to Mr. Bird from the democratic side, as from the present indications it looks as though Mr. Bird will get a great many votes that would have been republican had Benton been the chosen candidate.

OUR MUCKRAKERS

Mr. A. G. Cummock hit the nail squarely on the head yesterday at the dinner to the visiting bankers at the Textile school when he said that he has far too many muckrakers. No one can live long in Lowell without being convinced of the fact that it is the general rule for many Lowell people to deride the city, its institutions, its government, and its other leading civic features, leaving it to outsiders to praise the many excellent things to be found within its borders. Mr. Cummock referred especially to the prevailing tendency to throw stones at our mayor and commissioners after election, even though before taking office they were on the crest of the wave of popularity. His remarks are as true as the popular tendency is regrettable and none are more conscious of the fact than the officials interested.

After elections the mayor and commissioners are not the officials of any part of the public but of the whole public and they should receive the undivided support for which Mr. Cummock pleaded. They cannot do their best work if they feel that the people are not with them and they cannot have the enthusiasm that comes from public endorsement. When there is obvious reason to condemn, the press and public will condemn, but too many of our people make up their minds to condemn at all times whether the occasion justifies it or not. The man who votes for any candidate for civic office pledges his support to the man of his choice, and the public spirited citizen of all parties will support the popular choice in everything conducive to public good. Muckrakers die hard and we shall have many of them with us for a long time to come, but let us hope for a better spirit in the future.

CHURCHILL ON HOME RULE

If there has been any feeling here that the wooden rifle bluff of the bitter Ulster minority or the impractical conference scheme of Lord Loreburn had weakened the cause of Irish home rule, it will be dispelled by the recent speech of Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, who, speaking in Scotland, declared that nothing will prevent the government from carrying through the home rule bill as planned. The answer of Mr. Carson has not yet been recorded but like one of the dragons of medieval legend he may be expected to fairly breathe forth smoke and flames.

For the first time in any great struggle in which the fortunes of Ireland have been involved, of recent years, the world sees the liberal party of England advocating Irish home rule, not as a sentimental proposition but as a matter of fact economic change. There are, of course, a great many sentimental reasons why Ireland should have self-government, but it is a relief to see the nationalists attending to the interests of their constituents in a grave and dignified manner, leaving the tumultuous howlings of forced devotion to the small body of northern malcontents.

THE CHINESE FLAG

In accordance with the custom of the proprietor of The Sun to fly the flags of all nations from the Sun building on their respective national holidays, the beautiful flag of the new China with its five colored bars representing the five races in the union has floated from the roof of our building all day. It comes appropriately after the very recent election of Yuan Shi-Kai as constitutional president of the Chinese republic for a term of five years, and we hope the flag of a great democratic ideal will float as undisturbed over the ancient land during his term of office as it has floated today in this city where many natives of the flowery kingdom are giving us an example in thrift, progressiveness and honesty.

We note with pleasure that the Lawrence Eagle is about to move into its new building on Essex street. The Eagle is apparently reaping the reward of its zealous efforts to furnish the people with a live, up-to-date newspaper.

Seen and Heard

Little George was six years old at New Year's and the family was much interested in having him start to school in February, but he insisted that he was not going.

One day his grandmother said to him, "George, you are going to school with sister this winter, aren't you?"

"No, grandma, I'm not going to school at all. I can't read, nor I can't write, nor I can't sing, and I'd like to know what good I'd be at school."—Woman's Home Companion.

Prof. Brander Matthews, the eminent critic, was talking at Columbia University about the wretched quality of modern American fiction.

"When I look over our best sellers," said Professor Matthews, "I can't believe that these writers are really doing their best. I believe that they must loathe their work—that they must be ashamed of their work."

"But such work if it catches on pays, while fine work can never pay like a best seller. And so I suppose we must say of our modern American novelists as of most other people."

"They give up what they like to do in order to get what they like to have."—New York World.

Enrico Caruso, at a dinner preceding his departure for the season in London, said that when he grew too old to sing he would probably teach.

"Teaching the voice is a difficult task," he continued. "It is a fine thing to be a good teacher. Some pupils are so very stupid."

"You can no more hurry a voice than you can hurry a flower; but most pupils want to become star singers in a month or two."

"A lady said to one of my friends, a superb teacher:

"I'm going abroad next month, and I want 25 lessons in voice culture, before I sail."

"Impossible!" said the teacher.

"Why impossible?" said the lady. "I could take two lessons a day some days."

"Or, better still," said my friend sarcastically, "you could take the whole 25 lessons all at once, one after the other. A day would do it, then."

"Splendid!" cried the lady. "Shall we make it tomorrow?"—New York Telegraph.

One of the most remarkable wells in Oklahoma is owned by J. C. McSpadden at Tahlequah, Okla. This well not only furnishes an abundance of pure water almost ice cold in the summertime, but it affords a supply of chilled air which is utilized for a cooling plant for the hotel. The McSpadden home cooler on the hottest day than any summer resort within a thousand miles. It is a freak well all around. When the well was sunk it was for a cistern.

When about 60 feet deep the bottom broke through, revealing a sort of cavern in which there was a tremendous flow of ice cold water. Apparently this is an inexhaustible supply, for the well was sunk years ago and the water has remained at the same level ever since.

One may open the cover of this well and his hat will be lifted from his head by a rush of air from the well that feels like an icy blast. Where the water or the cold air comes from is a puzzle no one has answered. Unlike most underground streams, this one changes temperature in the winter, getting much colder. While the water stands 45 feet below the surface of the ground, yet in winter ice five inches thick has been known to form in the well.

Taking advantage of the freak well's supply of cold air, Mr. McSpadden sealed the top of the well with a concrete cap and placed pipes in it. Through the other he draws a supply of cold air that is piped through every room of his six-room cottage. These pipes reduce the temperature many degrees even on the hottest days, and when the weather is moderately cool the house can be made so cold as to be uncomfortable.

BEAUTIFUL HANDS

O you hands—they are strangely fair! Fair—for the jewels that sparkle there— Fair—for the witchery of the spell That ivory keys alone can tell; But when their delicate touches rest Here in my own do I love them best, As I clasp with eager acquisitive spans My glorious treasure of beautiful hands.

Marvelous, wonderful, beautiful hands! They can coax roses, to bloom in the strands Of your brown tresses; and ribbons may twist.

Under mysterious touches of thine, Into such knots as entangle the soul, And fetter the heart under such a constraint.

As only the strength of my love understands— My passionate love for your beautiful hands.

As I remember the first fair touch Of those beautiful hands that I love so much, I seem to thrill as I then was thrilled, Kissing the glove that I found un-fitted—

When I met your gaze, and the queen-ly bow, As you said to me, laughingly, "Keep it now!" And dazed and alone in a dream I stand Kissing this ghost of your beautiful hand.

When first I loved, in the long ago, And held your hand as I told you so— Pressed and caressed it and gave it a kiss, And said "I could die for a hand like this."

Little I dreamed then of future bliss, Had to ripen when eyes were wet, And prayers were vain in their wild demands For one warm touch of your beautiful hands.

Beautiful hands! O beautiful hands! Would you reach out to the alien lands Where you are lingering, and give me, tonight, Only a touch—were it ever so light— My heart were soothed, and my weary Would lift itself into rest again; For there is no solace the world commands Like the caress of your beautiful hands.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

MEX NOT PLATFORMS

Lowell Courier-Citizen: The Springfield Union quite properly remarks that the platforms are Gardner, Walsh, Bird and possibly Fox. The personality of these men, with their past record, constitutes the real reason for a preference at the polls. Anybody can name the three last governors of the commonwealth, but who can give the gist of any platform adopted three years ago?

PARADOXICAL TOM

Beverly Times: Tom Lawson has presented to congress de luxe editions estimated to cost $10 each, of his book on High Cost of Living. The consumer who feels the pinch of high prices should secure one at once.

NOT DIFFERENT

Portland Express: A man French dressermaker who designs some of the most daring costumes for women recently visited the country. He brought his wife with him and it was noticeable that her dresses, while stylish, were very modest. Quite likely the French dressermaker is like some other men, an admirer of conspicuous clothes only on other men's wives.

SULZER

Providence Tribune: Honest men must stand aloof at the revelations in Albany. The spectacle of the prospective governor visiting the office of one of the most prominent financiers in the country and soliciting $1000 or as much more as he could get is one that the people of his state can never forget. The indelible stamp of shame is on the transaction. We can all see the crawling, cringing candidate with his attempt at humor, juggling $10,000 out of a man to whom the money was but a fig-leaf, but who, no doubt, thought it owned a governor when he paid it over.

TICKET SPECULATORS

Fall River Herald: The sale of seats for big sporting events like the world's series by speculators furnishes because people are willing to do business with the speculators. The crusade against encounters, the same difficulty that the crusade against the practice of giving tips premises encounters, and we may look for the disappearance of both about the same time.

OUR ROADS

Manchester Mirror: Much good highway work has been done, but much money has been burned up for nothing. Many stone roads have become rock heaps for lack of maintenance, others because the material originally lacked the adhesive quality that creates a surface binder. There is too much disposition to regard the state and national governments as rich uncles who will pay all the bills.

AMERICAN CHILDREN

Lyons News: Here is no great evidence of any general race suicide. The nation has yet a great majority of people born in this country and knowing no other for ever the stars and stripes. These children are the true wealth of the country. Nothing else is to be compared with them. Wealth may be or not, but these are the future creators of all the grandeur which the United States may have. Sometimes we have been accused of being ruled by our children. Perhaps so, but isn't it well to have so

Athletes and Athletics

Both managers have today's game all counted on their respective score cards. McGraw figures that Bender will pitch for the Athletics and is sure that his batters will pound him today. Mack, on the other hand, thinks that his men have taken the measure of the National League and that the series is practically decided now.

Bush will be a much feted person when this year's series has passed into history. Any nineteen-year old boy who can take the mound against a team of veteran champions and hold them to five hits is deserving of all the praise that he receives. If the series goes over to next week Bush may have another chance at the Giants.

Cleveland and Pittsburgh are having a hard time getting anyone to see their games. With the series even up now the remainder of the contests should be well patronized.

The Bunting soccer team is playing a much better brand of football this year than they did last season. Tomorrow's game with the Hazelton club is certain to draw a large audience.

Herzog may not be the most popular man playing baseball today but he is a valuable player to his manager. The Giants' third baseman is always talking while in the field and is the greatest "slobber" on the club if a team mate makes a slip. Herzog is cordially hated by the majority of National leaguers.

Gunboat Smith, although he beat Carl Morris on a foul and had it on him, did not show any marvelous display of hitting ability last night. He has got to go better than this to expect to do things to Boston's Tar Baby.

Yale and Princeton have at last agreed to row two boat races. The fall race will be decided at Princeton on Saturday, Oct. 25th. This is something that has never before occurred in athletics between the two institutions.

Fletcher picked up the moist pellet that Tessaure flings and made a wild heave in the first inning which allowed two runs to score. This is the big reason why his teammates hate to see the big Frenchman in the box and not because he is unpopular.

Captain Hogsett is once more a Dartmouth regular. His shoulder is in fair condition and it was announced last night that he would start Saturday's game with Vermont.

Collins and Baker were taking a long chance when they tried to get away with that double steal. Judging by results it was an altogether unexpected move for McLean was so surprised that he dropped the ball.

Yousuf Hassan, the crack Turkish wrestler, who meets Morrison in Boston on Columbus day, is some wrangler and his record speaks for itself. Hassan has never been thrown by a man.

anywhere near his own weight. Hassan was one of Frank Gotch's wrestling partners and learned the game under the eye of the greatest wrestler of all time.

Williams is going to be represented in large numbers at the game tomorrow between that college and Harvard at the Stadium. Williams has not shown anything marvelous this year in the line of versatile attack and Harvard should have an easy time with them.

Howard Drew, the negro sprinter, has announced that he will not enter any race under sixty yards this winter. This will bar him from the B. A. A. meet. Drew and the Boston A. A. officials are not on very good terms and perhaps it will be just as well although the sporting public who always take in the Hub track games would like to see the Springfield champ perform.

The fans are now anxious to see a battle between the two recruits, Shawkey and Demaree, both of whom have been touted so much by their respective managers. Both have shown a lot of "stunt" during the season just passed but what they would do in a world's series contest is beyond conjecture.

"Home Run" Baker will have to push over and allow Schang a seat on his bench. Schang's clout yesterday into the right field bleachers was the equal of the one which Baker slammed out in the first game of the series.

CUBS BEAT WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—In a 13-inning battle the Chicago Nationals made the standing in the Chicago championship series one and one yesterday afternoon, downing the American leaguers 5 to 3. The victory of the Cubs was due mainly to the courage and coolness of "Big Jim" Vaughn, who refused to give way before the vigorous attack of the South Siders.

FANS ATTEND IN LARGE NUMBERS

That the perfect score board which is being shown daily at Mathewson's, during the world's series, has met with the approval of the fans of this city is shown by the increasing patronage daily. Most of those who saw the game yesterday, got so interested that they forgot they weren't where they wanted to be. Whenever there was a hit by either team, the crowd yelled and jumped upon the seats. They all stood up at the beginning of the seventh inning. "All up for the seventh," somebody shouted, and up they got. In tight places they yelled for the various stars to "crack the ball." Every time the ball rings it meant there was a hit and when it rang twice it was a two-bagger. It doesn't require much imagination for a person to see in his mind exactly how every play is accomplished. The plays come in a steady stream and there are no waits of any kind.

GUNBOAT SMITH WON

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Gunboat Smith of California defeated Carl Morris of Oklahoma in the fifth round of their 16-round fight here last night. The referee disqualified Morris for fouling. The California heavyweight had the better of the match in every round except the second.

PIRATES WON FROM NAPS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 10.—The Pittsburgh Nationals shut out the Cleveland Americans yesterday, 5 to 0 in the fourth game of the inter-city series. The clubs are now even with two wins each.

Adams for Pittsburgh pitched effectively and only once did the Cleveland advance a runner as far as third base.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Mathewson, the veteran New York Giant pitcher, was the hero of the second game, a sensational, hard fought, ten-inning clash, in the world's series at Shibe park. By his masterly twirling and his timely hitting he really won his own game. In the top picture of the accompanying illustration he is shown crossing the plate in the tenth inning on Fletcher's single, which also sent in Herzog. Matty's single had just a moment before sent in Grant, who ran for McLean. Thus the three winning runs were scored. The lower picture shows Strunk out at the plate in the ninth in the great defensive stand of the Giants in preventing the Athletics from scoring when they had a man on third and second with none out. Strunk is being tagged by big Larry McLean of the Giants on a perfect throw by Wilson, the wiry Giant pitcher, who showed his versatility by playing a great game at first base. Immediately following this close play Barry was run down between third and home for the second out, and then Murphy was easily out to Witte, thus retiring the side and completing the end of the rally of the Athletics to win the game.

WORLD'S RECORD

Uhlan Went a Mile in 1.54 1-2 at Lexington, Kentucky, Yesterday

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 10.—Uhlan, the world's champion trotter, owned by C. K. G. Billings, yesterday lowered the world's record for a mile to 1.54 1-2. Uhlan set the previous record at 1.55 last year, the horse on both attempts against time being accompanied by a running mate.

Uhlan yesterday was driven by Charles Tanner and was favored with Columbus, afternoon and night, 23c. A perfect track and beautiful weather conditions. Trotting in magnificent form he made the quarters in 28 3/4, 57 1/4, 1:34 1/4 and 1:54 1/2. Horse and driver were given an ovation as the finish when the audience realized that a new world's record had been made.

Cheeny captured the Transylvania stake for 2.05 trotters, the feature of the Grand Circuit yesterday, winning after losing the first heat and coming within a half second of the record set for the event by Penita Maid in 1909. Cheeny's best time was made in the third heat, when she trotted the mile in 2:04 1/4, equalling her own record.

Silk Hat was drawn before the race was started. The first heat was won by Newzel, the Texas mare, breaking badly and finishing fourth. Fleming held her well in hand, however, in the second and third, and she won with ease in both. In the fourth Peter McCormick made a strong challenge at the turn into the stretch, but broke and dropped back, finishing third. The winner was the favorite in the betting.

In the 2.05 class pace carried over from yesterday, Michigan Queen won the fourth and final heat, the last heat in 2:05 1/4, lowering her own record a second and a quarter. She was well driven by her owner, Charles A. Valentine, of Columbus, O.

The 2.17 pace was won in straight heats by A. C. McKendrick's Vasterus. Alfreda Todd, driven by Murphy, took second money, after finishing seventh in the opening heat.

Better Than Calomel

Thousands Have Discovered Dr.

Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to olive-colored tablets out these little pills have been the good that affects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids do, and they quickly take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel so do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "dizziness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "drowsy" and "heavy." Note how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

ATHLETICS WON, 8 TO 2

Bush, 19 Year Old Pitcher Held
Giants to 5 Hits—Teammates
Knocked Tessreau off Mound

POLO GROUNDS, N. Y., Oct. 10.—The Philadelphia Athletics swamped the New York National League champions yesterday under a fusillade of hits, defeating the Giants by a score of 8 to 2. Bush's fine pitching together with Collins' hitting and good defensive work and a long four base smash were bright features of the Athletics' game.

Tessaure was found for five runs in the first two innings. Bush allowed only five hits. Doyle made a scintillating double play unassisted in the seventh inning. The two clubs play the fourth game of the world series at Shibe park, Philadelphia, today.

Over 35,000 people saw yesterday's battle at the Polo grounds.

First Inning

The announcement that Bush would pitch caused hundreds to congregate in the stands. "This is the pitcher," said Connie Mack, who kept under cover for the last six weeks in order to use him in the world's series. Ira Thomas, the Athletics' catcher, said that Bush had a world of speed and a fine breaking curve when he warmed up.

Tessaure's splitter broke over the plate for a strike. His second pitch was a ball. Fletcher threw out Murphy at first. It was a close play, the ball beating the runner by only a step. Tessaure had plenty of speed and broke to the ball. Oldring singled to right when Tessaure sent up a floater.

Collins took a strike, the ball curving over the plate near his knees. Tessaure then chor over another strike, putting the batter in a hole. Collins angled over second, Oldring going to third. Then came Baker to the bat and the Athletics' rooters gave a mighty cheer. Baker missed the first one. The New York infield laid back to try for a double play. Baker missed the second one by a foot.

Oldring scored on Baker's single to left. Collins being held at second. Tessaure put over a strike on McLean. Collins and Baker made a double steal, putting them on third and second respectively. McLean dropped. Tessaure's pitch. McLean struck out. McLean to Merkle. Collins and Baker scored when Fletcher took Strunk's ground ball and threw wild to the grandstand. Strunk went to second on the play. Barry popped to Fletcher. Three runs, three hits; one error.

The first pitched ball was a strike and the second a foul. After having two strikes on the batter, Bush pitched three successive balls. Herzog out, Barry to McLean. Bush had a basketful of speed but seemed somewhat shy of command. Doyle got an infield hit which Bush was unable to field in time. Doyle had a good start on the pitcher in an attempt to steal second, but Fletcher fouled the ball. Fletcher was hit by Bush. Burns fled to Collins, who tossed to Barry, doubling Doyle to second. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Second Inning
Schang struck out, being unable to gauge Tessaure's splitter. Bush fled out to Murray. Murphy beat out a hit to short. Fletcher making a nice stop back on the grass but could not get his man at first. Oldring got his second single to right, sending Murphy to third. It was the hit and run play, cleverly worked. Oldring scored on Collins' line drive over Doyle's head. This made six hits off Tessaure in two innings and the third man still to be put out. Collins was out at second when Doyle took Baker's burning smash and touched second. It looked like a sure hit and only wonderful fielding by Doyle prevented the ball from going clear to deep center. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Shaffer out when Collins took his slow roller and tossed to first. Murray sent up an easy fly which Collins smothered. McLean laughed when Bush fooled him with a slow slider on the inside corner. McLean fouled out to Schang. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Third Inning
McLean fled out to Burns. The Giant fielder taking the line drive over near the foul line. Then Burns took care of Strunk's high fly, having to move but a few feet to get it. McLean took Barry's weak foul. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Merkle sent up a high fly to Strunk. Tessaure went out on three straight strikes. The last ball Tessaure struck at hit the plate and bounced into Schang's hands. Collins took Herzog's liner and the inning was over. The crowd applauded Bush as he walked to the players' bench. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Fourth Inning
Schang struck out for the second time in the game. Bush got a Texas leaguer which Burns trapped on the toes of the grass, and it looked like a patent Murphy out to Shaffer. Doyle threw out Oldring at first. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Umpire Rigler cautioned the Athletics players on the bench for coaching. Doyle fouled out to Baker. Bush hit plenty of "stunt," his curves breaking very wild at times. Kopples Schang bunt along after them. Bush gave Fletcher three balls and then put over two strikes. Fletcher singled over second. Collins stopped the ball, but could not recover to make the throw. Burns fanned and Schang snapped the ball to McLean, who nearly caught Fletcher off the bag. Fletcher stole second, having a good lead on the pitcher and Schang's throw being wide. Collins threw at Shaffer. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Inning

Bush pitched three balls and then shot over two strikes on Murray. Murray walked. It was the first base on balls given in the game. Murray stole second and went to third on Schang's wild heave to right center. Murray scored when McLean's hit shot by Baker. Cooper ran for McLean. Merkle fled to Murphy. Cooper easily stole second. Schang's throw being very high. Baker threw out Tessaure, Cooper going to third. Schang threw out Herzog at first. One run; one hit; one error.

Sixth Inning
Wilson new catching for New York. Strunk fled out to Burns. Barry singled sharply to right. Schang sent a long foul into the left field stands, and the crowd groaned, thinking it might be a home run. Wilson took Schang's foul after a long run to the Athletics' players' bench. Bush fled out to Doyle. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Doyle out on a grounder to McLean, unassisted. Fletcher walked. A double play ended the inning. Bush took Burns' splash and tossed it to Barry. Forcing Fletcher at second. Barry then completed the double by a rifle shot throw to McLean. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Seventh Inning
Murphy sent a splitter to right for a single. Murphy was forced at second when Fletcher took Oldring's smash and tossed to Doyle. Collins sent a long foul into the upper right field stand, the ball falling almost into fair territory. Oldring scored on Collins' three-bagger along the right field foul line. The ball took a wicked bound past Murray, enabling Collins to make third base. Collins scored on Baker's single to center. The Athletics' hitting was too much for Tessaure and he was called from the pitching mound. Crandall went into the box for New York. McLean out when Doyle took his liner and touched Baker on the line for a double play unassisted. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Shaffer doubled to left. Shaffer scored on Murray's single to left. Wilson fanned. Schang threw out Murray at second. Collins taking the throw and completing a double play. Merkle walked. Wilson ran for Merkle. Collins threw out Crandall at first. One run, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning
Witte went out to play first base for New York. Crandall threw out Strunk. It was announced that the attendance figures and receipts would not be given out until tonight. Crandall also threw out Barry. Schang scored on Murray's single to left. Wilson fanned. Schang threw out Murray at second. Collins taking the throw and completing a double play. Merkle walked. Wilson ran for Merkle. Collins threw out Crandall at first. One run, two hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning
Witte went out to play first base for New York. Crandall threw out Strunk. It was announced that the attendance figures and receipts would not be given out until tonight. Crandall also threw out Barry. Schang scored on Murray's single to left. Wilson fanned. Schang threw out Murray at second. Collins taking the throw and completing a double play. Merkle walked. Wilson ran for Merkle. Collins threw out Crandall at first. One run, two hits, no errors.

Tenth Inning
Witte went out to play first base for New York. Crandall threw out Strunk. It was announced that the attendance figures and receipts would not be given out until tonight. Crandall also threw out Barry. Schang scored on Murray's single to left. Wilson fanned. Schang threw out Murray at second. Collins taking the throw and completing a double play. Merkle walked. Wilson ran for Merkle. Collins threw out Crandall at first. One run, two hits, no errors.

HOME RULE CAMPAIGN

The Measure Linked With Others
Demanded by British People
and Opposed by Peers

Following is a statement of the present situation relative to home rule in Ireland by a member of the nationalist party and therefore, expressive of the prevailing sentiment.

So far as parliament is concerned, the home rule cause could not be in a more hopeful position. The government has passed triumphantly through what everybody regarded as its most critical session, the period that would test the loyalty of its supporters and the practicability of its policy, and it is stronger and more united now than at any time since its advent to power. The parliament act has successfully withstood every attack made upon it, and there is now no doubt entertained amongst its friends that it will prove all-efficient for its intended purposes of effectually limiting the veto of the house of lords and of ensuring that the will of the people, expressed through their elected representatives, must and shall prevail. The absurdity of the position taken up by the lords in rejecting all the parliament act bills and the plural voting bill, and in claiming the right to order a general election at any time they think fit, is realized now even by the most reactionary of the Tories. The lords themselves, through Lord Curzon, are endeavoring to explain their words and deeds, but without avail. Instead of placating the people, they are arousing passions which may sweep the hereditary chamber out of existence.

Mr. Redmond's Appeal

The attendance of the members of the Irish party at Westminster during the session has been exemplary, and well deserves the tribute of praise paid to it by Mr. Redmond in the very important letter which he has just addressed to his colleagues. If a poll of the Irish party were taken, there would be a unanimous verdict that not one amongst them has equalled the record of Mr. Redmond himself for self-sacrifice and devotion to duty. He has never asked one of his colleagues to follow where he has not led the way, he is their friend and comrade as well as their leader, and that is why he commands their loyalty and affection to a degree that is unique. The session will end about the 15th of August, and the Tories have been planning in secret another "snag" for Mr. Redmond and to know of this and he immediately issued a personal appeal to the Irish members to remain in constant attendance at Westminster until the very end of the session. As he puts it, to have a defeat inflicted on the government at the end of a session of such splendid achievement, would be a humiliating and calamitous thing to be taken for granted that the Tory plot will not succeed.

A Popular Cause

What is the home rule position in Ireland is quite secure. Liberal and Irish members who have been addressing week-end meetings in the country state that the enthusiasm of the people in support of the government and its program is refreshing. Home rule is now the most popular cause with democratic audiences in Great Britain. By rejecting all the parliament act bills, the house of lords has linked home rule with the cause of popular freedom, and the cause of popular freedom, of the people against the peers, and the result is a foregone conclusion. The parliament act must stand, unless the people are to lose the fruits of their long struggle against the domination of the lords. But the defeat of the home rule bill and the Welsh disestablishment bill would be tantamount to the defeat of the parliament act by the lords, and for that reason, if for no other, the passage of these measures is assured.

A Unionist Wait

Mr. Garvin, in the "Observer" bewails the conduct of the Unionist campaign in parliament and in the country. It has been all talk, he says. The government is determined to pass the home rule bill, and so Mr. Garvin has two policies to offer his party. The one is a settlement on federal lines by which he does not mean anything like home rule and the other is as follows:

"If the government persists in using the existing parliamentary position to carry out Mr. Redmond's policy by Mr. Redmond's vote without the sanction of the country, we see nothing for it but the desperation of conflict. There will be chaos in the house of commons, meetings of protest in every constituency, petitions for the dissolution of parliament to be signed by every Unionist in the land, and if possible by an actual majority of the electors in Great Britain; and an appeal to all Unionists, officers and men alike, to leave the territorial army. That is only part of the prospect."

The Autumn Campaign

Apart from Mr. Garvin, however, there can be no doubt that the Unionists have arranged a big anti-home rule campaign in Great Britain for the autumn. As Mr. Deville, M. P., announced at Belfast, this campaign is to be met by a counter-campaign, the details of which are under consideration, and which will be both thorough and effective. The program will include a series of great meetings at which leading cabinet ministers will probably speak, and a great number of smaller meetings for which the services of many of the rank and file of the Irish party will be called upon.

The Real Ulster

The reply of the nationalists of Belfast to Mr. Edward Carson is a subscription of £520 as a first instalment to this home rule fund for 1913. The "Irish News" publishes the list of subscribers, which tells its own tale. The largest subscriptions are £20 from "The Belfast Protestant" and £10 from "The Belfast Protestant Home Rule". All the rest is in subscriptions of from one shilling up to £5. Last year, Belfast's first instalment to the fund was £150. The increase of £170 is eloquent of the growing strength of the home rule cause in the Ulster capital and a fresh illustration of the peace and patriotism of its nationalist citizens.

DR. T. BANCROFT

When Abraham Lincoln Was Shot

Dr. T. D. Bancroft, of Portland, Oregon, was the speaker at the opening meeting of the Men's Club of the Grace Universalist church last evening.

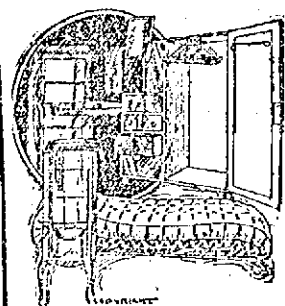

Dr. Bancroft is one of the few surviving persons of the audience which was in Ford's theatre, Washington, D. C., on the night when President Abraham Lincoln was shot.

He told, in reminiscent mood, of the events immediately before the shooting of the beloved president by John Wilkes Booth, and of the tragic ones which followed.

Dr. Bancroft also told of the conditions obtaining in 1856, when an attempt was made by the Southern states to have the territory of Kansas enter the Union as a slave state. The narrator told of being shipped west to join the army of free-state men who were mentioned to fight the men from Missouri, who at that time were endeavoring to bring Kansas into the list of slave states. Dr. Bancroft had many interesting things to tell of the strange state of affairs at that year. Finally it was decided to settle the matter by means of an election. It was to be a very fair election, he said, for the Missourians were very sympathetic people, and they came across the border in big bunches to assist the Kansans in voting.

Boat boxes were set right down on the prairie, he said with little holes in them, and the Missourians brought over thousands of ballots, all of which stated that the depositors voted for slave state candidates. But the men from the north, who also voted, had thousands of ballots, also, and these they tucked into the soap boxes, the number of anti-slave candidates being marked on them. Somehow, he said, the northerners managed to get more ballots into the boxes than did the Missourians, and so this very fair election brought Kansas into the Union as a free state.

TOSSED IN THE AIR

by Train and Instantly Killed

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Oct. 10.—While trying to cross the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad tracks at the Columbus avenue station here last night, Miss Anna Reitz, 20 years old, of Stonington, Conn., was struck by the east bound Boston express and instantly killed. Miss Anna Weckworth of Plantville, Conn., her chum, narrowly escaped death in a futile effort to save her. Miss Weckworth, although tossed 20 feet or more by the train and badly injured, is expected to recover.

The two young women, members of a picnic party, had miscalculated the speed of the flyer which they saw approaching, believing it was the train they wished to take and that it would stop at the station.

THE KASINO

The only and original "Jazz" Hubbard and his orchestra will hold forth Monday afternoon and evening at the Kasino in a regular "old timers" carnival. From 2.30 o'clock until 5 o'clock in the afternoon the Hubbard players will entertain, free concerts being a prominent feature of the program. Seldom in recent years has a better opportunity been presented to Lowell's dancing population, and thousands will take advantage of it, no doubt.

T. E. & T. S. No. Billerica, tonight.

MATRIMONIAL

Dr. Roger E. Bates of Billerica and Miss Elizabeth H. Ober, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ober of Hudson, N. H., were united in marriage Wednesday evening at St. Michael's Episcopal church, Marlborough, by the Rev. E. J. V. Hulgina of Beverly. The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine, trimmed with princess lace and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Laura Goodwin of Marlborough as maid of honor, who was gown in pink broad crepe de chine. The flower girls were Misses Phyllis E. Ober and Frances M. Phillips. Mr. C. E. Hodges of Billerica was the best man. After the marriage a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Phillips, Lafayette street, Marlborough.

BY MASS. COM. ON IMMIGRATION
WANTS LIGHT ON BEST TREAT-MENT OF FOREIGN ELEMENT

The Massachusetts commission on immigration will give a hearing in the council chamber at city hall at 7 o'clock this evening and if all those desiring to speak cannot be heard this evening an adjourned meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The commission of investigation was created by the last legislature for the purpose of making a full investigation of the status and general condition of immigrants within the commonwealth, including their way of living, distribution, occupation, educational and business opportunities, and all their relations to the industrial and economic conditions of all the people of the commonwealth.

The real purpose of the investigation is for the enactment of such laws as will bring non-English speaking foreigners, resident or transient, into sympathetic relations with American institutions and conditions.

The commission has held well attended hearings in Worcester, Springfield, Chicopee, Fall River and New Bedford. Next week it goes to North Adams.

DOING A GOOD WORK

At the present time over 25 men are employed at the Salvation Army Industrial Home at 115 Fletcher street, sorting paper and rags, repairing furniture and shoes, cleaning and repairing clothing, collecting scrap paper, etc. on the industrial teams of which there are five. The men are only given temporary employment and Captain H. O. Hires, who has charge of the home, states that it is a good place for a man who is "down and out," but willing to work and behave himself, keep sober and attempt to get on his feet again. Any man is admitted to no matter what his record may be and the officials try to make the surroundings as pleasant and comfortable as possible with books, music, games and entertainments and thus try to keep the men from the saloon. The home, which was started less than a year ago now has about 600 members who have taken the pledge to abstain from intoxicating liquors.

DEFENDS THE DEMOCRATS

Lieut. Gov. Walsh Says Reforms They Advocated Now a Fact—Big Rally at Attleboro

ATTLEBORO, Oct. 10.—A big democratic rally was held last night in Armory hall, this town. There was a large attendance. Judge Phillip E. Brady presided.

The speakers were Lieut. Gov. David I. Walsh, candidate for governor; Sec'y of State Frank J. Donahue, Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston, candidate for treasurer; Frank H. Pope of Leominster, candidate for auditor; Richard P. Coughlin of Taunton, candidate for registrar; Edward P. Barry, candidate for lieutenant-governor; Thomas J. Boynton, candidate for attorney-general, and the local representative candidates, John Devlin and Hugh Gaffney.

Lieut. Gov. Walsh said among other things:

"As a poor man I am faced by one of the most exciting campaigns in the history of the state. I have been told that rallies, advertising and circulars to get out the vote would cost $25,000. I plead for an opportunity for poor as well as rich, and advocate forbidding all advertising and the stand that all cities and towns hire halls for rallies and that the state issue circulars setting forth candidates.

"A review of the democratic party platforms of Massachusetts is proof positive of the progressive tendency of our party at a time when those who now seek the confidence of the public because of what they promise along progressive lines were opposing, in and out of legislative halls, the very principles we advocated for years."

The speaker then reviewed the demands of the democratic state platforms of 1912 and 1918, and continued:

"The demand so emphatically made 16 years ago by our party for tariff reduction was finally accomplished on Oct. 3 last, when President Wilson signed the Underwood tariff bill.

"The demand for the establishment and maintenance by the government of a United States postal savings bank system has recently been recognized by the passing of the necessary legislation, and the people are now enjoying its benefits.

"The constitution of the United States was amended this present year providing for an income tax, and the measure signed by President Wilson on Oct. 3 established the method of taxing incomes.

"The election of United States senators by popular vote is now assured—the amendment to the constitution being ratified this year.

"Our emphasis on protest against the usurpation of power by the speaker of the house of representatives and our wisdom was justified by the extensive changes made in the rules of that legislative body.

"The eight-hour day which we then demanded has now for several years been incorporated in our public service, and the adoption of the workmen's compensation act three years ago removed the defense of assumption of risk which for years has prevented injured employees from recovering compensation.

"The independence of Cuba has been granted, the initiative and referendum reforms have steadily grown in popular favor and have been adopted in many states of the union and also in many of our municipalities.

"As far back as 1897 we favored legislation to encourage municipalities to establish their own systems of public utilities and declared for 'the public resumption of public functions which in private hands have subordinated public service to private profit.' The wisdom of this demand is now clearly seen and the extension of public control—especially to railroads and public service corporations—is constantly increasing.

"The direct primary which we demanded 15 years ago is now provided for in our own constitution, but there is yet legislation necessary to enlarge its scope and improve its application.

"We also advised the construction by the state of the Cape Cod canal and the time is coming when it will be seen that this advice should have been heeded.

"In view of this record of our party's foresight and progressiveness, why should any democratic hesitate in this contest to give his loyal and enthusiastic support to the democratic ticket?"

Returns to Boston From the Maine Woods Clad in Skins Must Close on Monday—License Commission Holds Meeting

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Wearing crude garments he had fashioned from skins of animals Joseph Knowles, a Boston artist, with a record of having lived two months in the wilds of Maine as a primitive man, having only such clothing, implements and food as nature supplied him, was accorded an ovation on returning to this city yesterday.

At least 3000 persons awaited his arrival on a Portland train at the North station at 12:15. Football tactics were necessary to force an exit from the terminal.

He was driven in an automobile to Newspaper Row, where another crowd was waiting, and then went to the common, where 5000 persons gathered in a drizzling rain and cheered him. Knowles mounted on the Parker Memorial handstand and made a brief address.

"I want you to know," he shouted, "that I appreciate the wonderful reception. All along the line people have been very kind. Thank you again."

"Come over here and talk to us," shouted some of those at one side of the handstand. "It would be impossible for me to shake hands with all of you," replied Knowles. "I am too tired after the train ride, but my heart is with you."

He showed himself for about 10 minutes. His face, shoulders and arms were deeply tanned. He did not look tired and appeared in perfect health.

Leaving the common Knowles was driven in an automobile to Cambridge to undergo a physical examination by Dr. Sargent of the Sargent gymnasium.

Mr. Knowles attended the Cambridge Y. M. C. A.'s opening last evening and fully 5000 people gathered to greet him. He was accompanied by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, who introduced him. He wore his bearskin covering his body and deerskin leggings. For more than half an hour Mr. Knowles related his experiences in the woods.

He described how he trapped and killed a bear, how he slew a deer and his various methods of catching fish without hooks and line. The bear he trapped in a lean-to, which he baited with fish. His greatest difficulty in skinning the bear was the cutting of the skin with sharp rocks. He said that for two weeks he was without any covering for his body, and the first few days it rained so hard that at times he thought he would have to give up the experiment.

His costume, he said, cost him $235, which he paid in furs for killing game out of season. He said he came out of the woods in Canada so that he would not be taken by the Maine game warden.

At the close of Mr. Knowles' talk Dr. Sargent bared the artist's back and called attention to the tough, yet velvety, condition of his skin after its exposure to all kinds of weather. He said the same condition prevailed among the "Breweries" at South Boston. The skin was in such perfect condition that heat or cold did not affect it.

Mr. Knowles held a short informal reception and was warmly greeted. Mayor Barry was among those to congratulate him upon his successful experiment.

who read the following original poem entitled "Into the Light."

Into the western darkness, piercing the night light,
Armed with a faith abiding, bearing aloft the light,
Fearful of naught but failure, filled with his purpose and the dawn, Christopher, great Christ-bearer, sailed for the dreamed-of-land.

Dreamer of dreams, some called him, chaser of phantoms, some,
Never from that mad sailing safe would his ships come home;
But with a spirit obeying more than a king's command,
Christopher, strong Christ-bearer, sailed for the western land.

Over the uncharted waters that prow he'd had cut before,
Straight on the line that his vision had laid to the uttermost shore,
Soul of a prophet audacious, and heart of a craven band,
Christopher, brave Christ-bearer, held for the western land.

What though the seas did buffet, or even the compass failed,
What though the night terrors quailed,
On through the light and the darkness, leading with master hand,
Christopher, bold Christ-bearer, swept toward the western land.

Set as the stars in their courses, changeless as unchanging tides,
Easing the hearts of the fearful, unmindful of aught but the desired,
Unmoved by all timid entreaties, unshaken by rebellious demand,
Christopher, firm Christ-bearer, drew near the western land.

Seventy suns had arisen, and seventy suns gone down,
And fear and doubt and misgiving, and cowardly mutiny and the dawn,
Have vanished, for, lo! at the dawn their eyes catch the virgin strand,
And Christopher, glad Christ-bearer, steps forth on the western land.

Won from the western darkness, won from primeval night,
Out of the womb of the ages, into the living light,
Planting the cross of redemption, the banner of Spain unfurled,

New York Giants, in the Ditch, Battle With Athletics at Philadelphia Today

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—With one team determined to even up the series and the other anxious to improve the advantage won yesterday the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics were prepared today to battle their hardest for the fourth game in the world series. Victory for the American league champions would mean that they would have only one more game to win to carry off the blue ribbon of the ball field while a defeat for the champions of the National league make it quite doubtful if they could recover sufficiently to win three straight and baseball fans.

Now that two of the New York pitchers have not defied at the hands of the Athletics Philadelphia fans were confident and believed the home boys would triumph today. The victory of young Bush, the ex-rookie, over the veteran Tesreau has measurably increased the optimism of the Athletic adherents as to the final result of the series.

Why It Is Wisest to Cure It as Promptly as Possible

Few rheumatic sufferers realize that their pains and aches are Nature's warning of more serious disease which is creeping upon them. The occasional rheumatic victim should realize that he has an excess of uric acid in his system and that that is only another name for the beginnings of kidney disease which is likely to develop into diabetes or Bright's Disease. The way to avoid this danger is to start driving out the uric acid at once. Glycol drives out uric acid in the natural way by stimulating the kidneys the better to perform their work, and it does this in an easy gentle way. Get it in liquid or tablet form at any drug-gists, 50 cents and $1.00.

Praises For Bush

All along the line of waiting fans at the grounds today could be heard praises of Leslie Bush and predictions that more of Mack's young pitchers would give a good account of themselves before the series ended.

Many of the Athletic adherents believed that Shawkey would be the pitching choice of the White Elephants' manager and figured that he would be as puzzling to the Giant batters as was Bush yesterday. Bender, however, was anxious to go in and there was a strong possibility that his wish might be gratified.

The Athletics have now faced the pitching of Marquard, Grandall, Mathewson and Tesreau, three of whom are the pick of New York's twirling staff, while the Giants have batted against Bender, Plank and Bush.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Body of Edward Avery of Bristol, Conn., Was Found Near Track

MILFORD, Conn., Oct. 10.—Beside the railroad tracks on Indian river today was found the body of Edward Avery, aged 27, of Bristol, Conn. Last night as the New York express for New Haven, pulled out of here two men tried to board it. Each got a hold on a Pullman car platform rail but the vestibule door was closed and the platform down. One man dropped off quickly but the other clung as the train was lost to view. This man retained his grip on the rail for nearly a mile and then was flung wide of the track and killed. Effects from the clothing pockets, including considerable money were found scattered along the tracks.

PEKING, Oct. 10.—The utmost success attended the first inauguration of a president of a republic in China today when Yuan Shi Kai was inducted into the office of chief executive. responsible for any accident that might occur.

For the first game of the series one householder said that he had made more than $100 by selling seats on his roof.

Fights For Positions

There were lively times around Shibe park in the early morning hours. More than 1000 fans were in line at 7 o'clock. In the shift of the night police detail to the day squads the police for a time lost control and there were free fights for positions in the lines. Strong men pulled weaker ones out of their places; boxes and boards were hurled about and there was a general mixing up before order was restored. At 9:20 o'clock the police estimated that seven thousand persons were waiting for the gates to open despite threatening weather.

Shibe park is situated in the residential part of the city and many complaints were made to the police of the snapping up of bread, milk, newspapers and doormats from the front doorsteps of the householders. The police picked up more than two dozen of the mats they found in the possession of the waiting fans but no arrests were made as the authorities could not prove who stole them. Two fruit stands on street corners near the grounds were broken open during the night and ransacked.

400 Policemen on Duty

Four hundred policemen who were detailed for the game were ordered out at 9 a. m., two hours earlier than usual.

Woman Lies Motionless in Boston Hospital— Identity Unknown

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Hearing and understanding all that is said to her, in the opinion of physicians, but unable to utter a sound or make a sign in response, an unknown woman lies motionless in the city hospital. Since she was brought there a week ago after being stricken while boarding a street car the physicians have made repeated attempts to have her indicate to them her identity or residence. Several times they have named over all the cities and towns in the state but not once has she moved a muscle in reply although the physicians believe she understood what they wanted to learn. Her illness is diagnosed as cerebral hemorrhage, causing paralysis of the body but leaving the brain unaffected.

When she protested that this unvaried diet had caused valvular leaks of the heart, her husband replied: "Beans are good for me and I guess they're good enough for you."

On Thursday of last week I opened my eighteenth store in Philadelphia, one of the most expensive pieces of property in the city of Philadelphia. I will occupy two floors, which will be a picture palace of mahogany, plate glass and mirrors, a proper setting for the finest and most complete line of woollens in the world.

THIS NEW ACQUISITION will mean that I will be in the style centre of the country. You must know that all styles start in Philadelphia and New York six months before you get them here, and the ready-made clothiers there are laughing at my nerve, coming to their town to sell custom clothing, but believe me, they knew I was there last Saturday. I TOOK ORDERS FOR 375 SUITS and OVERCOATS, and I won't sit around waiting until a customer comes in, as I intend to go out into the highways and byways to prove values, and when they buy of me they will get nothing but pure wool or worsted fabrics, and these values which are on my counters here in Lowell, are what I am showing in Philadelphia.

But what has that to do with you, MR. READER, you might ask, and in reply I say: "This is the eighteenth reason why you should trade with me here in Lowell; 75 per cent. of the woollen mills of the country are in New England, within 40 miles of city hall, Lowell."

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY I AM LIQUIDATING, and at liquidation prices I give you worsteds. WHERE CAN YOU BUY THE SHERRIFF MILL WORSTEDS AT MY PRICES? High grade, heavyweight, dark, all wool, double and twisted worsted suitings from Sherriff Mills of Fitchburg. Not a few pieces, but one hundred different styles. Why, the name guarantees quality.

I HAVE THE ROCKVILLE OVERCOATINGS—I have them in all their styles and quality; plaid backs, polo cloth, serges, blues, fancy kerseys and black meltons. I have more of them than any concern in the city; more than any woollen dealer. I want you to see them before you buy elsewhere. I am looking for a sensation on them, and I deserve the credit for being able to turn them out at popular prices.

REV. E. J. CORNELL, O. M. I.

MICHAEL J. BOYLE,
President of M. T. I.

Discussed at Observance of 123d Anniversary of His Birth — The M. T. I. Honors His Memory

The formal celebration of the 123d birthday anniversary of Rev. Theobald Mathew, the apostle of temperance, was held last night by the members of the Mathew Temperance Institute of this city at their rooms in Central street and consisted of a banquet, and program of speeches and music. It was a brilliant success and was attended by about 250 members of the society and invited guests.

A most tempting feast was served.

FOR BED SORES
USE COMFORT POWDER.
Caroline Angus, a trained nurse of New York City, says "Comfort Powder is a certain preventive and sure remedy for bed sores. I have used it in my practice for many years. It certainly keeps the skin comfortable, cures prickly heat, chafing and offensive perspiration. There is nothing equal to Comfort Powder for all skin soreness. Be sure you get the genuine with signature of E. S. Sykes on box."

enemy of domestic happiness, as you all know but no one knows better its terrible results than the parish priest who is forced constantly to come in contact with its victims, and who sees so much suffering caused by it every day. It is a devil which sooner or later, for a time at least, bites out and destroys all that is noble in man, the most treasured gifts of God, and makes him a beast.

As I glance about me and see this great and intelligent gathering of Mathew members and their guests, I wonder if possibly anyone could now ask "Will the Mathews perish? Will they go out of existence?" And the answer is most emphatically no. It is a long time since the Mathews have seen a brighter day than this, and I believe and hope that it will constitute a turning point in the existence of the society.

You must realize that nothing can be done without cooperation, without each of you abandoning individual prejudices and pride and working in conjunction for the one great object of the society, that of temperance. Your

BACKACHE A WARNING YOU SHOULD HEED

It is One of Nature's First Signs of Kidney Troubles, if Neglected Serious Diseases May Follow

When the kidneys are clogged up and inactive, nature has a way of warning you. Backache is one of the first symptoms. You may also be troubled with disagreeable, annoying bladder disorders; have attacks of lumbago or rheumatism; become nervous, tired and feel all worn out; puff swellings show under the eyes or in the feet and ankles; and many other symptoms are noticed. If they are neglected, dropsy, diabetes or Bright's Disease, which so often prove fatal, may result.

It is not only dangerous, but needless for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, when a little Croxone will quickly and surely end all such misery. There is no more effective remedy known for all such troubles than Croxone, because it reaches the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and cleans out the clogged up pores; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter and sift the poison out of the blood and drive it from the system. You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to end the worst backache, relieve rheumatic pains, or overcome urinary disorders.

watchword should be unity and harmony and you should pull together, realizing the great work you can do among the young men of the city. In spite of all else, remember that the great object of the society is to promote the cause of temperance. It is for you to do something practical that will benefit people and this impulse of the society will make you true disciples of Father Mathew and will be historic in its results.

Mr. Jas. Mealy then gave vocal selections with such delight to those present that he was forced to respond to encores. Mr. Richard Keenan presided at the piano and assisted materially in the excellent musical program.

The next speaker to be introduced was His Honor Mayor James E. O'Donnell and his address was as follows:

Members of the Mathew Temperance Institute:

It is indeed with feelings of pride and pleasure I come here to be among you on this occasion of the 123d anniversary of the birth of Father Mathew, the great apostle of temperance. It is fitting that you should do him honor, and it is just as fitting that as mayor of the city of Lowell, I should like to congratulate you on the splendid ideal you have set out to accomplish and to encourage you in your efforts for the uplift of the community. In my official capacity I may not come in touch directly with the work which you and kindred societies are doing because in the routine duties of my office I meet only the practical, the unromantic, the matter of fact. But I am deeply conscious of the fact that underneath the prosaic run of daily events, societies such as the Mathew Temperance Institute are doing a wonderful work—work that cannot be measured by statistics or scientific weighing, but a work that is regenerating the souls of men. There are many who are not heroic enough or self-sacrificing enough to belong to your society, but no man worthy of the name fails to honor and respect you and your purpose in his heart of hearts.

It is superfluous for me to speak to you of the great patriot and preacher whose anniversary we celebrate tonight. Every loyal Mathew knows the leading facts of his life and work, and you are all loyal Mathews. You are aware how in the comparative obscurity of a simple and solitary existence he dreamed his great dream of a world wide temperance movement which carried his name into every part of the globe and made the world stop and listen. You all remember how from the simple confines of a small parish his personal magnetism and saintly sincerity spread and drew millions to hear him until he killed a fire of righteousness, the flames of which are not quenched after the passing of a century. The men and the works of Father Mathew are alive and powerful today. They live because his motives were lofty and his words sincere. The greatest proof of his power lies in the fact that you are here tonight, faithful to his memory and pledged to carry on by your noble example the work he founded so ably and so securely.

In these days we are only too familiar with so-called apostles who come among us to kindle fires that often are fires of destruction. We hear on all sides the misleading appeals of the agitator who would destroy the ecologic and social security of the nation. Our ears are offended by appeals to passion and prejudice instead of reason. But we must not be misled by them. They live their day but it is a brief one. Time quickly pierces the shallow pretence that hides their motives and reveals them in their true character. Contrast with them an apostle such as Father Mathew whose efforts were nobly unselfish. At the beginning of his mission he was met by distrust and doubt and strong opposition. His sincerity and his motives were sometimes questioned. But they have stood the test of time and shine brighter with the passing of years.

When he paid his famous visit to America he was received as a great benefactor of humanity and in our city library his name is now listed with those of the world's greatest workers for good.

Members of the Mathew Temperance Institute. You bear a great and lofty name and your aims are worthy of it. Your influence was ennobling in the Lowell of the past; it is strong in the Lowell of the present; it will be still stronger in the Lowell of the future. I shall always be glad to meet you collectively and individually and I feel that as mayor of Lowell I could be engaged in no nobler task tonight than urging you to persevere in the good work in which you are engaged. I appreciate your cordial invitation to be here with you, and I wish you the greatest possible success and prosperity, now and always.

Rev. E. J. Cornell, O. M. I.
Rev. Edmund J. Cornell, O. M. I. was then introduced by the toastmaster and he spoke on the life and work of Father Mathew, his words being highly interesting and inspiring. In part he said: "There are two kinds of courage; there is that which is called physical courage by which a man is enabled to face danger without quailing, and there is moral courage in-inspired by which men are empowered to strive for one moral object in spite of the opposition, criticism and scorn which is heaped upon them from all sides. Father Mathew was a man of the greatest moral courage. He was able to see one distinguished man said to start before the devil and tell him that he was the devil. In this instance, the devil was rum, for it is truly a devil as all will admit. Father Mathew rose up and took his stand against this demon, as history tells us and as our presence here maintains, and in doing so he exhibited the qualities of the morally brave man.

Rev. Theobald Mathew received his first call to the cause of temperance in the year 1835. He was not, as is thought, the originator of the plan which he followed. The true originator of the temperance movement was a Quaker, William Martin, a great temperance advocate. He started a society, but was unable to reach the majority of the people. So on one occasion he appealed to Fr. Mathew for aid in this matter and the latter finally impressed, issued a call for a public meeting, this being attended by the Quaker and his band of followers. Together with William Martin, he went through Cork, making speeches, and in five months he had a society of 150,000 members. He went to all cities and towns, with banners, parades, etc., organized the people into a great temperance society. Everywhere his work was pronounced to be a mighty miracle. Even orangemen turned out and displaying their banners, marched in the parades organized by Fr. Mathew and joined his society. After having covered practically every inch of Irish soil, he was called across the sea and spoke and organized the people in Glasgow, London, Liverpool and other places with not only the same, but increasing success. Even the enemies of his faith praised the work which he was doing for temperance. One man said that he would place Father Mathew, the apostle of temperance, immediately after the 12 apostles of Christ. This latter was the statement of a Protestant divine. More than 7,000,000, it is estimated, signed the roster of Father Mathew's society at the time when he left these shores, the society comprised 800,000 members here. It is now for us who claim his name to keep up the work which he began. We must be enthused with the same spirit and must work in union and with earnestness. If we accomplish this, then we shall be true and worthy successors of Fr. Mathew and perpetuate his name, we shall accomplish good for men of the city and of the community at large.

HUGH J. MOLLOY,

Commissioner James E. Donnelly delighted the gathering with several of his inimitable Scotch songs after which Congressman John Jacob Rogers was introduced. His subject was "Father Mathew in Washington." In part he said:

John Jacob Rogers
"Mr. Chairman. The text to which I have been called upon to respond is so vast in its dimensions, so far beyond my feeble powers, even to begin to illuminate, that I shall ask your indulgence this evening in discussing a topic perhaps not too remotely suggested by the toast itself.

"You all well know that that great man for whom your society is named made a journey from his native land to this country in the year 1842, remaining on our shores for some 15 months. Perhaps not all of you know of the signal honors which were accorded him while he was in Washington during December of the year 1842. My subject then, for the few moments which are accorded me, is 'Father Mathew in Washington.'

"In order that we may understand the nature of his reception in Washington it will be necessary to recall what befell him in Boston whether he came shortly after his arrival in America on July 2, 1842. At that time, as you all will recall, the country was in the throes of the slavery problem. Although the Civil War was still 12 years distant on the horizon the murmurings had for a considerable time been growing louder and louder and many keen observers even at this time foresaw that strife would be the inevitable result. The minds of men, the columns of newspapers were filled with the pros and cons of this great question.

"In Boston, the abolitionists, led by William Lloyd Garrison and others, were even now at fever heat in their zeal for the cause of the abolition of slavery. Scarcely had Father Mathew arrived in Boston when he received a letter of invitation to be present at a meeting to celebrate 'The anniversary of the most thrilling event of the 19th century, the abolition of slavery in the West Indies.' In this letter of invitation he was reminded of the fact that, in 1842, he with thousands of others had signed an address from the people of Ireland to their countrymen in America, in which the latter were called upon to treat the colored people as their equals, to hate slavery, and to cling to the abolitionists. He was also asked therein to improve every suitable opportunity while he remained in the country to hear a clear and unequivocal testimony, both in public and private, against the enslavement of any portion of the human family.

"On the 27th of July the day after he received this letter, William Lloyd Garrison waited upon him in the Adams house in Boston in the endeavor to secure his acceptance of the invitation. You will at once observe the extreme embarrassment of the position in which Fr. Mathew was thus put. His mission to this country was of course one of temperance. As a great philanthropist, it could not fail, of Catholic priest; but, being here to promote the cause of temperance, I should not be justified in turning aside from my mission, for the purpose of subverting the cause of Catholicism.

"I think we shall all admit that this reply was sane and indeed inevitable; yet the abolitionists' society rose as usual to denounce Father Mathew's attitude. Garrison, for example, said, in bitterness of heart, in reference to this interview: 'Not a syllable fell from his lips, expressive of pleasure that the American slave has his faithful and devoted advocates—or of joy in the emancipation of 800,000 bondsmen in the British Isles. It is with men in the British Isles that I lay these great sorrow of heart that I lay these

"The attitude of the abolitionists continually rose up to plague Father Mathew in his mission in this country. But there was also a Charybdis to this Scylla. The anti-slavery memorial which I have already referred to as having been signed by Father Mathew in 1842 was incessantly referred to by the pro-slavery advocates of the south; and as of course Father Mathew did not take any position in favor of slavery, he was throughout his journeyings in this country subjected to the abuse both of the radical pro-slavery and radical anti-slavery parties.

"With this preliminary explanation I can perhaps more intelligently describe the reception accorded to Father Mathew in Washington, where he arrived on December 15, 1842. On the following day, when the house of representatives assembled at noon, Representative Baker of Illinois obtained recognition and said that he held in his hand a resolution which he desired to offer and which, he was sure, would receive the unanimous consent of the house of representatives. The resolution was: 'Resolved, that the Reverend Father Mathew be respectfully invited to take a seat upon the floor of this house.'

"The question on the resolution was taken and was decided in the affirmative, apparently without a dissenting vote. Then in the words of the Congressional Globe, which was the official reporter for this, the 31st congress of the United States: 'The door-keeper of the late house of representatives, Robert E. Hornor, Esq., was directed to see the order of the house executed. Thereupon, the Rev. Theobald Mathew was conducted to a seat within the bar. The honor thus accorded was the highest which could be conferred by the house of representatives upon the subject of another country.

"A similar resolution was introduced into the senate by Senator Walker, of Wisconsin, the same day, but on motion of Senator Clemens of Alabama, went over for further consideration until the following day. The debate in the senate on this resolution when it came up for action on Dec. 20, is one of the most noteworthy in the preliminary passages of the great movement which resulted in the war of secession. The debate takes up 25 long columns in the Congressional Globe. It was participated in by 21 senators out of 40 who were then members of the body. As I shall explain in a moment, from the very outset the debate unfortunately assumed a pro- or anti-slavery tinge, and the real merits of the case

LOWELL MEN ATTENDED Meeting of State Association of Boards of Health at New Bedford—Clambake Before Meeting

Dr. Thomas F. Carroll, John H. Drury and Agent Bates of the Lowell board of health attended the regular meeting of the Massachusetts Association of boards of health held at New Bedford yesterday. The meeting was attended by health officials from all over the state and after an automobile trip about the city the visitors were taken to Padanaram where they enjoyed one of the clambakes for which that section is famous.

At the municipal building the visitors were welcomed by Mayor Ashby, who conducted them through the building and through the public library, as well as pointing out to them the principal buildings in the business and civic center.

The clambake at Padanaram was held in Woodhouse and Stetson's pavilion, and immediately following the business meeting of the association was held. Professor W. T. Sedgewick, head of the department on hygiene and public health of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was the principal speaker of the day.

The Massachusetts Association of Boards of Health is an organization now entered into its second quarter century of life. It was the first of such societies that sought to pass the experiences of one health officer to others, and in some of the states such SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Oct. 10.—Twenty thousand excited Philadelphia fans and some hundred anxious New Yorkers came out to Shibe park today to see the New York National league champions engage the Philadelphia Athletics in the fourth game of the world's baseball series. A victory for the Philadelphia club today would make it only necessary for them to win another game to capture the baseball honors for 1913, while the Giants would have to reel off three straight games to win the series.

Still another murky day was furnished for the sport. Dull clouds screened the sun, giving indications of showery weather, while now and then a vagrant drop of rain fell. The diamond was in fine condition and the players said it was lighting fast, but the outer meadows were sodden and slow.

Demaree Confident
The New York boys came on the field and Manager McGraw told "Steamer" Demaree to be ready to take up the pitching burden and the former Mobile moundman replied: "Give me half the lead the Athletics gave Bush yesterday and we go back to Broadway winners tonight."

Some of the Athletics players admitted that Demaree would probably prove a puzzling proposition because of his peculiar delivery.

The crowd filled the unserved stands long before the players came on the field, but the reserved sections filled slowly. It was not until the fielding practice had ended that the last of the seats was occupied.

There was a rift in the clouds a little after one o'clock, and with the breeze coming out of the west in gusts there were better prospects for an uninterrupted game by rainfall.

Fletcher Fined $50
Complaint was made to the national commission today by Umpire Connolly that Fletcher used profane and obscene language to him after Shaffer had been called out at second in the ninth inning of yesterday's game.

The commission decided to fine Fletcher $50 for his offense. The commission also decided to permit him to play in the world's series.

The Batteries
For today's game:
Bender and Schang for Philadelphia; Demaree and McLean for New York.

Snodgrass went out to play center, while Shaffer replaced Herzog at third; Herzog not having made a hit in the three previous games. The lineup:

First Inning
Snodgrass popped out to Baker. Doyle went out to high one to Strunk. Barry threw out Fletcher. It was a quickly played inning. No runs; no hits; no errors.
Murdock died out to Snodgrass. O'Driscoll shot a long hit into right field for three bases. He smashed the first ball pitched. The New York players gathered around Demaree to encourage him. With Eddie Collins and a run, likely the crowd roared itself hoarse. Demaree, smiling, pitched a ball to Collins. The second pitch fouled off. O'Driscoll was out at the plate when Merkle took Collins' grounder and threw to McLean, who tagged the runner as he slid into the plate. Collins stole second, while Demaree held the ball for a minute. Demaree then threw to Merkle, whose throw to second was too late to catch Eddie. Baker out on a high foul to Shaffer. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Second Inning
Burns died out to Murphy. Shaffer fanned. Bender finding his weak spot by keeping the ball around Shaffer's neck. Murray was hit on the arm by a pitched ball and went to first, growing at Bender. McLean singled to right, sending Murray to third. Merkle fouled out to McInnis, who took the ball over the Giant's dugout. No runs; one hit; no errors.

McInnis got a Texas leaguer to center, which the limping Snodgrass could not reach. It was a lucky hit for McInnis. Strunk out, sacrificing. Demaree to Merkle. Demaree used a slow drop ball on the outside corner of the plate. Merkle dropped Barry's foul after a good run. The official scorer gave it an error. McInnis scored on Barry's long two base drive to left field. Barry claimed that Merkle interfered with him as he rounded first base, but the claim was not allowed. Schang walked after Demaree had two strikes on him. Bender died out to Burns. Murphy died out to Snodgrass. One run, two hits, one error.

Third Inning
Demaree died out to Murphy. Snodgrass out, hunting, Bender to McInnis. Doyle died out to Strunk. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Herzog went out to play third base and Shaffer went back to centerfield, replacing Snodgrass, whose strained leg began to bother him again. Demaree took O'Driscoll's hopper and threw him out at first. Burns caught Collins' fly. Doyle took care of Baker, throwing him out at first. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Fourth Inning
Fletcher offered vigorous objection when Umpire Egan called a strike on him. Then he died out to Collins. Burns popped up a fly to Baker. Bender appeared to have more "sizzle" than during his first game against the Giants. The Indian broke his curves around the bases and then shot fast once shoulder-high across the plate. Shaffer fanned out for the second time and angrily pitched his bat the bench. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Doyle threw out McInnis. Strunk bounced a hit off Herzog's legs. McLean almost caught Strunk off first by a quick throw to Merkle. Barry singled to left and Strunk took third. On Shaffer's throw to catch Strunk at third, Barry went to second.

The New York infield then drew in. Strunk and Barry scored on Schang's single to center. Schang took second on Shaffer's throw to the plate to catch Barry. Schang went to third on a passed ball. Schang scored when Merkle made a muffed of Bender's grounder. Murphy popped out to Doyle. O'Driscoll singled to center. Bender going to second. McLean threw out Collins at first. Three runs; four hits; one error.

Fifth Inning

GAMBOA DIKE WAS BLOWN UP

Culebra Cut at Panama, Removing Last Obstruction

PANAMA, Oct. 10.—The Gamboa dike was exploded at 2 p. m. today. The electric spark that set off the blast was sent forward by President Wilson from Washington. The occurrence was in every way successful.

The Atlantic and Pacific oceans were not actually united today when the Gamboa dike was destroyed and the waters of Gatun lake were allowed to flow into Culebra cut as lake and cut are at the normal surface of the water, 55 feet above the level of the sea.

The destruction of the Gamboa dike, however, removes the last obstruction to the navigation of the greater part of the canal by light draught vessels and opens up direct connection between the great Gatun lake, which already is practically ready to discharge vessels into the Atlantic through Gatun locks and the Pacific division. The waters of the lake rushing through the broken dike at Gamboa, sweep through Culebra cut until they reach the great locks at Pedro Miguel, which mark the beginning of the descent from the top level of the canal to the Pacific.

The first craft to enter will be the greater steam dredges whose work is to clear and deepen the channel. The presence of small craft in portions of the canal, however, does not as yet mean ocean to ocean navigation. This will first be possible when each link in the canal has sufficient depth of water and all the locks are working.

In the intermediate stages, however, navigation may be effected in local lengths of the canal and to some degree may be extended from length to length along the whole waterway.

Today's event served to demonstrate the nearness of the canal to the operating stage.

Gamboa dike was built in 1908 to hold Chagres river in check during its turbulent period and to prevent its waters from entering the nine-mile long section of Culebra cut and delaying the work of the steam shovels.

It was important solely from its location. Twenty-four miles to the north is the mighty Gatun dam, which to the uninitiated appears to be nothing more than a low mountain range stretched across a valley keeping the waters of Gatun lake from escaping to the sea. These two barriers, one of the greatest man-made dams in history, and the other a low ridge of earth and rock have kept in check the rising waters of Gatun lake. Today they are only one and the waters of the lake now extend from Pedro Miguel rock on the south to Gatun locks on the north, a distance of about 33 miles, approximately two-thirds of the canal's length. Drills were at work on the dike near the close of the month of September, and it was aimed over with 1,500 holes charged with dynamite. The barrier contained about 900,000 cubic yards of material. Only once since it was built had it failed in its purpose. This was during the big freshet in the Chagres river of November, 1909, when the water came so close to the top that it was deemed advisable to open the sluice in the gates and let the cut with water in order to avoid danger of heavy washing.

Since that time the overtopping of the dike was never even threatened.

SEVERED HIS JUGULAR VEIN

Michael Kelley, 45, of Augusta, Me., committed suicide this afternoon at the lodging house of Charles Markarian, 85 Gorham street. He first cut a vein in his right wrist and then severed his jugular vein with a pocket knife.

Kelley arrived here Tuesday night and secured a room at Markarian's lodging house, which is in charge of John Damvragian. He went out every morning and returned in the evening. This morning, however, at 11:30 o'clock the manager of the house asked Kelley to get out of his room so as to give him a chance to clean the place. Kelley said he would in about one hour.

Damvragian paid no more attention to him, although he seemed under the influence of liquor, but at 1 o'clock he returned to the room to see if Kelley had gone out, and there he found him lying on his bed with a deep gash in the throat and another in the right wrist. In his right hand was clutched a common ordinary jackknife, and the bed was covered with blood. Life was extinct.

The police were notified and Inspector Walsh was detailed to the house. Upon searching the man's pockets he found a card bearing the inscription of the National Soldiers' home, Augusta, Me. It was a furlough card issued on Sept. 22 and good until Dec. 23. It was also found that deceased was a veteran of the Massachusetts Marine Corps.

going to third. Cooper ran for McLean. Schang almost caught Cooper napping off first with a snap throw. Merkle fanned. McCormick batted in place of Demaree. O'Driscoll caught McCormick's fly after a dead run toward the diamond. It put off an almost sure hit stealing, Schang to Collins. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Marquard now pitching for New York. Baker fanned. Marquard kept the ball on the far corner of the plate for Baker and very low. Marquard threw out McInnis. Marquard lost control and Strunk walked on four pitched balls. Barry got a two base hit. Strunk going to third. Burns made a splendid try for the ball on the run but he over ran it. Strunk and Barry scored on Schang's single to center. The Athletics fans cried excitedly: "Put it in, Marquard!" Marquard threw out Bender. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning
Barry threw out Herzog. Doyle beat the air vainly and went out on strikes. As Fletcher came to the plate he jokingly made a move as if to hit Umpire Egan on the head with his bat. Fletcher out a fly to Strunk. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Doyle tossed out Murphy at first. O'Driscoll struck out. When throwing him out at first, Doyle popped out to Fletcher. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Seventh Inning
Wilson went in with Marquard to catch for New York. Wilson fanned. An infielder, it was the Giants' third out of the game, Wilson fired out to Collins. It was a muffed throw that the Athletics fans were sure to get. Doyle took a fly. Marquard went to first. Doyle to second. Wilson struck out. Doyle and Murray stranded. Doyle died out to Schang. Three runs; three hits; no errors.

Eighth Inning
Herzog singled. This is the Giant's third baseman's first hit during the series. Herzog was forced at second when Collins took Doyle's grounder and tossed to Barry. Doyle was forced at second when Bender took Fletcher's hot smash and tossed to Barry. It was a good stop by Bender and shut off a hit. Fletcher scored on Burns' double to left. Burns scored on Shaffer's three base hit to right. The Giants were hitting savagely for Bender appeared to be flinching. Collins threw out Murphy. Two runs; three hits; no errors.

Barry died out to Murray. Schang walked. Bender died out to Murray. Schang was forced at second when Doyle took Murphy's grounder and tossed to second. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Ninth Inning
Crandall batted for Wilson. Collins threw out Crandall. Marquard died out to Murphy. Marquard batted in place of Marquard. Marquard died out to Schang.

SULZER UNFIT FOR OFFICE SAYS PARKER

A Second Robert Bruce Says Herrick—
—Trial Nearing End

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 10.—In speeches delivered today before the last hour of impeachment, now in its last hours of existence, Governor Sulzer was alternately described as an arch-criminal hiding behind his wife's skirts and as a man that had been impeached because he had not played the political game.

Judge Alton Parker speaking for the board of managers, assailed the governor bitterly. Every disguise has been torn from his back," Judge Parker said, "from the petticoat in which he trusted for safety to the armor of defiance with which he threatened to attack and expose a political leadership to which we have found him suing for a merciful obliteration of his misdeeds and offering the bribe of submission."

Judge Herrick, a counselor of the old school, began speaking slowly and distinctly. The last word was being said for William Sulzer.

It was not Sulzer the man, nor his ethics, that Herrick defended. His was an argument intended to convince that the governor faced political ruin because he had played the game contrary to the rules of those who would have voted by controlling him and that the end fought for by the impeachment managers was not supported by the law and the evidence.

It was in order to shield his wife, Judge Herrick said, that Sulzer had attempted to obtain political influence to stop the trial.

"There are some things," he said, "that a decent, manly man cannot do to save himself, some things that a man of even low ethical standards cannot shield himself by. When would you do that? Run the risk of losing the empty honor of being governor or to lose the respect of every decent and honorable man in the whole United States by saving yourself at the expense of the honor and integrity of one you are bound to love and protect?"

Former Sen. Brackett says Sulzer could teach stillwell crime.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 10.—The trial of William Sulzer, the impeached governor of New York, was brought up to the stage of the balloting of the judges today by former State Senator Brackett, who closed the case for the board of impeachment managers. In the course of it he asserted that former State Senator Stephen J. Stillwell, who is now serving a term in Sing Sing prison as a barterer of his legislative vote and influence, "might have sat at the feet of Gov. Sulzer and learned crime."

DEFENDS THE DEMOCRATS

ATTLEBORO, Oct. 10.—A big democratic rally was held last night in the Armory hall, this town. There was a large attendance. Judge Philip E. Brady presided.

The speakers were Lieut.-Gov. David I. Walsh, candidate for governor; Secy. of State Frank J. Donahue, Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston, candidate for treasurer; Frank H. Pope of Leominster, candidate for auditor; Richard P. Coughlin of Taunton, candidate for registrar; Edward L. Barry, candidate for lieutenant-governor; Thomas J. Boynton, candidate for attorney-general; and the local representative candidates, John Devlin and Hugh Gaffney.

Lieut.-Gov. Walsh said among other things:

"As a poor man I am faced by one of the most exciting campaigns in the history of the state. I have been told that rallies, advertising and circulars to get out the vote would cost $25,000. I plead for an opportunity for poor as well as rich, and advocate forbidding all advertising and the stand that all cities and towns hire halls for rallies and that the state issue circulars setting forth candidates.

"A review of the democratic party platforms of Massachusetts is proof positive of the progressive tendency of our party at a time when those who now seek the confidence of the public because of what they promise along progressive lines were opposing, in and out of legislative halls, the very principles we advocated for years."

The speaker then reviewed the demands of the democratic state platforms of 1897 and 1898, and continued:

"The demand so emphatically made 15 years ago by our party for tariff reduction was finally accomplished on Oct. 3 last, when President Wilson signed the Underwood tariff bill.

"The demand for the establishment and maintenance by the government of a United States postal savings bank system has recently been recognized by the passing of the necessary legislation, and the people are now enjoying its benefits.

"The constitution of the United States was amended this present year providing for an income tax, and the measure signed by President Wilson on Oct. 3 established the method of taxing incomes.

"The election of United States senators by popular vote is now assured—the amendment to the constitution being ratified this year.

"Our emphatic protest against the usurpation of power by the speaker of the house of representatives and our wisdom was justified by the extensive changes made in the rules of that legislative body.

"The eight-hour day which we then demanded has now for several years been incorporated in our public service, and the adoption of the workmen's compensation act three years ago removed the defense of assumption of risk which for years has prevented injured employes from recovering compensation.

"The independence of Cuba has been granted, the initiative and referendum reforms have steadily grown in popular favor and have been adopted in many states of the union and also in many of our municipalities.

"As far back as 1897 we favored legislation to encourage municipalities to establish their own systems of public utilities and declared for 'the public resumption of public functions which in private hands have subordinated public service to private profit.' The wisdom of this demand is now clearly seen and the extension of public control—especially to railroads and public service corporations—is constantly increasing.

"The direct primary which we demanded 15 years ago is now provided for in our own commonwealth, but there is yet legislation necessary to enlarge its scope and improve its application.

"We also advised the construction by the state of the Cape Cod canal and the time is coming when it will be seen that this advice should have been heeded.

"In view of this record of our party's foresight and progressiveness, why should any democrat hesitate in this contest to give his loyal and enthusiastic support to the democratic ticket?"

CHEER KNOWLES LIQUOR SALOONS

Returns to Boston From the Maine Woods Clad in Skins

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Wearing crude garments he had fashioned from skins of animals Joseph Knowles, a Boston artist, with a record of having lived two months in the wilds of Maine as a primitive man, having only such clothing, implements and food as nature supplied him, was accorded an ovation on returning to this city yesterday.

At least 2000 persons awaited his arrival on a Portland train at the North station at 12:15. Football tactics were necessary to force an exit from the terminal.

He was driven in an automobile to Newspaper Row, where another crowd was waiting, and then went to the common, where 5000 persons gathered in a drizzling rain and cheered him. Knowles, mounted on the Parker Memorial bandstand and made a brief address.

"I want you to know," he shouted, "that I appreciate this wonderful reception. All along the line people have been very kind. Thank you again."

"Come over here and talk to us," shouted some of those at one side of the bandstand. "It would be impossible for me to shake hands with all of you," replied Knowles. "I am too tired after the train ride, but my heart is with you."

He showed himself for about 10 minutes. His face, shoulders and arms were deeply tanned. He did not look tired and appeared in perfect health. Leaving the common Knowles was driven in an automobile to Cambridge to undergo a physical examination by Dr. Sargent of the Sargent gymnasium.

Mr. Knowles attended the Cambridge Y. M. C. A.'s opening last evening and fully 5000 people gathered to greet him. He was accompanied by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, who introduced him. He wore his hairy skin covering his body and a deer skin leggings. For more than half an hour Mr. Knowles related his experiences in the woods.

He described how he trapped and killed a bear, how he slew a deer and his various methods of catching fish without hooks and lines. The bear he trapped in a lean-to, which he baited with fish. His greatest difficulty in skinning the bear was the cutting of the skin with sharp rocks. He said that for two weeks he was without any covering for his body, and the first few days it rained so hard that at times he thought he would have to give up the experiment.

His costume, he said, cost him $205, which he paid in furs for killing game out of season. He said he came out of the woods in Canada so that he would not be taken by the Maine game warden.

At the close of Mr. Knowles' talk Dr. Sargent begged the artists' back and called attention to the tough, yet velvety, condition of his skin after its exposure to all kinds of weather. He said the same condition prevailed among the "Brownies" at South Boston. The skin was in such perfect condition that heat or cold did not affect it.

Mr. Knowles held a short informal reception and was warmly greeted. Mayor Barry was among those to congratulate him upon his successful experiment.

who read the following original poem entitled "Into the Light."

Into the western darkness, piercing primeval night, Armed with a faith abiding, bearing aloft the light, Fearful of naught but failure, filled with his purpose grand, Christopher, great Christ-bearer, sailed for the dreamed-of land.

Dreamer of dreams, some called him, chaser of phantoms, some, Never from that mad sailing, safe would his ships come home, But with a spirit obeying more than a king's command, Christopher, strong Christ-bearer, sailed for the western land.

Over the uncharted waters that grow ne'er had cut before, Straight on the line that his vision had laid to the uttermost shore, Soul of a project audacious, and heart of a craven hand, Christopher, brave Christ-bearer, held for the western land.

What though the seas did buffet, or even the compass failed, What though the frightened sailors from undefined terrors quailed, On through the light and the darkness, leading with master hand, Christopher, bold Christ-bearer, swept toward the western land.

Set as the stars in their courses, changeless and unchanging tides, Easing the hearts of the fearful, un-mindful of scorn that derides, Unmoved by all timid entreaty, un-stirred by rebellious demand, Christopher, firm Christ-bearer, drew near the western land.

Seventy suns had arisen, and seventy suns gone down, And fear and doubt and misgiving, and cowardly mutiny's frown Have vanished, for, lo! at the dawning their eyes catch the virgin strand, And Christopher, glad Christ-bearer, steps forth on the western land.

Won from the western darkness, won from primeval night, Out of the womb of the ages, into the living light, Planting the cross of redemption, the banner of Spain unfurled, Christopher, son of the morning, gave man the western world.

FOURTH GAME OF SERIES

Battle With Athletics at Philadelphia Today

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—With one team determined to even up the series and the other anxious to improve the advantage won yesterday the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics were prepared today to battle their hardest for the fourth game in the world series. Victory for the American league champions would mean that they would have only one more game to win to carry off the blue ribbon of the ball field while a defeat for the champions of the National league make it quite doubtful if they could recover sufficiently to win three straight and baseball fame.

Now that two of the New York pitchers have met defeat at the hands of the Athletics Philadelphia fans were confident and believed the home boys would triumph today. The victory of young Bush, the ex-rookie, over

Cure It as Promptly
as Possible

Few rheumatic sufferers realize that their pains and aches are Nature's warning of more serious disease which is creeping upon them. The occasional rheumatic victim should realize that he has an excess of uric acid in his system and that that is only another name for the beginnings of kidney disease which is likely to develop into diabetes or Bright's Disease. The way to avoid this danger is to start driving out the uric acid at once. Gyrocol drives out uric acid in the natural way by stimulating the kidneys the better to perform their work, and it does this in an easy gentle way. Get it in liquid or tablet form at any drug-gists, 50 cents and $1.00.

the veteran Tesreau has measurably increased the optimism of the Athletic adherents as to the final result of the series.

Praises For Bush

All along the line of waiting fans at the grounds today could be heard praises of Leslie Bush and predictions that more of Mack's young pitchers would give a good account of themselves before the series ended.

Many of the Athletic adherents believed that Shawkey would be the pitching choice of the White Elephants' manager and figured that he would be as puzzling to the Giant batters as was Bush yesterday. Bender, however, was anxious to go in and there was a strong possibility that his wish might be granted.

The Athletics have now faced the pitching of Marquard, Crandall, Mathewson and Tesreau, three of whom are the pick of New York's twirling staff, while the Giants have batted against Bender, Plunkard and Bush.

Not Worrying About Pitchers

Manager Mack has Shawkey and Brown in reserve while Manager McGraw has Demaree, but neither manager has given any intimation who would be used. Mack said he was not worrying a bit about pitchers.

"The result of yesterday's game bore out my claim that we had young pitchers who could be compared to any of the Giants' staff," said the Athletic manager. "Of course a club that is equipped with hitters does not have to depend so much on pitching to win. Mathewson twirled a wonderful game against us but I do not think one pitcher can win a world's series."

Despite the seeming advantage held by Philadelphia in the two victories to one for the Giants, Manager McGraw appeared not at all dismayed and declared his men had just begun to fight.

Marquard Anxious

"It is believed by many here that McGraw would depend on 'Steamer' Demaree to lead his team to victory, although Marquard, who was taken out of the game after pitching five innings in the opening contest in New York, was said to be anxious to redeem himself and may be given an opportunity."

As a result of the overcrowding of the roots of residences bordering Shibe park on two sides while Wednesday's game was on, the chief of the bureau of building inspection served notice on the property owners warning them that such crowding was dangerous and that the owners would be held strictly responsible for any accident that might occur.

For the first game of the series one householder said that he had made more than $100 by selling seats on his roof.

Fights For Positions

There were lively times around Shibe park in the early morning hours. More than 1000 fans were in line at 7 o'clock. In the shift of the night police detail to the day squads the police for a time lost control and there were free fights for positions in the lines. Strong men pulled weaker ones out of their places; boxes and boards were hurled about and there was a general mixing up before order was restored. At 9:30 o'clock the police estimated that seven thousand persons were waiting for the gates to open despite threatening weather.

Shibe park is situated in the residential part of the city and many complaints were made to the police of the snapping up of bread, milk, newspapers and doormats, from the front doorsteps of the householders. The police picked up more than two dozen of the mats they found in the possession of the waiting fans but no arrests were made as the authorities could not prove who stole them. Two fruit stands on street corners near the grounds were broken open during the night and ransacked.

400 Policemen on Duty

Four hundred policemen who were detailed for the game were ordered out at 9 a. m., two hours earlier than usual.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Body of Edward Avery
Found Near Track

MILFORD, Conn., Oct. 10.—Beside the railroad tracks at Indian river today was found the body of Edward Avery, aged 27, of Bristol, Conn. Last night as the New York express for New Haven, pulled out of here two men tried to board it. Each got a hold on a Pullman car platform rail but the vestibule door was closed and the platform down. One man dropped off quickly but the other clung as the train was lost to view. This man retained his grip on the rail for nearly a mile and then was flung wide of the track and killed. Effects from the clothing pockets, including considerable money were found scattered along the tracks.

in Boston Hospital—
Identity Unknown

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Hearing and understanding all that is said to her, in the opinion of physicians, but unable to utter a sound or make a sign in response, an unknown woman lies motionless in the city hospital. Since she was brought there a week ago after being stricken while boarding a street car the physicians have made repeated attempts to have her indicate to them her identity or residence. Several times they have named over all the cities and towns in the state but not once has she moved a muscle in reply although the physicians believe she understood what they wanted to learn. Her illness is diagnosed as cerebral hemorrhage, causing paralysis of the body but leaving the brain unaffected.

My Eighteenth Store

On Thursday of last week I opened my eighteenth store in Philadelphia, one of the most expensive pieces of property in the city of Philadelphia. I will occupy two floors, which will be a picture palace of mahogany, plate glass and mirrors, a proper setting for the finest and most complete line of woollens in the world.

THIS NEW ACQUISITION will mean that I will be in the style centre of the country. You must know that all styles start in Philadelphia and New York six months before you get them here, and the ready-made clothiers there are laughing at my nerve, coming to their town to sell custom clothing, but believe me, they knew I was there last Saturday. I TOOK ORDERS FOR 375 SUITS and OVERCOATS, and I won't sit around waiting until a customer comes in, as I intend to go out into the highways and byways to prove values, and when they buy of me they will get nothing but pure wool or worsted fabrics, and these values which are on my counters here in Lowell, are what I am showing in Philadelphia.

But what has that to do with you, MR. READER, you might ask, and in reply I say: "This is the eighteenth reason why you should trade with me here in Lowell; 75 per cent. of the woolen mills of the country are in New England, within 40 miles of city hall, Lowell."

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY I AM LIQUIDATING, and at liquidation prices I give you worsteds. WHERE CAN YOU BUY THE SHERRIFF MILL WORSTEDS AT MY PRICES? High grade, heavyweight, dark, all wool, double and twisted worsted suitings from Sherriff Mills of Fitchburg. Not a few pieces, but one hundred different styles. Why, the name guarantees quality.

I HAVE THE ROCKVILLE OVERCOATINGS—I have them in all their styles and quality; plaid backs, polo cloth, serges, blues, fancy kerseys and black meltons. I have more of them than any concern in the city; more than any woolen dealer. I want you to see them before you buy elsewhere. I am looking for a sensation on them, and I deserve the credit for being able to turn them out at popular prices.

FR. MATHEW'S GOOD WORK

REV. E. J. CORNELL, O. M. I.

MICHAEL J. DOYLE,
President of M. T. I.

Discussed at Observance of 123d Anniversary of His Birth — The M. T. I. Honors His Memory

The formal celebration of the 123d birthday anniversary of Rev. Theobald MatheW, the apostle of temperance, was held last night by the members of the Mathew Temperance Institute of this city at their rooms in Central street and consisted of a banquet, and program of speeches and music. It was a brilliant success and was attended by about 250 members of the society and invited guests.

A most tempting feast was served.

FOR BED SORES
USE COMFORT POWDER.
Caroline Angus, a trained nurse of New York City, says "Comfort Powder is a certain preventive and sure remedy for bed sores. I have used it in my practice for many years. It certainly keeps the sick comfortable, cures prickly heat, chafing and offensive perspiration. There is nothing equal to Comfort Powder for all skin soreness. Be sure you get the genuine with signature of E. S. Sykes on box."

starting shortly after 8 o'clock, and after this, the president of the society, Michael J. Doyle called to order and after a few words of welcome, introduced Supr. Hugh J. Molloy as toastmaster of the evening. There was some very fine speaking. Special mention should be made of the address of Congressman John Jacob Rogers who spoke on "Father Mathew in Washington." His address was highly interesting, the audience listening attentively to every word uttered by the speaker, and applauding him enthusiastically and at length.

Sir, Molloy extended a hearty greeting to the gathering and then introduced Rev. Dr. Ketcher, spiritual director of the society as the first speaker. Dr. Ketcher said in part:

enemy of domestic happiness, as you all know but no one knows better its terrible results than the parish priest who is forced constantly to come in contact with its victims, and who sees so much suffering caused by it every day. It is a devil which sooner or later, for a time at least, blots out and destroys all that is noble in man, the most treasured gifts of God, and makes him a beast.

As I glance about me and see this great and intelligent gathering of Mathew members and their guests, I wonder if possibly anyone could now ask "Will the Mathews perish?" Will they go out of existence? And the answer is most emphatically no. It is a long time since the Mathews have seen a brighter day than this, and I believe and hope that it will constitute a turning point in the existence of the society.

You must realize that nothing can be done without cooperation, without each of you abandoning individual prejudices and pride and working in conjunction for the one great object of the society, that of temperance. Your

BACKACHE A WARNING YOU SHOULD HEED

It is One of Nature's First Signs of Kidney Troubles, if Neglected Serious Diseases May Follow

When the kidneys are clogged up and inactive, nature has a way of warning you. Backache is one of the first symptoms. You may also be troubled with disagreeable, annoying bladder disorders; have attacks of lumbago or rheumatism; become nervous, tired and feel all worn out; puffy swellings show under the eyes or in the feet and ankles; and many other symptoms are noticed. If they are neglected, dropsy, diabetes, or Bright's Disease, which so often prove fatal, may result.

It is not only dangerous, but needless for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, when a little Croxone now and then quickly and surely ends all such misery. There is no more effective remedy known for all such troubles than Croxone, because it reaches the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the clogged up pores; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter and sift the poison out of the blood and drive it from the system. You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to end the worst backache, relieve rheumatic pains, or overcome urinary disorders.

watchword should be unity and harmony and you should pull together, realizing the great work you can do among the young men of the city. In spite of all else, remember that the great object of the society is to promote the cause of temperance. It is for you to do something practical that will benefit people and this impulse of the society will make you true disciples of Father Mathew and will be historic in its results.

Mr. Jas. Meally then gave vocal selections with such delight to those present that he was forced to respond to encores. Mr. Richard Noonan presided at the piano and assisted materially in the excellent musical program.

The next speaker to be introduced was His Honor Mayor James E. O'Donnell and his address was as follows:

Members of the Mathew Temperance Institute:

It is indeed with feelings of pride and pleasure I come here to be among you on this occasion of the 123d anniversary of the birth of Father Mathew, the great apostle of temperance. It is fitting that you should do him honor, and it is just as fitting that as mayor of the city of Lowell, I should be here to congratulate you on the splendid ideal you have set out to accomplish and to encourage you in your efforts for the uplift of the community. In my official capacity I may not come in touch directly with the work which you and kindred societies are doing because in the routine duties of my office I meet only the practical of the unromantic, the matter of fact. But I am deeply conscious of the fact that underneath the prosaic run of daily events, societies such as the Mathew Temperance Institute are doing a wonderful work—a work that cannot be measured by statistics or scientific weighing, but a work that is regenerating the souls of men. There are many who are not heroic enough or self-sacrificing enough to belong to your society, but no man worthy of the name fails to honor and respect you and your purpose in his heart of hearts.

It is superfluous for me to speak to you of the great patriot and preacher whose anniversary we celebrate tonight. Every loyal Mathew knows the leading facts of his life and works, and you are all loyal Mathews. You are aware how in the comparative obscurity of a simple and salutary existence he dreamed his great dream of a world-wide temperance movement which carried his name into every part of the globe and made the world stop and listen. You all remember how from the simple confines of a small parish his personal magnetism and saintly sincerity spread and drew millions to hear him until he kindled a fire of righteousness, the flames of which are not quenched after the passing of a century. The name and works of Father Mathew are alive and powerful today. They live because his motives were lofty and his work sincere. The greater proof of his power lies in the fact that you are here tonight, faithful to his memory and pledged to carry on by your noble example the work he founded so strongly and securely. In these days we are only too familiar with so-called apostles who come among us to kindle fires that often are fires of destruction. We hear on all sides the misleading appeals of the agitator who would destroy the economie and social security of the nation. Our ears are offended by appeals to passion and prejudice instead of reason. But we must not be misled by them. They live their day but it is a brief one. Time quickly pierces the shallow pretence that hides their motives and reveals them in their true character. Contrast with them an apostle such as Father Mathew whose efforts were nobly unselfish. At the beginning of his mission he was met by distrust and doubt and strong opposition. His sincerity and his motives were sometimes questioned. But they have stood the test of time and shine brighter with the passing years.

When he paid his famous visit to America he was received as a great benefactor of humanity and in our city library his name is now listed with those of the world's greatest workers for good.

Members of the Mathew Temperance Institute. You bear a great and lofty name and your aims are worthy of it. Your influence was ennobling in Lowell of the past; it is strong in Lowell of the present; it will be still stronger in the Lowell of the future. I shall always be glad to meet you collectively and individually and I feel that as mayor of Lowell I could be engaged in no nobler task tonight than urging you to persevere in the good work in which you are engaged. I appreciate your cordial invitation to be here with you, and I wish you the greatest possible success and prosperity, now and always.

Rev. E. J. Cornell, O. M. I.
Rev. Edmund J. Cornell, O. M. I. was then introduced by the toastmaster and he spoke on the life and work of Father Mathew, his words being highly interesting and inspiring. In part he said: "There are two kinds of courage; there is that which is called physical courage by which a man is enabled to face danger without quailing, and there is moral courage, inspiring you to persevere in the good work in which you are engaged. I appreciate your cordial invitation to be here with you, and I wish you the greatest possible success and prosperity, now and always."

FATHER MATHEW'S DAY

inspired by which men are empowered to strive for one moral object in spite of the opposition, criticism and scorn which is heaped upon them from all sides. Father Mathew was a man of the greatest moral courage. He was able, as one distinguished man said, to stand before the devil and tell him that he was the devil. In this instance, the devil was run for it is truly a devil as all will admit. Father Mathew rose up and took his stand against this demon, as history tells us and as our presence here testifies, and in doing so he exhibited the qualities of the morally brave man.

Rev. Theobald Mathew received his first call to the cause of temperance in the year 1835. He was not, as is thought, the originator of the plan which he followed. The true originator of the temperance movement was a Quaker, William Martin, a great temperance advocate. He started a society, but was unable to reach the majority of the people. So on one occasion he appealed to Fr. Mathew for aid in this matter and the latter finally impressed, issued a call for a public meeting, this being attended by the Quaker and his band of followers. Together with William Martin, he went through Cork, making speeches, and in five months he had a society of 130,000 members. He went to all cities and towns, with banners, parades, etc., organized the people into a great temperance society. Everywhere his work was pronounced to be a mighty miracle. Even diabolical turned out and displaying their banners, marched in the parades, organized by Fr. Mathew and joined his society. After having covered practically every inch of Irish soil, he was called across the sea and spoke and organized the people in Glasgow, London, Liverpool and other places with not only the same, but increasing success. Even the enemies of his faith praised the work which he was doing for temperance. One man said that he would place Father Mathew, the apostle of temperance, immediately after the 12 apostles of Christ. This latter was the statement of a Protestant divine.

More than 7,000,000, it is estimated.

Toastmaster.

signed the roster of Father Mathew's society at the time when he left these shores, the society comprised 500,000 members here. It is now for us who claim his name to keep up the work which he began. To must be enthused with the same spirit and must work in union and with earnestness. If we accomplish this, then we shall be true and worthy successors of Fr. Mathew and perpetuate his name, we shall accomplish good for men of the city and of the community at large.

Commissioner James E. Donnelly delighted the gathering with several of his inimitable Scotch songs after which Congressman John Jacob Rogers was introduced. His subject was "Father Mathew in Washington." In part he said:

John Jacob Rogers

"Mr. Chairman. The toast to which I have been called upon to respond is so vast in its dimensions, so far beyond my feeble powers even to begin to illuminate, that I shall ask your indulgence this evening in discussing a topic perhaps not too remotely suggested by the toast itself.

You all will know that that great man for whom your society is named made a journey from his native land to this country in the year 1842, remaining on our shores for some 16 months. Perhaps not all of you know of the signal honors which were accorded him while he was in Washington during December of the year 1849. My subject then, for the few moments, is Father Mathew in Washington.

"In order that we may understand the nature of his reception in Washington it will be necessary to recall what befell him in Boston whether he came shortly after his arrival in America on July 2, 1846. At that time, as you all will recall, the country was in the throes of the slavery problem. Although the Civil War was still 12 years distant on the horizon, the murmurs had for a considerable time been growing louder and louder and many keen observers even at this time foresaw that strife would be the inevitable result. The minds of men, the columns of newspapers were filled with the pros and cons of this great question.

"In Boston, the abolitionists, led by William Lloyd Garrison and others, were extra now at fever heat in their zeal for the cause of the abolition of slavery. Scarcely had Father Mathew arrived in Boston when he received a letter of invitation to be present at a meeting to celebrate the anniversary of the most thrilling event of the 19th century, the abolition of slavery in the West Indies. In this letter of invitation he was reminded of the fact that, in 1812, he with thousands of others had signed an address from the people of Ireland to their countrymen in America, in which the latter were called upon to treat the colored people as their equals, to hate slavery, and to feel to the abolitionists. He was also asked therein to improve every suitable opportunity while he remained in the country to bear a clear and unequivocal testimony, both in public and private, against the enslavement of any portion of the human family.

"On the 27th of July, the day after he received this letter, William Lloyd Garrison waited upon him in the Adams house in Boston in the endeavor to secure his acceptance of the invitation. You will at once observe the extreme embarrassment of the position, in which Fr. Mathew was thus put. His mission to this country was of course one of temperance. As a philanthropist, he could not fail, of course, to be moved by the horrors of slavery in the United States, and yet with the country almost evenly divided upon this great question it was obvious that he would fall in the mission to which he had consecrated his life if he took the radical anti-slavery position to which his humane instincts would naturally have led him. He there fore pointed to Mr. Garrison somewhat as follows:

"I have as much as I can do to save men from the slavery of intemperance, without attempting to overthrow any other kind of slavery. Besides, it would not be proper for me to commit myself on a question like this under present circumstances. I am a Catholic priest; but, being here to promote the cause of temperance, I should not be justified in turning aside from my mission, for the purpose of subserving the cause of Catholicism."

"I think we shall all admit that this reply was sane and indeed inevitable; yet the abolitionists' society rose as one man to denounce Father Mathew's attitude. Garrison, for example, said, in bitterness of heart, in reference to this interview: 'Not a syllable fell from his lips, expressive of pleasure that the American slave has his faithful and devoted advocates—or of joy in the emancipation of 800,000 bondsmen in the British Isles. It is with great sorrow of heart that I lay these

"The attitude of the abolitionists continually rose up to plague Father Mathew in his mission in this country. But there was also a Charybdis to this Scylla. The anti-slavery memorial which I have already referred to as having been signed by Father Mathew in 1842 was incessantly referred to by the pro-slavery advocates of the south; and as of course Father Mathew did not take any position in favor of slavery, he was throughout his journeyings in this country subjected to the abuse both of the radical pro-slavery and radical anti-slavery parties.

"With this preliminary explanation I can perhaps more intelligently describe the reception accorded to Father Mathew in Washington, where he arrived on December 18, 1849. On the following day, when the house of representatives assembled at noon, Representative Baker of Illinois obtained recognition and said that he held in his hand a resolution which he desired to offer and that, he was sure, would receive the unanimous consent of the house of representatives. The resolution was: 'Resolved, that the Reverend Father Mathew be respectfully invited to take a seat upon the floor of this house.'

"The question on the resolution was taken and was decided in the affirmative, apparently without a dissenting vote. Then in the words of the Congressional Globe, which was the official reporter for this, the 31st congress of the United States, 'The door-keeper of the late house of representatives, Robert E. Horner, Esq., was directed to see the order of the house executed. Thereupon, the Rev. Theobald Mathew was conducted to a seat within the bar. The honor thus accorded was the highest which could be conferred by the house of representatives upon the subject of another country.'

"A similar resolution was introduced into the senate by Senator Walker, of Wisconsin, the same day, but on motion of Senator Clemens of Alabama, went over for further consideration until the following day. The debate in the senate on this resolution when it came up for action on Dec. 20, is one of the most noteworthy in the preliminary passages of the great movement which resulted in the war of secession. The debate takes up 25 long columns in the Congressional Globe; it was participated in by 21 senators out of 60 who were then members of the body. As I shall explain in a moment from the very outset the debate unfortunately assumed a pro- or anti-slavery hue; and the real merits of the case

THE YOM KIPPUR STAY AND STARVE

Greatest of All Jewish Feasts Will Open at Sundown Today

With the setting of the sun tonight, the synagogue in Lowell will be packed with hundreds of Hebrews, who will usher in with prayer and all the impressive ceremonies of the Hebrew ritual, the Yom Kippur, or Day of Atonement.

Yom Kippur, the holiest day of the Jew in the entire religious calendar, will last until the stars appear tomorrow evening, when the blast of the "shofar" or the trumpet in the synagogues and all the places of worship will announce the end of the Day of Atonement—the most ancient of all Jewish festivals. During the entire 24 hours that the celebration lasts the rigidly observant of the Hebrews eat nothing, nor does a single drop of water pass his lips. The reform Hebrew does not hold tenaciously to some of the old traditions to which the more orthodox cling, though the reform Hebrew observes the day.

Many Americanized young men and women and even boys and girls fast on this great and terrible Day of Judgment. It is needless to say that they do it willingly and cheerfully. At night all are happy in the thought that they have been purified of all sin and have received a verdict of not guilty.

The observance begins tonight in the synagogues with the evening service called "Kol Nidre" from its opening which deals with the vow of the individual and his conscience. Throughout the following day in the orthodox synagogues a continual service is held which, towards the middle of the afternoon, becomes most impressive by a solemn commemorative service for the dead.

The "shofar" or ram's horn is blown once after the sun has gone beyond the horizon, and then the devout worshippers turn homeward.

Militant "Hunger Striker" in London Will Not be Released

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The belief of the militant incendiaries that under the "cat and mouse" act they were assured of speedy release from prison by "hunger striking" and could then repeat their offense, received a rude shock yesterday by the announcement of the home secretary that Miss May Richardson, who has been in prison since Oct. 4, on the charge of arson and who has been refusing food since her arrest, would not be given her freedom. The prison authorities have been instructed to resort to forcible feeding, if necessary to prevent the incendiaries from starving themselves to death.

The home secretary says that the act will continue to be applied as heretofore, to minor suffragette offenders whose crimes do not include acts of serious violence.

GIRL ON STUMP MILL GATE RALLY

Young Social Worker Will Speak for McCall in New York

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Miss Dorothy Frooks, said to be the youngest social worker in the country, and daughter of the New York millionaire, Lewis Reginald Frooks, was called home yesterday, from her studies in a Harvard extension course to take the stump for McCall, the democratic candidate for mayor of New York. Miss Frooks will enter upon this work at once.

During her stay at Radcliffe and Harvard Miss Frooks, who is but 18 years old, completed a book that deals with the peace movement. It will be published soon. To gain material for the concluding chapters of a book she is writing on social matters Miss Frooks went about Boston in a motor car, recently, trying her luck at securing positions, representing herself to be a poor working girl, who as a matter of fact she drives her own car at her home in Bayonne, N. J.

During the time that Miss Frooks was conducting her experiments in behalf of the working girl she attempted to live at an expense of 25 cents a day, but was forced to abandon the plan owing to the condition of her health.

Petered Out and Organizer Young Took a Shot at Bankers' Asso.

The democratic rally scheduled to take place at the gates of the Saco-Lowell shops in Dutton street at the noon hour today did not materialize, but the men who gathered there were not disappointed for they were well entertained by Organizer Young of the Machinists' union. Mr. Young is well known in Lowell. He spent about six weeks here and organized the strongest machinists' union ever organized in this city. He was given a good reception. In his speech, which was necessarily brief, Mr. Young lauded the Bankers' association.

In part he said: The Bankers' association met a week ago in Boston and decided several things, one of which is the great value of organization. The first thing they think of is to get together. They did not believe the government should have the control of currency, for they say the bankers ought to have that. They say they have the true interest of the people at heart, but they do not consider that there are 3700 people in Boston who go to bed hungry every night. At their convention they said absolutely nothing about this.

The bankers were supposed to meet in Lowell, and out of the many delegates in Boston only three came to this city. Why did not the others come? I do not know and they will not tell. Nevertheless Lowell ought to be the place for these men to meet and make quarters for all time, for it is here that the money is tied by capitalists. I know that during their visit in Lowell they did not stand in Middlesex street the way I do. In order to see many cripples and invalids go through our streets, to their work, for this is too little a thing for big bankers to consider.

In the evening's entertainment there were piano solos by Miss Laura Reardon and Mrs. David H. Dwyer. Vocal selections by Alice Reynolds and Anna Harris, and some fancy dancing was contributed to the occasion by Miss Gertrude Ward and May Harris. And Inspector Francis Connor Visit Tuberculosis Hospitals

Commissioner Cummings and Inspector Connor of the public buildings department are scheduled to take a little trip this afternoon for the purpose of getting data on tuberculosis hospitals in other cities. The cities to be visited are Woburn, Malden and Reading.

Mr. Cummings said in Reading there is a fine hospital, and his purpose in going there is to find out how much the building cost and also the cost of the maintenance as well as the mode of registration adopted. In Woburn there is no hospital, and the commissioner wants to know how the city cares for the tuberculosis patients, while in Malden, it is understood the sufferers of the white plague are being cared for in private houses.

There was a large number of bills submitted and among them was one which caused more or less hilarity among those present. This was a bill to the amount of $1.25 for services at a fire in Lowell by the Chelmsford fire warden, who claimed he worked one hour and a half with his machine. The bill read as follows:

John Scullane Injured While in the Employ of Boston and Maine

The case of Scullane vs. Boston and Maine railroad was resumed at the superior court this morning. The case is one in which the plaintiff, John S. Scullane, of Ayer, sues for damages sustained while on duty as an employee of the company some time ago. The ad damnum is $10,000. The plaintiff claims he was riding on a passenger engine of the company and was stationed in a designated position on the tender. He states that while thus riding he, the plaintiff, was struck by a retaining wall and injured. He claims that the accident was due to the failure of the operator to give warning. The plaintiff is represented by Messrs. D. J. Carney and W. J. Paton, while the firm of Trull and Wier appear for the defendant.

Mr. John S. Scullane, the plaintiff, was the first called to the stand this morning and he stated that he had been employed by the Boston and Maine for about two years previous to the time of the accident. He testified that he was a night employee and never frequented the railroad yards in the daytime. There were no lights on the engine or in the vicinity at the time he was injured. He said he was ordered by the foreman to go down to an ash pit located a short distance from the yards with the engineer and further stated that he was not acquainted with the spot to which he was sent.

Dr. Peter W. Deehan of Boston was the next witness and he told of examining the plaintiff last May, after he, the plaintiff, was removed from the hospital. He said he found that Mr. Scullane had suffered from a dislocated hip and other injuries.

LIKE OUR GIRLS

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 10.—Richard Wallis, owner of a linen mill in Germany, and John Edgeworth and Harold Heyworth, joint owners of a large cotton mill in England, after having inspected the cotton industry in this city said that their greatest surprise was at the manner in which the feminine mill operatives of New Bedford dress.

"Why, they look like perfect ladies," the three foreign mill magnates said. "In our own countries, where the wages are not much different from what they are here, it is customary to see the young women going to the mills in worn-out dresses, with shawls covering their shoulders. And here in New Bedford the operatives dress as up-to-date as the finest ladies of the land."

The three sightseers said that this characteristic for good dressing was not alone confined to the mill girls, for everywhere in the American cities they have visited they have found the women to be dressed in the height of current fashion, whatever their social status or their weekly payroll was.

USES OF PAPER

Facts Concerning Paper That Everyone Should Know—Uses in Japan

It is a question whether there is an industry in this country more interesting than the manufacture of wood pulp and its many uses. A number of countries have contended for the honor of enjoying greatest progress in the making of various articles from wood pulp. Germany, France, England and the United States are the principal claimants. Of the four countries named, Germany would seem to have the balance of testimony on its side. Novelties made from paper pulp are by no means of rare occurrence in the United States, and are now as multifarious as to defy enumeration.

At first, wood pulp was used entirely in making paper, but today it is employed for manifold purposes. Its use bids fair to be large for moldings, friction clutches, belt-pulleys, gear wheels, barrels (reinforced with wire), tubes, shafts, washboards, water pipes, conduits, caskets, bath tubs, carriage bodies, floor covering, electric insulators, umbrellas, stoves, furniture, imitation of leather, cloth and silk. Clearly the employment of wood pulp is practically unlimited.

The great consumers of wood pulp today are the paper manufacturers who use nearly 50 per cent of the entire production. According to the bureau of statistics, there are at present about 250 mills which manufacture wood pulp in this country. The capacity of these mills is over 2,500,000 tons of pulp annually, valued at more than $22,000,000. In addition to this

Strengthen Your Lungs Is Timely Advice

When consumption claims over 350 daily in the United States. Neglected colds, overwork, confining duties and chronic disorders exert the weakening influence which allows tubercular germs the mastery.

The greatest treatment that science affords is courage, rest, sunshine and Scott's Emulsion.

Scott's Emulsion contains pure cod liver oil to clarify and enrich the blood, strengthen the lungs, rebuild wasted tissue and fortify the resistive forces to throw off disease germs.

Strengthen YOUR lungs with a Scott's Emulsion—its benefits are too important to neglect.

amount, more than 400,000 tons are exported from Canada and various countries of Europe. The value of the material received from abroad in 1911 was nearly $15,000,000. These figures show an increase in the business of over 50 per cent in the past 10 years, and the same time in the future promises even greater strides.

By proper treatment wood pulp can be made perfectly translucent, impervious, and indifferent to atmospheric changes. While it has not yet been made transparent, it admits abundant, soft, pleasant light, where it is used in place of window panes. Paper pulp is now made up into boards that can be used in a variety of places to supplement the use of wood. The ease of molding into any desired shape and the saving in weight make the use of this product valuable in construction of the ornamentation of ships such as the facing and frames of doors, wainscotings, panels, etc.

This material is also used in making imitation tiling for the walls of bathrooms, the framing of closet seats, etc. In fact, entire houses, garages, henhouses, etc., have successfully been made of this paper board. When properly impregnated it is impervious to moisture and forms a good non-conductor of heat. Another product used in house construction is roofing tiles, which are now gaining reputation for their superior qualities over other roofing material in the market. The application of wood pulp for house building is not new, and has met with complete success. In Europe there are some firms which build houses almost entirely of water-proofed pasteboard. Wood pulp is likewise used instead of wood for making furniture, tables and folding chairs, their chief advantage being lightness.

Paper screws are now being made which give thorough satisfaction. The principle of having wood against wood is a point in favor of wood screws. They are used for ornamental work, where it is desirable to give the heads of the screws the same color and grain effect as wood. A variety on top of this adds to the effect and protects the dye, as it penetrates the fiber and acts as a preservative. It has been estimated that these wood pulp screws can be made so cheaply as to compete successfully with screws and lag bolts of other types. Paper screws can be readily removed even after they have been in place for many years. The screws are cast and the thread is cut in the common wood screws. The drive screw is cast with attenuated thread curves, so that when driven it revolves and finds a firm footing in the wood. It can be driven only into soft wood after a hole is first started.

Another economic application of paper which is gaining in importance is the making of cord and rope. These new ropes are spun and twisted out of the thin threads which are made from wood pulp. This industry has attained considerable importance in Europe. It is said that these lustrous fiber ropes are used more or less extensively in the foundries of Germany. The fine threads which make up these ropes are made by forcing the chemically-treated wood pulp or cellulose through very fine tubes into running water, in which they harden. After they are dry they are perfectly elastic and somewhat elastic and may be spun or twisted into any form whatsoever. These minute, elongated threads are caught up as they are forced through the fine tubes and spun into a fabric resembling silk.

A French inventor discovered that paper may be cut into narrow strips several millimeters wide and that after these have been steeped in certain chemicals which give them tenacity and ductility, they may be rolled and twisted into threads, which may be worked up into fabrics of various kinds and put to a great variety of uses. Another French chemist has discovered a way to make such fabrics, as well as ordinary paper, waterproof, and a German inventor has produced a good quality of thin paper practically fire-proof.

Such discoveries have led to the making of hats, raincoats, corsets, vests, underwear, collars, ties, socks, shoes and an overcoat. In the Chicago City hospital experiments have been made in furnishing the patients with garments made of a soft tough paper. These garments are light and airy. After use each garment is destroyed and thus all danger of infection is avoided. The paper raincoat is a novelty. It is made of a light-weight, waterproof paper. The garment comes folded in a very small package which can easily be put into a lady's handbag. The package is opened and the coat unfolded as occasion demands. The article is so cheap that it can be thrown away after use. One inventor has designed a paper sock for use in the army. The sock covers only the part of the foot that is usually clothed by the shoe. This is a light weight and adds greatly to the comfort of the wearer.

Paper may even be so treated as to make it suitable for sails for light vessels. Such sails are not woven from strands or threads, but are made up from pressed sheets of paper, which are made in the regular way, the pulp having been thoroughly mixed with certain chemicals and other substances. These paper sails are inexpensive compared with good canvas sock or rubber material.

But by the greatest progress has been made in the application of this material to sanitary and domestic uses. The realization by the public generally of the germ theory of disease has done more to multiply the uses of paper than any other factor. It has led to the introduction of the various individual receptacles and containers that now appear everywhere. Notable among these is the individual drinking cup. The extent to which these cups are utilized can be comprehended when it is stated that the returns realized from the sale of penny cups from slot machines in the Pennsylvania state capital building alone amounted to $113 during the past year.

In modern sanitation and the treatment of diseases the various paper receptacles and protective appliances have proven of inestimable value. In some of the western states, notably California and Colorado, which furnish a climate especially beneficial in the treatment of tuberculosis, it has become imperative for all public areas to be thoroughly disinfected. Otherwise contagious diseases will be spread instead of checked. Some of the most dangerous articles are the telephone mouthpiece, the common towel, and the public drinking cup. Paper has come to the rescue and supplied towels and drinking cups that can be discarded after use.

Milk bottles of paper will soon be in extensive use. They are cheap and sanitary and the troublesome washing and collection of the empty bottles is obviated. A very recent improvement in paper milk bottles appears in a patent to A. G. Brand (No. 1,067,237). This is a bottle having a narrow strip of transparent material running the full length of the side. This allows the buyer to see the level of the cream on the milk or the level of the liquid in the interior, and enables him to tell whether there is any sediment in the bottom of the bottle.

Paper receptacles of all kinds are now on the market. These are especially valuable in the packing and shipping of foodstuffs. The manufacture of water- and grease-proof paper has recently been introduced and is especially useful in this connection. Boxes are best packed in paper receptacles, and a recent practice has arisen of shipping eggs by parcel post in a special type of paper container. Ice cream is at present sold in small quantities, packed in paper receptacles, and it has become a practice for some of the progressive dealers to furnish forthwith cheap paper spoons that are easily discarded.

The packing of loaves of bread in individual wrappers is another advance in the handling of foodstuffs, an advance which not only insures cleanliness, but also prevents the entry and escape of moisture and preserves the freshness of the loaf.

One inventor, J. W. Weiss (No. 1,063,643), makes a collapsible box of paper with a reinforced part along the sides or corners. Usually collapsible paper boxes are very flimsy, but this box is strong enough to bear the weight of a full-grown man. The immensity of the paper box industry may be realized when it is stated that in one industry alone—the manufacture of pens, pencils and erasers—over 4000 different sizes and shapes of boxes are required.

But the use of paper in this country cannot approach the many uses to which it is put in Japan, which is virtually a paper kingdom. The houses are made of thin, light frames of bamboo covered with paper. Almost everything that the Americans make of wood or leather is there made of paper. The coolies wear mantles in rainy or snowy weather made of a very tough grade of waterproof paper. These mantles can be used continually for about a year and cost only 15 cents. But tea merchants use paper sacks, the paper having been tanned by a vegetable acid. These sacks are used over and over again, and it is said to be a common thing to see sacks that are eight or ten years old and have paper patches on them.

AGAINST REPEAL

Chairman Underwood Favors Tariff Law as it Now Stands

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Efforts to repeal the five per cent. tariff discount provision on imports in American ships which has aroused the state and treasury departments, met a setback yesterday with the return to the city of Representative Underwood, chairman of the ways and means committee, original champion of the clause.

After Joseph W. Folk, solicitor of the state department, who advocates repeal of the provision, had talked to Mr. Underwood he announced that there would be no developments in the matter for several days. It was also stated that President Wilson's mind in the premises still is open.

Mr. Underwood still emphatically favors the provision, and had no hesitancy in saying so.

"The tariff is not a law and I am for the bill as it stands," Mr. Underwood declared. "If the president thinks the issue grave enough to send a message to congress urging the repeal of the discount provision of it he indicates that he wishes it repealed. I will call the ways and means committee to consider the idea. But even then, I would not favor a repeal until a thorough hearing had been held and everything has been said on both sides."

Mr. Underwood further stated that he believed there was a misconception in the departments regarding the clause and that he believed it would work out advantageously to this country.

NARROW ESCAPE

John Faera Pulled Out of Watery Grave in Pawtucket Canal—Refused to Speak
John Faera, whose address is unknown, narrowly escaped death by drowning last night in the Pawtucket canal, and the young man owes his rescue to Joseph Masson of Herick street. It is not known whether the man attempted suicide, or whether he accidentally fell into the water, for after being pulled out he refused to talk.

Shortly before 7 o'clock last night, Joseph Masson, who resides in Herick street, off Dodge street, heard cries of distress from the canal in Ford street. He quickly rushed out of the house, secured a clothes line and went to the canal, where he saw a young man struggling in the water. Masson threw the rope to the drowning man and pulled him to the bank of the canal.

Sergeant Pettie was soon on the scene and after working for some time over the unconscious man, he summoned the ambulance and Faera was removed to the Lowell hospital, where he is now resting comfortably. The young man was questioned as to his act, but he refused to make any statement, simply telling his name.

CARL H. SMITH WON BET

Lowell Boy Crossed Continent in Auto in 30 Days Without Assistance, Winning $10,000 Wager

Carl H. Smith, San Francisco theatrical man, arrived in this city yesterday in his big Loconobile car after an across-continent trip in a motor car under peculiar conditions. Carl Smith is a former Lowell boy, son of the late Dr. Herman J. Smith and brother of Forrester H. Smith. Carl is visiting his mother and brother in Merrimack street.

The trip responsible for Carl's presence in Lowell, his old home, was undertaken on a wager and while New York city was the wager terminus, so to speak, Carl decided to come to Lowell for he rarely misses an opportunity to visit his mother.

The trip as before stated, was undertaken on a wager with D. Hallahan, proprietor of the Market Street theatre, in San Francisco and involves about $10,000. Carl, who has driven an automobile only a year, and knows practically nothing of its mechanical parts, having never done more than change a tire when occasion demanded, agreed to drive from San Francisco to New York in 60 days without aid in making repairs or any kind of adjustment.

Several other bets hinge on the trip and all the money is in the hands of Eddie Graney of San Francisco and John Morgan, the world's champion three-cushion billiardist. In order that everything would be strictly on the level, an official observer accompanied Mr. Smith and let it be known that Carl has won the wager.

He crossed the continent in 30 days. The trip, however, was not without its difficulties and its dangers. On the way east a cloudburst was encountered in Wyoming, a terrific hail-storm on the Colorado-Kansas line which tore the top of the car to ribbons, and he arrived in Denver two days behind the schedule necessary, but made up the time between Chicago and New York.

It was stipulated in the bet that the trip must be made with but one set of tires and unnecessary to state Carl succeeded in negotiating the distance with one set.

Carl allows he has proven to the big automobile men of the country that an amateur is capable of driving a big car across the continent and make a cool $10,000 out of it besides.

HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENTS

State and Federal Officers to Work Together for Better Roads—Value of Proper Road Construction

Secretary Houston of the department of agriculture says that the state and federal governments should work together for highway improvement in order that a large proportion of the money annually spent for road construction may not be wasted.

In his own department, the office of public roads has been demonstrating the value of proper road building by the construction of certain object-lesson roads, and the forest service is carrying out his idea of national and state cooperation in road building.

The law requires that ten per cent. of the gross receipts from the national forests shall be spent in the states in which the forests are situated. This money is expended for road improvement under the direct control of the secretary of agriculture.

The amount appropriated under this act, based on the receipts of the national forests for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, is $24,638.68. From the 1912 receipts for this ten per cent. road item, there is an additional $134,831.10, which is still available.

In administering the ten per cent. road fund, forest officers charged with the actual plans and expenditures in the neighborhood of their forests have, in almost all cases, secured an equal or a larger cooperative fund from state authorities for the building of certain pieces of road.

With the money thus expended many important roads are being built or put in repair. One on the Wyoming national forest, six miles long, makes accessible to farmers a large body of timber and opens up a region of great scenic beauty. In northwestern Arizona, part of the fund will be used in connection with the LeFevre-Bright Angel road, important because it makes accessible to tourists the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. In one place, the Ocean to Ocean Highway crosses the Apache national forest, Arizona, and on this project the forest service and the local authorities cooperated enthusiastically. On the Florida national forest in western Florida, steel bridges and graded roads have, under the stimulus of this fund, taken the place of corduroy, bog, and sand.

This federal road fund is now available in all national forest states of the west. Just as fast as returns come in, the forestry officials say, a similar fund will become available in states in which eastern national forests are being secured.

MEMORIAL TO MAYOR WILLET

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The Willett memorial committee of the city club announced yesterday completion of its plans for the dedication of the memorial to Thomas Willett, first mayor of the city of New York, which has been erected by the club in the cemetery at Riverside, R. I., where Mayor Willett and his wife lie buried. The dedication will take place Saturday, October 18.

As a passenger, but frequently the actor was permitted to manipulate the levers and he handled them like a veteran of the skies. While abroad last summer Mr. Fairbanks also covered several thousand miles by automobile, and it is interesting to hear him tell of his visit to the Balkans in view of the fact all the scenes of his last season's success, "Hawthorne," he says, "were laid in that country. He says he could not resist the temptation, after playing the piece for a year, to go there and see the place and the people as they actually are."

As an athlete Douglas has few equals. His athletic trainer and instructor, Albert Gilmore, has been traveling with him, continuing his sport on the calendar, indoor or outdoor, in which young Fairbanks does not excel. He is a clever boxer, a dextrous fencer, plays tennis and golf like a master, is an adept at the oar, and can sail anything that floats, from a cat-boat in a cup defender. Those who witnessed the thrilling fight between him as Hawthorne and Prince Adair in last year's play may have wondered how he got through each performance without breaking a few bones. As a matter of fact, it was only his superb physical condition which prevented him at times from being injured; and it is stated upon good authority that at the evening performance of "Hawthorne," the actor who played the Prince had two ribs broken during his fierce encounter with the hero and it was necessary for him to withdraw from the cast, temporarily until the fracture healed.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
As "Zoe," the slave girl in "The Octo- room," the attraction for the Players at the Merrimack Square theatre next week, Miss Grace Young will be seen in one of the most unique roles which she will probably portray this season. Mr. Walter Scott Weeks also has an exacting role in "Wa-na-Tee," the Indian. This is a most difficult character inasmuch as he doesn't speak one word although on the stage most of the time. It was originally played by Dion Boucicault, the author, and is one on which Mr. Weeks has worked hard. The staging of the play will be completely handled by Mr. Howard Sydney. The latest motion pictures will also be shown. Seats for all performances, including the special Columbus day matinee are now on sale.

THEATRE VOYONS
"The Chieftain's Sons," a biograph Indian drama at the Theatre Voyons today gives the best picture of Indian life as it really is that has been shown for months. The old Indian chief, his three sons and the outcast and his daughter all are characters that are clear cut in their dramatic strength and the story is an excellent one despite the lack of guinea and white men. "A Wall Street Wall" is a novel comedy in every sense of the word. Its story does not amount to anything, but the every foot is a laugh and a new laugh.

KEITH'S THEATRE
The bill at the B. F. Keith's theatre, this week, is proving one of unusual drawing power. In part this is due to the excellence of the production of "A Bachelor's Dinner," a musical comedy written by Mr. A. Seymour Brown and presented by a cast of 15 persons. It is filled with snappy, catchy songs, and the dancing is an interesting feature. "On the Banks of Killarney" runs this a close second for popular favor. Emmett and Emmett imparting a flavor of the "old dar" to it, an entire farm-yard of creatures is used in the piece, giving it a decidedly local coloring. Honthy and Everdeen, in songs, dances and comedy, have an offering which is nothing if not varied. Miss Hootchy is a most attractive person. Air Holt, Australian mimic, does a lot of unusual work, and Billy Davis, the blackface monologist, gets a lot of laughter with his parodies. "War is"—"The Sketch given by Val Trainor & Co.; Richards, Brothers, symphonists, and the Pathe weekly complete this very good bill. Seats may be obtained in advance at the box office. Phone 25.

This past summer Fairbanks enjoyed a flight in one of the newest Zepplins, a dirigible balloons over the greater part of Germany, but as this kind of flying seemed rather tame to him he made many and France, on one occasion rising to an altitude of about ten thousand feet. Commissioner Lawrence Cummings and Harvey B. Greene, chairman of the park board, didn't weigh in at the ring-side and nothing was said about weight of gloves, but for a few minutes it looked as if there might be something doing.

You see it was just like this. Harvey, at a meeting of the park board on Tuesday night, said that Larry was on the level with the park department and that the municipal council had a funny little way of playing politics at the expense of that department.

The controversy had to do with an appropriation of $2000 for improvements on the South common, including a band stand and wading pool. It was stipulated in the order appropriating the money that it should be spent under the direction of Commissioner Cummings and Mr. Greene declared, right off the bat, that this stipulation was inserted in order to give Commissioner Cummings the political benefit of it.

Perhaps Larry wasn't sure when he heard what Harvey had said about him. The matter came up at a meeting of the municipal council yesterday and Larry indulged in a bareback at Harvey. Larry said that Harvey had a political grudge and that he could never get over his defeat of last year.

Well, to make a long story short, the municipal council yesterday voted to have Mr. Cummings confer with Mr. Greene relative to the $2000 and the building of the bandstand on the common and a meeting was arranged for this morning at Mr. Cummings' office.

Mr. Greene Resentful

Chairman Greene arrived shortly after ten o'clock and he was escorted to the private office, and Mr. Greene's first words were "I resent the statement you made at the council meeting yesterday."

Mr. Cummings: "And I resent what you said in the newspapers."

Mr. Greene: "My statement was true."

Mr. Cummings: "So was mine, but I am here to do business for the city and not argue this question."

Mr. Greene then went along and told how he received a letter from Supp. Kernan of the park department saying he questioned who is to spend the money appropriated by the council for the construction of the wading pool and band stand. Mr. Kernan further stated he had a conference with City Solicitor Hennessy last July, the time you said I was enjoying my vacation, who said the park department was to spend the money. I got things started and something in August learned you were going to spend the money. On Sept. 1, we stopped all proceedings and if you remember well, I called you up and at that time you said you did not understand the order.

Mr. Cummings: "I signed the order for the appropriation of $2000 for the work, but did not take time to read it, and did not know that there was a supplement attached to it in reference to no spending the money."

Mr. Greene: "If the order is carried out the way it was voted, the park department is practically abolished."

Mr. Cummings then said he was waiting all the time for a conference with the members of the park board. Speaking about the council proceedings Mr. Cummings said, according to the charter the park department is under the supervision of the commissioner of public property. He said he did not believe the council would have any right to designate him to spend money for the water department, and Mr. Greene replied that it would have as much right to do this as to designate him to spend money for the park department.

Not Park Department Head

Mr. Cummings said he wanted Mr. Greene to understand that he did not consider himself the head of the park department. "About a year ago," continued the commissioner, "I was unofficially notified that I was in charge of the park department. However, I paid very little attention to this, for I have had many people come to see me in reference to work, and in every instance I referred to the park commissioners." He said he asked the council what the park department was to do with its money only because as a member of the city council he felt he was entitled to know the doings of the park department.

Mr. Cummings then said some one from the park department went around the city telling they could not do this or that because the city council would not give the department any money. Mr. Greene's reply to this was: "We need $3000 to clean our trees, many of which are a menace to life, and it is up to the council to give us the money."

"I don't think so," said Mr. Cummings.

A little argument followed in which the city of Cambridge was mentioned as taking care of its trees in the proper manner, and finally the matter was shifted to the real purpose of the conference, that of the improvements on the South common. Mr. Greene produced two sets of plans and specifications, and he said he believed the work can be done this year, providing there is no interference.

Mr. Cummings said he did not intend to interfere with the doings of the department. In order to emphasize his words, he said every time he had a conference with the Locks & Canals people or others in reference to parks, he was always accompanied by the superintendent of parks.

Mr. Greene criticized the way the council acts in voting money for certain departments and the only notification received is through newspapers. He said that thing happened when money was voted for the Anne Street park, as well as for the improvements on the South common. Mr. Cummings said it was the same with him, for he did not know the park department was getting ready to do the work on the common until he read about it in the newspapers. "It was then," he said, "I met Mr. Carr and told him the money was to be spent under my direction, and before the contracts were given out, I had better be consulted on the matter."

Mr. Cummings further stated the order appropriating $2000 was printed in the newspapers and the park board members had ten days to look into the matter, but nothing was done. He also said he believed the citizens of Lowell are in favor of having the work done by local contractors instead of giving the contract to out-of-town men, as suggested by Mr. Greene, who seemed to favor a Boston concern. Mr. Greene said he also favored the same, but he believes the citizens of Lowell desire good work in every respect.

At this point Inspector Connor was called in and asked how long it would take an architect to prepare plans and specifications for the improvements, and he said he believes it can be done in a couple of days. Mr. Greene insisted that the work be done at once and finally it was decided to call a special meeting of the park board tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Messrs. Cummings and Connor will be present and the matter will be settled.

Alfonso Picks up Man Who Was Thrown from Horse at Madrid

MADRID, Oct. 10.—On the way back from the royal hunting lodge, yesterday, where President Poincaré of France and King Alfonso had lunch, the automobiles frightened the horse of a civil guard and the driver was thrown against a post.

King Alfonso, who was driving his own car, witnessed the accident. He jumped out, picked the man up and, skillfully bandaged his head and then placed him in an automobile and sent him to a hospital. All this was done so quickly that President Poincaré, who was in a car ahead of the king's, was unaware of the accident, but on learning the details he sent a gold medal back to the guard.

Automobile and Electric in Collision—E. J. Frost Injured

Lowell Will Have First of its Kind in New England on Church

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Swerving his automobile from the road to the car tracks, in order to avoid certain collision with another machine, Edward J. Frost, general manager of the William Filene's Sons' company's store, received injuries last evening, on Commonwealth avenue, Chestnut Hill, when an inbound Boston Elevated car crashed into his auto, pinning him beneath it, and hurling his chauffeur, the only other occupant, 20 feet through the air to the opposite road-bed.

At the Frost home, 7 Williston road, Auburndale, last night, it was stated that his injuries were not serious, and that he suffered mostly from the shock and shaking up. Persons on the scene of the accident, however, feared that he had been badly injured. The chauffeur, Peter J. Rooney, who was on the seat beside the owner, did not require medical assistance.

The accident happened just after 5 o'clock while Mr. Frost was driving his car toward the Junction of Chestnut Hill and Commonwealth avenues. Suddenly out of the gloom a big touring car, traveling at terrific speed, approached on the wrong side of the roadway. Quick action was imperative, and Mr. Frost, failing to note the approaching electric car, turned quickly on the track. The motorist had no time to stop the car and crashed into the Frost machine, half overturning it and pinning the driver beneath. At the same moment the other touring car whizzed past and vanished into the night.

The car crew, assisted by volunteers from the passengers, righted the overturned machine and freed the driver. He was conscious, though visibly in pain. Physicians were summoned, and Mr. Frost was taken to his home in another automobile. The accident happened so quickly that no one was able to identify the machine which had caused it.

The fender and front vestibule of the electric car were damaged, but none of the passengers suffered from the crash. The front of the automobile was not badly damaged.

K. OF C. PLAN BIG PARADE

And Other Attractions
on Columbus Day

Special Trains and Reduced Rates—Local
Knights Enthusiastic

Columbus Day will be celebrated at a state holiday in New Hampshire for the first time on Monday next, and the occasion will be marked by a monster parade in Manchester in which members of the Knights of Columbus and other societies from Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill and many other Massachusetts cities will take part. The Knights of Columbus are particularly anxious to make Monday a red letter day in the history of Manchester and they have made detailed arrangements not only for their members but for their friends and the public generally to be present at the great parade and the host of other attractions which will make Monday memorable to all who attend. The neighboring city is leaving nothing undone to arrange a program that will satisfy the most exacting. Messengers from there to the various courts of the participating societies have declared that the city will be in gala attire and that the decorations, music, side attractions and all the other manifestations of honor to the great discoverer will be on a scale such as the city has not seen heretofore. The first celebration of Colum-

LOCUST BORERS

Affected Trees May be
Should be Burned

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 10.—The cutting of the locust tree for all purposes, including thinning operations and for private commercial use, should be done between the first of October and the last of March. To destroy the locust borer before they enter the wood, the removal of the bark from all desirable portions of the trunks of the trees killed is important and necessary. Tops and thinnings should be burned.

The yellow striped, long horned, winged beetle that produces the devastating borer is found from August to October on trees and the flowers of the goldenrod. During this period, eggs are deposited in the cracks of the bark of growing trees and the young borers, after being hatched, pass the winter there and in the spring bore through the bark to the heart of the tree.

The injury to the trees consists of wounds in the bark and sapwood, which if sufficiently severe and repeated year after year, result in a worthless growth or the death of the tree.

bus Day in New Hampshire will leave a standard of excellence that cannot easily be equalled in future.

Held Overhaul Meeting

The local council of the Knights of Columbus held an overhaul meeting last evening in their new club rooms on Anne street and after the transaction of the usual routine business, the rest of the time was given over to making arrangements for attending the Manchester celebration next Monday. It was decided that the members of all the local divisions meet in the society rooms in the morning and march in a body to St. Peter's church where services are to be held at 9 a. m. After the church services the members will march back to the hall where a short social session will be held. It was voted that all members with the exception of the fourth degree shall wear dark clothes, derby hats, grey ties and grey gloves. The fourth degree will wear their formal regalia. The Knights are particularly anxious that the general public should know that all people are at liberty to avail of the special trains provided for the occasion and of the reduced rates. The outward train will leave the northern depot at 12:15 p. m. immediately following the passing of the 11:30 train from Boston, and there will also be a special train for the return trip which will leave Manchester at 5 p. m. These trains will be taken by the Knights accompanied by a band, and they request that those wishing to seize the opportunity to attend the splendid celebration should plan to avail of this special service also, as it will be far more convenient for all concerned. Tickets are on sale at the following places: Goodale's drug store, Central street, D. S. O'Brien Clothing Co., Merrimack street, Carter and Sherburne's, Merrimack square, and James Brown's pharmacy, Broadway.

Record Breaking Crowd

The local Knights have notified those in Manchester in charge of arrangements to be ready for a record breaking crowd from here and to see to it that the hotels, restaurants, etc. will be prepared for the great influx of visitors. Plans will also be made by the Lowell delegation to provide special amusement features for those from this city and they, therefore, wish that as far as possible our people should keep together when in Manchester. Any one in doubt about any part of the arrangements or wishing to seek further information will receive same by telephone 1112, the new home of the Knights of Columbus on Anne street.

Broderick's, No. 1112, E. Ave.

timber affected. The numerous worm-holes in the wood also reduce its commercial value.

The presence of the insects in injurious numbers is indicated at this season of the year by the frequency of the adults on the goldenrod flowers and on the trees. So extensive has the damage of this pest been in some sections of the eastern states and the middle west that it is now considered unprofitable to grow the tree for either shade or timber. One important reason for holding this borer in check is to prevent its extension into the far west and other sections which are at present free from it.

How to Kill Grubs

Experiments have demonstrated that the grubs may be killed by spraying the trees and branches with a strong solution of kerosene emulsion. This should be done not earlier than November and not later than March because this spraying when the trees are in leaf will destroy the foliage and check growth.

This emulsion may be prepared as follows:

Kerosene emulsion (soap formula): Kerosene, 2 gallons; whale-oil soap (1 quart of soft soap) 1/2 pound; water, 1 gallon.

The soap, first finely divided, is dissolved in the water by boiling and immediately added boiling hot, away from the fire, to the kerosene. The whole mixture is then agitated violently while hot by being pumped back upon itself with a force pump and direct discharge nozzle throwing a strong stream, preferably one-eighth inch in diameter. After from three to five minutes' pumping the emulsion should be perfect, and the mixture will have increased from one-third to one-half in bulk and assumed the consistency of cream. Well made, emulsion will keep indefinitely and should be diluted as wanted for use.

For the treatment of large orchards or in municipal work requiring large quantities of the emulsion, it will be advisable to manufacture it with the aid of a steam or gasoline engine, as has been very successfully and economically done in several instances, all the work of heating, churning, etc., being accomplished by this means.

The use of whale-oil soap, especially if the emulsion is to be kept for any length of time, is strongly recommended, not only because the soap possesses considerable insecticidal value itself, but because the emulsion made with it is more permanent, does not lose its creamy consistency, and is always easily diluted, whereas with most of the other common soaps the mixture becomes cheesy after a few days and needs reheating to mix with water. Soft soap answers very well, and 1 quart of it may be taken in lieu of the hard soaps.

Use Rain Water

In limestone regions or where the water is very hard some of the soap will combine with the lime or magnesia in the water, and more or less of the oil will be freed, especially when the emulsion is diluted. Before use, such water should be broken with ice, or rain water employed.

For use on locust trees dilute 1 gallon of emulsion with 2 gallons of soft water.

Pure kerosene and pure petroleum will effectively kill the insects, but may do some damage to the bark of the trees.

Experiments with carbolic emulsion indicate that this preparation is of no value to kill the young grubs.

According to Dr. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology, the brown and apparently dying condition of the yellow or black locust trees in the states of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio is caused by the insect known as the locust leaf beetle. Nearly every summer the brownish appearance of these trees attracts attention and causes considerable inquiry and some alarm. However, with a few exceptions, the trees recover and come out fresh and green the following spring.

A more complete description of the locust borer and methods for its control may be obtained from circular No. 53 of the bureau of entomology, which is written by A. D. Hopkins in charge of forest insect investigations. The bulletin contains photographs of the borer.

When in need of a blood medicine remember Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—not a patent medicine but a doctor's prescription, now used the world over because of their recognized value as a household medicine. A tonic for the blood and nerves and a specific for diseases caused by thin blood.

NEW BIRD REGULATIONS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Hunters in all parts of the country are much interested in the new regulations governing the shooting of migratory birds. These regulations went into effect October 1. The department issued a few months ago the proposed new law and requested that if any one took serious objections to these regulations they would be given a chance to be heard. There were many protests at first from the Cape, the Vineyard and other sections of New England, but so far as is known here there have been no hearings in Washington with regard to the matter, and it is to be assumed that the sportsmen are satisfied with the proposed law.

In some states the new law will not materially affect the hunting privileges because it will not make any greater restrictions than are imposed by the state laws already in existence. In others the change will be more keenly felt. The five-year closed season for certain game birds, the prohibition of shooting between sunrise and sunset, and the long closed season for birds along certain navigable waters are the most important features of the new regulations. The new law authorized the department of agriculture to formulate regulations covering the points needed for the federal protection of migratory birds. These regulations were to fix and prescribe the closed seasons with due regard to temperature, breeding habits and the times and lines of migration of the different classes of birds. A committee of experts were selected to prepare these regulations which were made public for three months before final adoption and approval by the president.

This committee has fixed suitable districts in different parts of the country in which it shall be unlawful to shoot, kill or capture migratory birds, and at the same time give the hunter all the sport possible without threatening the total extinction of the birds. It is understood that where the states have suitable laws for the protection of migratory birds nothing in the new regulations shall be permitted to conflict with them. Hearings have been held in different sections of the country, and the general approval with which these regulations have been received as while has been most gratifying to the committee, and it is pretty conclusively that public sentiment has become aroused to the need of protection of the native birds, and what opposition there may have been, it is believed, will be thoroughly overcome when the new law is in operation. The provision that the new law should not interfere with the bird laws already existing in the states required much work from the committee. There are something like 700 laws governing bird shooting in the 48 states, and in order to harmonize them a number of exceptions have been included with the regulations which, it is believed, will make the new law a harmonious scheme for conserving the bird life uniformly throughout the country.

As has already been concisely stated, the country has been divided into two zones, the first zone to be known as the breeding zone, and number two as the wintering zone. The new law prohibits shooting between sunset and sunrise, and this restriction has been seriously objected to in New England and a few of the western states, but the objection is not sustained because this protection already exists in a number of states including New York. It is claimed that at least half of the hunters in the country have been subject to this restriction for years by the laws of their states and most of them endorse it as a proper measure. The state of Louisiana has gone a step farther, for the shooting of birds after the noon hour is prohibited.

A five-year closed season has been authorized, extended to September, 1918, covering band tailed pigeons, swans, curlews and three varieties of crane. The enormous decrease in these birds threatens their total extinction. A closed season will extend from January 1 to November 1 for all migratory birds passing over or at rest upon any of the navigable waters between certain designated points. These are the Mississippi river from New Orleans to Minneapolis, the Ohio river between its mouth and Pittsburgh and the Missouri river between its mouth and Bismarck, North Dakota.

Aside from the cattelle value of birds, their destruction by the wholesale methods which have been in operation has meant a great loss to the nation. All sections of the country have suffered from insect pests which did not exist until the slaughter of the birds had lessened their protection, and it is claimed millions of dollars are lost annually from the destruction of trees because of the scarcity of robbers. Where there are plenty of song-birds, no trees are seriously damaged. It is further claimed by scientists that birds can do more to overcome the gypsy moth than any human device.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE

Again Discussed at General Convention of Protestant Episcopal Church—Re-marriage Forbidden
NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Marriage and divorce again came to the fore today at the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church. At a session of the house of deputies prior to a joint meeting of that body and the house of bishops, the diocese of Los Angeles submitted a resolution suggesting that marriage after divorce be forbidden by the canons of the church. The diocese of Michigan, dipping into the field of eugenics, came forward with a resolution which would forbid Episcopal clergymen uniting in marriage any couple the parties of which had not first obtained a physician's certificate to the effect that they were "normal mentally and not afflicted with a disease rendering marriage inadvisable."

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM READY

Will Meet Rindge Manual Tomorrow — Lawrence Academy Plays Here on Monday

Lowell high will meet Rindge Manual Training school of Cambridge on the gridiron at Spaulding park tomorrow afternoon and a slashing game is expected to be the result. Rindge Manual is an unknown quantity in football circles for they have not met any of the large teams. Tomorrow's contest, however, is sure to be a hard fought battle as Lowell high does not rest. All of the first team are anxious for a game and feel certain that the team which outplays them now will have to be made of championship material.

On next Monday afternoon at Spaulding Park Lowell high will play the strong Lawrence Academy football team. It is seldom that the local team has two games as heavy as these contests coming together in the early part of the season.

The team which will probably take the field tomorrow and lineup for the kick-off is Corbett, center, Duval and Ferguson, guards, Captain Cullen and Moehrie, tackles; Potter, Cahill, Desmond or Howan ends; Snyder, Brunelle, Howers and Bennett in the back field.

CAPT. JOHN CULLEN

MANY DESERTERS
MEXICO CITY, Oct. 10.—The failure of General Aubert to get to Torreon in time to relieve it—a mission upon which he set out from Saltillo nearly a month ago with a large force of federal troops—is explained by the fact that the greater part of his men deserted him before he had completed half of his journey. He is reported to have reached Madero, 25 miles to the east of Torreon when news of the evacuation of that city reached him. Immediately the vanguard of the retreating federal troops came into view, General Aubert's men fled with all their ammunition and arms.

General Aubert is said today to be at Hidalgo, 50 miles west of Saltillo, to which point he retreated with the men who had evacuated Torreon.

LYNN HISTORICAL SOCIETY
LYNN, Oct. 10.—The building of the Lynn Historical society on Green street was dedicated last night with elaborate exercises. Former Congressman Samuel W. McCall and Mayor George H. Newhall delivered addresses. The historical feature of the occasion was contributed by the president of the society, Charles J. H. Woodbury, Sr. D. whose topic was "Historical Priorities of Lynn."

ARTICLE ASSAILS COURT

Sensation Caused at Kier, Russia by Item Denouncing Court for Action in Murder Trial

KIEV, Russia, Oct. 10.—A sensation was caused here today by an article in the conservative and anti-semitic newspaper Kievskan, assailing the strongest terms the court trying Mendel Bellish on the charge of murdering Andrew Yushinsky, a Christian boy of Kiev in March, 1912. The newspaper, which usually sells at 2 cents, fetched $1.50 a copy today.

The newspaper besides attacking the court and the public prosecutor, tears the indictment against Bellish to shreds in terms which would be surprising even in the most radical journals.

The writer, while denouncing the alleged unscrupulousness of the Jewish attempting to obtain the release of Bellish says the charge against him is a charge against the whole religion of the most infamous superstition.

The articles deplore the decision of the prosecution to appear before the world with such an outfit, adding:

"Injustice will not produce the desired fruits. However, advantageous or necessary it may be from a party standpoint to prove the existence of 'ritual murders' the prosecution ought not to have and has not the right to undertake the supply of the living object indispensable for a trial of this kind."

"It is a monstrous theory that Bellish is of no account and may even be acquitted providing that the ritual is established. Bellish may be insignificant. Nevertheless you have no right to imprison him unless you are convinced of his guilt. You have treated him like a rabbit on the table of a vivisectionist. The time perhaps will come when Chaplinsky (the public prosecutor of the Kiev court) will be replaced by some one anxious to produce the factors of outrages against the Jews. What would you say if the choice fell on you for such a sacrifice?"

SISTER MARTINA

Receives Visit from Her Brother, Fr. Tragesser of Emmitsburg, Md.

Rev. George J. Tragesser, pastor of St. Anthony's parish, Emmitsburg, Md., was in Lowell this week and visited his sister, Sister Martina of St. John's hospital. Sister Martina has been in charge of St. John's hospital nights for the past 25 years. She possesses a wonderful memory and can recall the name of every patient that has been in St. John's hospital during that time.

Fr. Tragesser's parish is located within the shadow of Mt. St. Joseph, the mother house of the Sisters of Charity, and about a mile and a half from Mt. St. Mary's college. While in town Fr. Tragesser was the guest of Rev. Fr. Kerrigan of St. Patrick's church, at dinner. Fr. Kerrigan was ordained at Mt. St. Mary's college and was a close friend of Fr. Tragesser. The latter, after spending a day in Lowell left for Montreal to attend the consecration of Bishop Forbes, an old Mt. St. Mary's friend.

Nurses Graduated

A class of seven nurses was graduated at St. John's hospital last evening. The exercises were attended by the nurses and nuns and a very pretty program was carried out. Ice cream and cake were served after the banquet. The young women graduates were: Miss Margaret O'Dwyer, Lowell; Miss Mary J. White, Boston; Miss Helen Fitzpatrick, Lowell; Miss Cecile Picard, Lowell; Miss Teresa Forbes, Fitchburg; Miss Agnes Donnelly, New Brunswick; Miss Mary Lynch, Lowell.

AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

HARVEST SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT LAST EVENING A BIG SUCCESS

A harvest supper and entertainment constituted the attraction at St. John's Episcopal church last evening. The affair was under the auspices of the ladies of the parish and there were over 100 persons present.

The tables abounded with epicurean delights, and the menu embraced the usual wide variety of fruits, vegetables and dishes associated with the time of bounteous harvest.

The kitchen was in charge of Mrs. Mary Spencer, while Mrs. A. E. Moore and Mrs. Bishop had supervision of the dining-room.

One of the most attractive tables was that on which harvest vegetable and fruit products were piled high in all their many forms and colors. This table was in charge of Mrs. Maria Palmer, Mrs. Clarence Edwards and Mrs. Willis Holt.

For those inclined to sweets, a wide variety of candy was displayed in an attractive manner on a table in charge of Mrs. George Walker and Mrs. James Regan.

Following the supper, an entertainment was given under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Wilde. A clever sleight-of-hand and juggling act was "put over"—to use a theatrical term—by Jonah Vennard, while the violin and piano duets rendered by Miss May Tyler and William Galloway received enthusiastic applause.

A full evening of merriment was concluded with general dancing, in which the young people engaged until the fair broke up at a seasonable hour.

DEFENDS CURRENCY BILL

Pres. Wilson Says Action of the Bankers at Convention Did Not Represent General Sentiment

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—A concerted defense by administration forces against the criticisms of the currency reform bill by bankers at the Boston convention of the American Bankers' association, and against what was alleged to be an organized effort to hinder its consideration and passage, served to clear the air in Washington yesterday, and to inspire a new feeling of confidence in democratic circles.

A senate debate in which the bankers' criticisms came in for sharp answer from friends of the bill on the senate floor, found its echo later in the day when President Wilson made plain to callers his own view of the recent developments surrounding the bill.

The president let it be known that he did not think the views of the Boston bankers' convention, as they bore on the currency bill now before the senate, represented the general public sentiment of the country.

In the president's view, the attacks made on the bill by the Boston conference represented the activities of men whom he believed to be acting with sincerity but who as individuals refused to yield their position of control of the country's financial system. The expressions in the senate were more emphatic.

"I think this Boston meeting had for its obvious purpose to work up opposition to this bill," said Senator Owen, "and either to force the bankers' view or to delay or defeat this bill."

Senator Thomas talked of an "organized conspiracy" to misrepresent the president and impede legislation; Senator Overman declared the Boston conference did not reflect the views of the general public; and Senator Owen, answering a question by his democratic colleagues, said he believed there was throughout the country for the fulfillment of the motto adopted at Atlantic City, at the C. E. convention, and reiterated at Los Angeles: "A saloonless state bankers' conventions which have adopted resolutions criticizing the currency measure.

The results of the senate debate, and of the later discussions by the president with visitors at the White House were to develop the following facts:

That no effort will be made to make the currency bill a party measure in the senate, unless it becomes impossible to get it through in any other way.

That the president believes early action on the bill is essential while many democratic senators will oppose any effort to unduly force the situation.

That the criticism of the Boston bankers' conference has tended to solidify the democratic ranks in support of the bill.

The meeting was in line with a general program to be carried out throughout the country for the fulfillment of the motto adopted at Atlantic City, at the C. E. convention, and reiterated at Los Angeles: "A saloonless nation in 1920." The method to be employed, is summed up in the words, "educate and exterminate." Mr. Poling was introduced by Secretary John A. Nichols of the state prohibition society.

"We will all agree," said the speaker, that the paramount issue, today, is human welfare. The highest conservation of humanity. Only as men are able to convince people that they do stand for these things, can they win the confidence and support of the people. We do well to remember that no machine ever takes the place of a man. There must be a man somewhere, to man the machine.

"Nothing I can do as a citizen, takes my place, the place that I ought to fill every day, persistently, insistently, throughout the year. My responsibility does not end on election day. No law on the statute books ever takes the place of an enlightened, conscientious, patriotic citizenship. I am just as responsible for good government as the public official—to the limit of my opportunity. When we come to understand that the city, the state and the nation are all wrong morally, when we come to appreciate the fact that we are 'it,' things will happen that perhaps are not happening today.

"We make a great mistake in criticizing indiscriminately, the man who employs a child. The child is fighting for a chance to get bread and clothing. We do not solve the problem by taking the child out of the factory. We must go back and find the reason. Until we do something with the unspeakable institution that forces them into the factories, we will not solve the problem. John Barleycorn stands in the middle of the state highway. Jesus said, 'Suffer little children to come unto me,' but they do not have half a chance to go to him today. I believe in pensions for mothers, but one out of every five children born to a drunken father is an idiot or insane. Frank Nell, author of the movement to pension mothers, said, 'As long as the state does not pension mothers, thousands of them will live on with drunken husbands, and the state runs the risk of having to care for these idiotic or insane children.' I believe in the destruction of the system that is responsible, more than anything else, for the condition that makes pensions for mothers necessary."

NATIONAL RESOURCES STUDIED

Large Amounts of Field Work Being Carried on by United States Geological Survey in all Parts of U. S.

Questions of material development—of the value and best use of land or of the utilization of the country's latent resources—occupy a prominent place in the public thought these days.

Among such questions are those relating to the location or development of gold and silver deposits, or oil wells, or artesian water supplies; to the value of coal lands; to the possibilities of developing the water power on rivers; to the use of land for dry farming; and to the proper location of transmission lines or interurban railways. On all these questions and others relating to the United States geological survey is the court of last resort. In answering these inquiries the survey distributes over a million printed reports and maps each year and answers thousands of letters concerning areas not covered by printed reports.

Some 25,000 inquiries are received by the survey every year from the general land office as to the character of land—whether these lands are valuable for coal, mineral deposits, or agricultural use, or have any possibilities for the development of water power or reservoirs or for irrigation, as the classification of the public lands is by law made one of the primary functions of the geological survey.

To prepare these maps and reports and to answer these letters of inquiry requires an intimate, first-hand knowledge of the questions involved that can be had only in the field, so that, at this season of the year, the Washington office of the survey is almost deserted and the men are scattered from Maine to California—from the lava slopes of Hawaii to the snow fields of northern Alaska.

The work is carried on in these lines:

The topographic branch makes maps showing the surface of the earth, with its streams, rivers, lakes, roads, houses, towns—maps that are being used by the geologists as base maps, by engineers to locate railroads, roads, canals, sewer or drainage ditches, water power and irrigation projects, by automobilists and trappers as road maps, and for a hundred other purposes. The demand for these maps may be judged from that most of the eastern states have appropriated or are appropriating money to help pay for them, the states paying one-half or more of the cost, and by the further fact that though the maps are sold, over half a million of them are distributed each year.

The geologic branch is studying the earth's rocks, their history and contents, and, with this foundation, is mapping the whole United States so as to show, ultimately, just where gold and silver and the other precious and useful metals do or may occur; where coal, oil, gas, phosphate, potash and other salts lie; where clays, building stones, and other structural materials of the highest grade can be found. A large share of the work is in the west, where the public lands are being examined for classification at the rate of 10 million acres a year, so that the government may know which are coal, phosphate, oil and mineral lands, and thus dispose of them under the proper provisions of law.

The water-resources branch studies the underground waters for the purpose of determining their availability for domestic use or for irrigation; the surface waters to determine their amount and fitness for use as water supplies of cities and towns; and for power for irrigation; and also makes studies bearing on flood control and similar projects.

At present a large amount of the survey's funds is expended in examining and classifying the public lands in the west; this expenditure reducing the work in the eastern states much below the amount formerly done. In fact, a large part of the work now under way in the east is done in states that contribute one-half or more of the expense of the work. It is, of course, to be regretted that lack of funds will not permit the continuance of the work in the east on the former scale and at the same time carrying forward of the much-needed classification work in the west.

RECONSTRUCTION OF NEW HAVEN

It is indeed a persistent and prejudiced pessimist who would deny that the officials of the New Haven railroad are making honest efforts to repair the injury brought on by willful extravagance and impractical policies. Yet it has been the fashion to find fault with the road so long that there are still many people adversely critical about all that concerns the future of the road and especially its management. Much of this attitude is due to the continual attacks of those who have had an axe to grind and others who blindly followed disgruntled leaders, but much of it was founded on a sincere desire to see better things dawn for the railroad which could be and should be one of the greatest contributing influences to the prosperity of this region.

The management of the New Haven may answer much of the virulent criticism directed at it more fully, by silence, but there has been serious criticism of a type that called for explanation and action. Of this variety was the finding of the interstate commerce commission which after patient investigation condemned the road on its management, its acquisition of extraneous interests, its equipment, its provision for safety and many lesser points. In the days of the able Mr. McElwain we would expect such a harsh finding to be met by a dignified silence and possibly an answer in kind, but the New Haven road is now in different hands, and the fact was never emphasized more strongly than by the answer which has been made to the finding of the commission.

The directors of the road held a very important meeting on October 3rd for the declared purpose of giving "elaborate supervision to the details of the business and also in considering the financial, corporate and physical condition of the properties for which they are trustees." They covered all the main points in the report of the interstate commerce commission and took steps to have the recommendations attended to as soon as possible. They laid stress on the important fact, however, that "making large changes in the structure of any organization is necessarily a slow and delicate process, which should be done so far as possible without demoralizing the forces." Even the most aggressive member of the commission will agree with that.

The most important step taken was the naming of committees of the directors, "confering with others" to proceed on the following phases of former New Haven activity: The Connecticut trolley situation, the Rhode Island trolley situation, the steamship lines, the relations of the company with the Boston and Albany railroad, Western Massachusetts trolley lines, and relations of the New Haven with the Boston and Maine. These various committees were given full power "to call upon officers and employees for any and all information which will be promptly furnished," and they were also given permission to "incur reasonable expense." A representative committee was formed, headed by Howard Elliott, to call upon the interstate commerce commission and the attorney-general to lay before them the plans that were formulated for the upbuilding, or more properly the reconstruction, of the New Haven railroad.

It seems as though at last there are practical men at the head of the involved affairs of the New Haven and the voice of public opinion has been heard and heeded. This public opinion has been largely destructive in the past, possibly with good results, but it should now become constructive. When the officials of the road are showing such an evident desire to meet reasonable requirements, there is no valid reason for a continuation of an adversely pessimistic public attitude.

BIRD TO GARDNER

He is a very game Bird indeed who answers the invitation of Mr. Gardner to a wallowing party in Fenwick hall, Boston, on Oct. 15th, for the purpose of giving one hour to the discussion of personalities. Incidentally he is a brave and wise Bird even though he refused to be wallowed for he reminds the excitable republican nominee that if the latter has exposures sufficiently weighty to make against the progressive candidate, exposures which would make imperative the hiring of a special hall and one hour of revelations. It is his duty to the voters of Massachusetts to make those exposures now. Apparently Mr. Bird, whose character, by the way, sincerity of purpose and devotion to principle, should make him indifferent to vindictive attacks, has discovered the "vote-catching" motive back of the tiresome bravado of Mr. Gardner and refuses to take part in any controversy which would "lower the dignity of Massachusetts campaigns for governor."

It is nice and delicate of Mr. Gardner to set aside one hour for giving a "wallow" to the progressive nominee, but it would be far more creditable to him if he had decided to do this before ridiculing and assailing the character he has called "Dr. Jekyll." If Mr.

Gardner has suffered from the personal attacks of certain progressives he must find consolation in the reflection that he has invited that regrettable type of political attack. Had he treated Mr. Bird with the courtesy displayed by Mr. Walsh—which courtesy Mr. Bird publicly commends—he would have been treated by Mr. Bird as Mr. Walsh has been treated, with dignity and moderation of speech. If it has been made a campaign of personalities, Mr. Gardner is the greatest offender.

Democrats and the Walsh sympathizers in all parties may be encouraged by the fact that in his latest letter to Gardner Mr. Bird calls Mr. Walsh his "formidable opponent." If Gardner continues to blunder so lamely, the same epithet will apply to Mr. Bird from the democratic side, as from the present indications it looks as though Mr. Bird will get a great many votes that would have been republican had Benton been the chosen candidate.

OUR MUCKRAKERS

Mr. A. G. Cummock hit the nail squarely on the head yesterday at the dinner to the visiting bankers at the Textile school when he said that we have far too many muckrakers. No one can live long in Lowell without being convinced of the fact that it is the general rule for many Lowell people to deride the city, its institutions, its government, and its other leading civic features, leaving it to outsiders to praise the many excellent things to be found within its borders. Mr. Cummock referred especially to the prevailing tendency to throw stones at our mayor and commissioners after election, even though before taking office they were on the crest of the wave of popularity. His remarks are as true as the popular tendency is regrettable and none are more conscious of the fact than the officials interested.

After elections the mayor and commissioners are not the officials of any part of the public but of the whole public and they should receive the undivided support for which Mr. Cummock pleaded. They cannot do their best work if they feel that the people are not with them and they cannot have the enthusiasm that comes from public co-operation. When there is obvious reason to condemn, the press and public will condemn, but too many of our people make up their minds to condemn at all times whether the occasion justifies it or not. The man who votes for any candidate for civic office pledges his support to the man of his choice, and the public spirited citizen of all parties will support the popular choice in everything conducive to public good. Muckrakers die hard and we shall have many of them with us for a long time to come, but let us hope for a better spirit in the future.

CHURCHILL ON HOME RULE

If there has been any feeling here that the wooden rife bluff of the bitter Ulster minority or the impractical conference scheme of Lord Loreburn had weakened the cause of Irish home rule, it will be dispelled by the recent speech of Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, who, speaking in Scotland, declared that nothing will prevent the government from carrying through the home rule bill as planned. The answer of Mr. Carson has not yet been recorded but like one of the dragons of medieval legend he may be expected to fairly breathe forth smoke and flames.

For the first time in any great struggle in which the fortunes of Ireland have been involved, of recent years, the world sees the liberal party of England advocating Irish home rule, not as a sentimental proposition but as a matter of fact-economic change. There are, of course, a great many sentimental reasons why Ireland should have self-government, but it is a relief to see the nationalists attending to the interests of their constituents in a grave and dignified manner, leaving the tumultuous howlings of forced devotion to the small body of northern malcontents.

THE CHINESE FLAG

In accordance with the custom of the proprietor of The Sun to fly the flag of all nations from the Sun building on their respective national holidays, the beautiful flag of the new China with its five colored bars representing the five races in the union has floated from the roof of our building all day. It comes appropriately after the very recent election of Yuan-Shi-Kai as constitutional president of the Chinese republic for a term of five years, and we hope the flag of a great democratic ideal will float as undisturbed over the ancient land during his term of office as it has floated today in this city where many natives of the flowery kingdom are giving us an example in thrift, progressiveness and honesty.

We note with pleasure that the Lawrence Eagle is about to move into its new building on Essex street. The Eagle is apparently reaping the reward of its zealous efforts to furnish the people with a live, up-to-date newspaper.

Seen and Heard

Little George was six years old at New Years and the family was much interested in having him start to school in February, but he insisted that he was not getting.

One day his grandmother said to him, "George, you are going to school with sister this winter, aren't you?"

"No, grandma, I'm not going to school at all. I can't read, nor I can't write, nor I can't sing, and I'd like to know what good I'd be at school."—Woman's Home Companion.

Prof. Brander Matthews, the eminent critic, was talking at Columbia University about the wretched quality of modern American fiction.

"When I look over our best sellers," said Professor Matthews, "I can't believe that these writers are really doing their best. I believe that they must loathe their work—that they must be ashamed of their work."

"But such work if it catches on pays, while fine work can never pay like a best seller. And so I suppose we must say of our modern American novelists as of most other people:

"They give up what they like to do in order to get what they like to have."—New York World.

Enrico Caruso, at a dinner preceding his departure for the season in London, said that when he grew too old to sing he would probably teach.

"Teaching the voice is a difficult task," he continued. "It is a fine thing to be a good teacher. Some pupils are so very stupid."

"You can no more hurry a voice than you can hurry a flower; but most pupils want to become star singers in a month or two."

"A lady said to one of my friends, a superb teacher:

"I'm going abroad next month, and I want 25 lessons in voice culture, before I sail."

"Impossible!" said the teacher.

"Why impossible," said the lady. "I could take two lessons a day some days."

"Or, better still," said my friend sarcastically, "you could take the whole 25 lessons all at once, on the other side. A day would do it, then."

"Splendid!" cried the lady. "Shall we make it tomorrow?"—New York Telegraph.

One of the most remarkable wells in Oklahoma is owned by J. C. McSpadden at Tahlequah, Okla. This well not only furnishes an abundance of pure water almost ice cold in the summer, but it affords a supply of chilled air which is utilized for a cooling plant that keeps the McSpadden home cooler on the hottest day than any summer resort within a thousand miles. It is a freak well all around. When the well was sunk it was for a cistern.

When about 50 feet deep the bottom broke through, revealing a sort of cavern in which there was a tremendous flow of ice cold water. Apparently this is an inexhaustible supply, for the well was sunk years ago and the water has remained at the same level ever since.

One may open the cover of this well and his hat will be lifted from the head by a rush of air from the well that feels like an icy blast. Where the water or the cold air comes from is a puzzle no one has answered. Unlike most underground streams, this one changes temperature in the winter, getting much colder. While the water stands 45 feet below the surface of the ground, yet in winter ice five inches thick has been known to form in the well.

Taking advantage of the fresh well's supply of cold air, Mr. McSpadden sealed the top of the well with a concrete cap and placed pipes in it. Through the other he draws a supply of cold air that is piped through every room of his six-room cottage. These pipes reduce the temperature many degrees even on the hottest days, and when the weather is moderately cool the house can be made so cold as to be uncomfortable.

BEAUTIFUL HANDS

O you hands—they are strangely fair! Fairer for the jewels that sparkle there—
Fair—for the witchery of the spell that every key alone can tell—
But when their delicate touches rest Here in my own do I love them best, As I clasp with eager acquisitive spans My glorious treasure of beautiful hands.

Marvelous, wonderful, beautiful hands! They can coax roses to bloom in the strands Of your brown tresses, and ribbons will twine Under mysterious touches of thine. Into such hands as these the soul. And foster the heart under such a control As only the strength of your love unfeigned demands.

My passionate love for your beautiful hands As I remember the first fair touch Of those beautiful hands that I love so much—
I seem to thrill as I then was thrilled. Kissing the glove that I found unrolled.

When I met your gaze, and the queenly bow As you said to me, laughingly, "Keep it now! And stand alone in a dream I stand Kissing this ghost of your beautiful hand."

When first I loved, in the long ago, And held your hand as I told you so— Pressed and caressed it and gave it a life— And said "I could die for a hand like this!"

Little I dreamed love's fulness yet Had to ripen when eyes were wet, And prayers were vain in their wild demands For one warm touch of your beautiful hands.

Beautiful hands! O beautiful hands! Could you reach out of the alien lands Where you are lingering, and give me, longed for—
Only a touch—were it ever so slight— My heart were soothed, and my weary brain Would hush itself into rest again; For there is no solace the world commands Like the caress of your beautiful hands.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

Athletes and Athletics

Both managers have today's game all counted up on their respective score cards. McGraw figures that Bender will pitch for the Athletics and is sure that his batters will pound him today. Mack, on the other hand, thinks that his men have taken the measure of the National leaguers and that the series is practically decided now.

Bush will be a much feted person when this world's series has passed into history. Any nineteen-year-old boy who can take the mound against a team of veteran champions and hold them to five hits is deserving of all the praise that he receives. If the series goes over to next week Bush may have another chance at the Giants.

Cleveland and Pittsburgh are having a hard time getting anyone to see their games. With the series even up now the remainder of the contests should be well patronized.

The Bunting soccer team is playing a much better brand of football this year than they did last season. Tomorrow's game with the Haverhill club is certain to draw a large audience.

Herzog may not be the most popular man playing baseball today but he is a valuable player to his manager. The Giants' third baseman is always talking while in the field and is the greatest "slobber" on the club if a team mate makes a slip. Herzog is cordially hated by the majority of National leaguers.

Gunboat Smith, although he beat Carl Morris on a foul and had it on him, did not show any marvelous display of hitting ability last night. He has got to go better than that to expect to do things to Boston's Tar Baby.

Yale and Princeton have at last agreed to row two boat races. The fall race will be decided at Princeton on Saturday, Oct. 25th. This is something that has never before occurred in athletics between the two institutions.

Fletcher picked up the moist pellet that Tressau flings and made a wild heave in the first inning which allowed two runs to score. This is the big reason why his teammates hate to see the big Frenchman in the box and not because he is unpopular.

Captain Hogsett is once more a Dartmouth regular. His shoulder is in fair condition and it was announced last night that he would start Saturday's game with Vermont.

Collins and Baker were taking a long chance when they tried to get away with that double steal. Judging by results it was an altogether unexpected move for McLean was so surprised that he dropped the ball.

Yousuf Hassane, the crack Turkish wrestler, who meets Mortison in Boston on Columbus day, is some grappler and his record speaks for itself. Hassane has never been thrown by a man.

anywhere near his own weight. Hassane was one of Frank Gotch's wrestling partners and learned the game under the eye of the greatest wrestler of all time.

Williams is going to be represented in large numbers at the game tomorrow between that college and Harvard at the Stadium. Williams has not shown anything marvelous this year in the line of versatile attack and Harvard should have an easy time with them.

Howard Drew, the negro sprinter, has announced that he will not enter any race under sixty yards this winter. This will bar him from the B. A. A. meet. Drew and the Boston A. A. officials are not on very good terms and perhaps it will be just as well although the sporting public who always take in the Huh track games would like to see the Springfield champ perform.

The fans are now anxious to see a battle between the two recruits, Shawkey and Dumarec, both of whom have been touted so much by their respective managers. Both have shown a lot of "stuff" during the season just passed but what they would do in a world's series contest is beyond conjecture.

"Home Run" Baker will have to push over and allow Schang a seat on his bench. Schang's clout yesterday into the right field bleachers was the equal of the one which Baker slammed out in the first game of the series.

CUBS BEAT WHITE SOX
CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—In a 13-inning battle the Chicago Nationals made the standing in the Chicago championship series one and one yesterday afternoon, downing the American leaguers 6 to 5. The victory of the Cubs was due mainly to the courage and coolness of "Big Jim" Vaughn, who refused to give way before the vigorous attack of the South Siders.

FANS ATTEND IN LARGE NUMBERS
That the perfect score board which is being shown daily at Mathewson's ball, Dutton street, during the world's series, has met with the approval of the fans of this city is shown by the increasing patronage daily. Most of those who saw the game yesterday got so interested that they forgot they weren't where they wanted to be.

Whenever there was a hit by either team, the crowd yelled and jumped on the seats. They all stood up at the beginning of the seventh inning. "All up for the seventh," somebody shouted, and up they sat. In tight places they yelled for the various stars to "ring the bell." Every time the ball rings it meant there was a hit, and when it rang twice it was a two-bagger. It doesn't require much imagination for a person to see in his mind exactly how every play is accomplished. The plays come in a steady stream and there are no waits of any kind.

GUNBOAT SMITH WON
NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Gunboat Smith of California defeated Carl Morris of Oklahoma in the fifth round of their 10-round fight here last night. The referee disqualified Morris for fouling. The California heavyweight had the better of the match in every round except the second.

PIRATES WON FROM NAPS
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 10.—The Pittsburgh Nationals shut out the Cleveland Americans yesterday, 5 to 0 in the fourth game of the inter-city series. The clubs are now even with two wins each.

Adams for Pittsburgh pitched effectively and only once did the Cleveland advance a runner as far as third base.

MATTY WINNING HIS OWN GAME IN SECOND WORLD'S SERIES CONTEST AND STRUNK NIPPED

MATHEWSON SCORING IN TENTH, SECOND WORLD'S SERIES GAME.

STRUNK OUT AT PLATE IN NINTH, SAME GAME

PHOTOS COPYRIGHT 1913 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Mathewson, the veteran New York Giant pitcher, was the hero of the second game, a sensational, hard fought, ten-inning clash, in the world's series at Shibe park. By his masterly twisting and his timely hitting he really won his own game. In the top picture of the accompanying illustration he is shown crossing the plate in the tenth inning on Fletcher's single, which also sent in Herzog. Matty's single had just a moment before sent in Grant, who ran for McLean. Thus the three winning runs were scored. The lower picture shows Strunk out at the plate in the ninth in the great defensive stand of the Giants in preventing the Athletics from scoring when they had a man on third and second with none out. Strunk is being tagged by big Larry McLean of the Giants on a perfect throw by Wiltse, the wiry Giant pitcher, who showed his versatility by playing a great game at first base. Empire Connolly is calling Strunk out immediately following this close play. Barry was run down between third and home for the second out, and then Murphy was easily out to Wiltse, thus retiring the side and completing the end of the rally of the Athletics to win the game.

WORLD'S RECORD
Uhlan Went a Mile in 1.54 1-2 at Lexington, Kentucky, Yesterday
LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 10.—Uhlan, the world's champion trotter, owned by C. K. G. Billings, yesterday lowered the world's record for a mile to 1.54 1-2. Uhlan set the previous record at 1.55 last year, the horse on both attempts against time being accompanied by a running mate.
Uhlan yesterday was driven by Charles Tanner and was favored with a perfect track and beautiful weather conditions. Trotting in magnificent form he made the quarters in 25 3/4, 57 1/4, 1.23 1/4 and 1.54 1/2. Horse and driver were given an ovation at the finish when the audience realized that a new world's record had been made.

Cheeny captured the Transylvania stake for 208 trotters, the feature of the Grand Circuit yesterday, winning after losing the first heat and coming within a half second of the record set for the event by Penia Maid in 1909. Cheeny's best time was made in the third heat, when she trotted the mile in 2.04 1/2, equalling her own record. Silk Hat was drawn before the race was started. The first heat was won by Newtall, the Texas mare, breaking badly and finishing fourth. Fleming held her well in hand, however, in the second and third, and she won with ease in both. In the fourth Peter McCormick made a strong challenge at the turn into the stretch, but broke and dropped back, finishing third. The winner was the favorite in the betting.

In the 2.05 class pace carried over from yesterday, McHelean Queen won the fourth and final heat, the last heat in 2.03 1/2, lowering her own record a second and a quarter. She was well driven by her owner, Charles A. Valentine, of Columbus, O.

The 2.17 pace was won in straight heats by A. C. McKendrie's Vasterus. Alfreda Todd, driven by Murphy, took second money, after finishing seventh in the opening heat.

Better Than Calomel
Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets. These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth, like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel is so strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "dizziness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. ## ATHLETICS WON, 8 TO 2

Bush, 19 Year Old Pitcher Held Giants to 5 Hits—Teammates Knocked Tressau off Mound

POLO GROUNDS, N. Y., Oct. 10.—The Philadelphia Athletics swamped the New York National league champions yesterday under a fusillade of hits, defeating the Giants by a score of 8 to 2. Bush's fine pitching together with Collins' hitting and good defensive work and a long four base smash were bright features of the Athletics' game.

Tressau was found for five runs in the first two innings. Bush allowed only two hits. Doyle made a scintillating double play unassisted in the seventh inning. The two clubs played the fourth game of the world series at Shibe park, Philadelphia, today.

Over 35,000 people saw yesterday's battle at the Polo grounds.

First Inning
The announcement that Bush would pitch caused hundreds to murmur in the stands: "This is the pitcher that Connie Mack has kept under cover for the last six weeks in order to use him in the world's series." Ira Thomas, the Athletics' catcher, said that Bush had a world of speed and a fine breaking curve when he warmed up.

Tressau's splitter broke over the plate for a strike. His second pitch was a ball. Fletcher threw out Murphy at first. It was a close play, the ball beating the runner by only a step. Tressau had plenty of speed and break to the ball. Oldring singled to right when Tressau sent up a double. Collins took a strike, the ball curving over the plate near his knees. Tressau then shot over another strike, putting the batter in a hole. Collins singled over second, Oldring going to third. Then came Baker to the bat and the Athletics' rooters gave a mighty cheer.

Baker missed the first one. The New York pitcher tried to get a double foul, but Baker missed the second one by a foot. Oldring scored on Baker's single to left, Collins being held at second. Tressau put over a strike on McLean. Collins and Baker made a double play, putting them on third and second respectively. McLean dropped Tressau's pitch. McLean struck out; McLean to Merkle. Collins and Baker scored when Fletcher took Strunk's grounder and threw wild to the grandstand. Strunk went to second on the play. Barry pop flied to Fletcher. Three runs, three hits; one error.

The first pitched ball was a strike and the second a foul. After having two strikes on the batter, Bush pitched three successive balls. Herzog out, Barry to McLean. Bush had a basketful of speed but seemed somewhat out of command. Doyle got an infield hit which Bush was unable to field in time. Doyle had a good start on the pitcher in an attempt to steal second but Fletcher fouled the ball. Fletcher was hit by Bush. Burns flied to Collins, who tossed to Barry, doubling Doyle to second. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Second Inning
Schang struck out, being unable to gauge Tressau's splitter. Bush flied out to Murray. Murphy beat out a hit to short. Fletcher making a nice stop back on the grass but could not get his man at first. Oldring got his second single to right, sending Murphy to third. It was the hit and run play, cleverly worked. Oldring scored on Collins' line drive over Doyle's head.

This made six hits off Tressau in two innings and the third man still to be put out. Collins was out at second when Doyle took Baker's burning smash and touched second. It looked like a sure hit and only wonderful fielding by Doyle prevented the ball from going clear to deep center. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Shaffer out when Collins took his slow roller and tossed to first. Murray sent up an easy fly which Collins smothered. McLean laughed when Bush fooled him with a slow coaster on the inside corner. McLean fouled out to Schang. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Third Inning
McLean flied out to Burns, the Giant fielder taking the line drive over near the foul line. Then Burns took care of Strunk's high fly, having to move but a few feet to get it. McLean took Barry's weak foul. No runs, no hits, no errors.

McLean sent up a high fly to Strunk. Tressau went out on three strikes. The last ball Tressau struck at hit the plate and bounced into Schang's hands. Collins took Herzog's liner and the inning was over. The crowd applauded Bush as he walked to the players' bench. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Fourth Inning
Schang struck out for the second time in the game. Bush got a Texas leaguer which Burns trapped on the tops of the grass, and it looked like a putout. Murphy out to Shaffer. Doyle threw out Oldring at first. No runs, one hit; no errors.

Umpire Higler cautioned the Athletics' players on the bench for coaching. Doyle fouled out to Baker. Bush pitched plenty of "stuff," his curves being very wide at times, keeping Schang busy going after them. Bush gave Fletcher three balls and then put over two strikes. Fletcher singled over second. Collins stopped the ball, but could not recover to make the throw. Burns fanned and Schang snapped the ball to McLean, who nearly caught Fletcher off the bat. Fletcher stole second, having a good lead on the pitcher and Schang's throw being wide. Collins threw out Shaffer. No runs, one hit; no errors.

Fifth Inning

Bush pitched three balls and then shot over two strikes on Murray. Murray walked. It was the first base on balls given in the game. Murray stole second and went to third on Schang's wild heave to right center. Murray scored when McLean's hit shot by Baker. Cooper ran for McLean. Merkle flied to Murphy. Cooper easily stole second. Schang's throw being very high. Baker threw out Tressau, Cooper going to third. Schang threw out Herzog at first. One run; one hit; one error.

Sixth Inning
Wilson now catching for New York. Strunk flied out to Burns. Barry singled sharply to right. Schang sent a long foul into the left field stands, and the crowd groaned, thinking it might be a home run. Wilson took Schang's foul after a long run to the Athletics' players' bench. Bush flied out to Doyle. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Doyle out on a grounder to McLean, unassisted. Fletcher walked. A double play ended the inning. Bush took Burns' splash and tossed it to Barry, forcing Fletcher at second. Barry then completed the double by a rife-shot throw to McLean. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Seventh Inning
Murphy sent a splitter to right for a single. Murphy was forced at second when Fletcher took Oldring's smash and tossed to Doyle. Collins sent a long foul into the upper right field stand, the ball falling almost into fair territory. Oldring scored on Collins' three-bagger along the right field foul line. The ball took a wicked bound past Murray, enabling Collins to make third base. Collins scored on Baker's single to center. The Athletics' hitting was too much for Tressau and he was called from the pitching mound. Crandall went into the box for New York. McLean out when Doyle took a liner and touched Baker on the line for a double play unassisted. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Shaffer doubled to left. Shaffer scored on Murray's single to left. Wilson fanned. Schang threw out Murray at second. Collins taking the throw, completed a double play. Merkle walked. Wiltse ran for Merkle. Collins threw out. Crandall at first. One run, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning
Wiltse went out to play first base for New York. Crandall threw out Strunk. It was announced that the attendance figures and receipts would not be given out until tonight. Crandall also threw out Barry. Schang scored on a home run drive into the rightfield stand. Baker came out and shook Schang's hand after he crossed the plate. "You belong to the 'Home Run club,'" said the Athletics' hardest hitter. Bush struck out. One run; one hit; no errors.

Herzog lined a fly to Baker. Doyle out to McLean, unassisted. Fletcher fouled to Schang, trying to bunt. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Ninth Inning
Murphy out on a fly to Murray. Oldring out on a foul to Herzog. Collins out on a fly to Shaffer. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Burns out on a fly to Murphy. Shaffer walked. Shaffer was forced out at second when Barry took Murray's roller and tossed to Collins.

Wilson foul-flied out to Baker. The official box score:

HOME RULE CAMPAIGN

Demanded by British People
and Opposed by Peers

Following is a statement of the present situation relative to home rule in Ireland by a member of the nationalist party and therefore, expressive of the prevailing sentiment.

So far as parliament is concerned, the home rule cause could not be in a more hopeful position. The government has passed triumphantly through what everybody regarded as its most critical session, the period that would test the loyalty of its supporters and the practicality of its policy, and it is stronger and more united now than at any time since its advent to power. The parliament has successfully withstood every attack made upon it, and there is now no doubt entertained amongst its friends that it will prove efficient for its intended purposes of effectually limiting the veto of the lords and of ensuring that the will of the people, expressed through their elected representatives, must prevail. The attitude of the government, taken up by the lords in rejecting all the parliament act bills and the plural voting bill, and in claiming the right to a general election at any time they think fit, is realized now even by the most reactionary of the Tories. The lords themselves, through Lord Curzon, are endeavoring to explain their words and deeds, but with out avail. Instead of placating the people, they are arousing passions which may sweep the hereditary chamber out of existence.

Mr. Redmond's Appeal

The attendance of the members of the Irish party at Westminster during the session has been exemplary, and will deserve the tribute of praise paid to it by Mr. Redmond in his most important letter which he has just addressed to his colleagues. It is a poll of the Irish party were taken, there would be a unanimous verdict that not one amongst them has called for self-sacrifice and devotion to duty. He has never asked one of his colleagues to follow where he has not led the way, he is their friend and comrade as well as their leader, and that is why he commands their loyalty and affection to a degree that is unique. The session will end about the 15th of August, and the lords have been planning in secret another "snipe" division. Mr. Redmond got to know of this, and he immediately issued a personal appeal to the Irish members to remain in constant attendance at Westminster until the very end of the session. As he puts it, to have a defeat inflicted on the government at the end of a session of such splendid achievement would be a humiliating anti-climax. It may be taken for granted that the very plot will not succeed.

A Popular Cause

Whilst the home rule petition in parliament is quite secure Liberal and Irish members who have been addressing week-end meetings in the country state that the enthusiasm of the people in support of the government and its program is refreshing. Home rule is now the most popular cause with democratic audiences in Great Britain. By rejecting all the parliament act bills, the house of lords has linked home rule, Welsh disestablishment, and the abolition of plural voting with the cause of popular freedom, and the people against the peers, and the result is a foregone conclusion. The parliament act must stand, unless the people are to lose the fruits of their long struggle against the domination of the lords. But the defeat of the home rule bill and the Welsh disestablishment bill would be tantamount to the defeat of the parliament act by the lords, and for that reason if for no other, the passage of these measures is assured.

A Valiant Wall

Mr. Garvin, in the "Observer" bewails the conduct of the Unionist campaign in parliament and in the country. It has been all talk, he says. The government is determined to pass the home rule bill, and so Mr. Garvin has two policies to offer his party. The one is, a settlement on federal lines by which he does not mean anything like home rule and the other is as follows:

If the government persists in using the existing parliamentary position to carry out Mr. Redmond's policy by Mr. Redmond's votes without the sanction of the country, we are nothing for it but the degradation of conflict. There will be chaos in the house of commons, meetings of protest in every constituency, petitions for the dissolution of parliament to be signed by every Unionist in the land, and if possible by an actual majority of the electors in Great Britain, and an appeal to all Unionists, officers and men alike, to leave the territorial army. That is only part of the prospect.

We shall see Mr. Garvin's "Die-Hards" were to resist the parliament bill to the death. They celebrated its passage by a good dinner.

The Autumn Campaign

Apart from Mr. Garvin, however, there can be no doubt that the unionists have arranged a big anti-home rule campaign in Great Britain for the autumn. As Mr. Devlin, M. P., announced at Belfast, this campaign is to be met by a counter-campaign, the details of which are under consideration, and which will be both thorough and effective. The program will include a series of great meetings at which leading cabinet ministers will probably speak, and a great number of smaller meetings for which the services of many of the rank and file of the Irish party will be called upon.

The Real Ulster

The reply of the nationalists of Belfast to Sir Edward Carson is a subscription of £520 as a first instalment to the home rule fund for 1913. The "Irish News" publishes the list of subscribers, which tells its own tale. The largest subscriptions are £20 from "a Belfast Protestant" and £10 from "a Belfast Protestant home ruler." All the rest is in subscriptions of from one shilling up to £5. Last year, Belfast's first instalment to the fund was £350. The increase of £170 is eloquent of the growing strength of the home rule cause in the Ulster capital, and a fresh illustration of the generosity and patriotism of its nationalist citizens.

DR. T. BANCROFT

When Abraham Lincoln Was Shot

Dr. T. D. Bancroft, of Portland, Oregon, was the speaker at the opening meeting of the Men's club of the Grace Universalist church, last evening. Dr. Bancroft is one of the few surviving persons of the audience which was in Ford's theatre, Washington, D. C., on the night when President Abraham Lincoln was shot. He told, in reminiscent mood, of the events immediately before the shooting of the beloved president by John Wilkes Booth, and of the tragic ones which followed it. Dr. Bancroft also told of the conditions obtaining in 1856, when an attempt was made by the Southern states to have the territory of Kansas enter the Union as a slave state. The narrator told of being eloped west to join the army of free state men who were determined to fight the men from Missouri who at that time were endeavoring to bring Kansas into the list of slave states. Dr. Bancroft had many interesting things to tell of the strange state of affairs of that year. Finally it was decided to settle the matter by means of an election. It was to be a very fair election, he said, for the Missourians were very sympathetic people, and they came across the border in big bunches to assist the Kansans in voting. Soap boxes were set right down on the prairie, he said with little holes in them, and the Missourians brought over thousands of ballots, all of which stated that the depositors voted for slave state candidates. But the men from the north, who also voted, had thousands of ballots, also, and these they tucked into the soap boxes, the names of anti-slave candidates being marked on them. Somehow, he said, the northerners managed to get more ballots into the boxes than did the Missourians, and so this very fair election brought Kansas into the Union as a free state.

TOSSED IN THE AIR

by Train and Instantly Killed

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Oct. 10.—While trying to cross the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad tracks at the Columbus avenue station here last night, Miss Anna Deltz, 20 years old, of Stonington, Conn., was struck by the east bound Boston express and instantly killed. Miss Anna Weekworth of Plainville, Conn., her chum, narrowly escaped death in a futile effort to save her. Miss Weekworth, although tossed 20 feet or more by the train and badly injured, is expected to recover.

The two young women, members of a picnic party, had miscalculated the speed of the flyer which they saw approaching, believing it was the train they wished to take and that it would stop at the station.

were thus at times considerably obscured. Six northern senators spoke in favor of the resolution, including William H. Seward of New York, who was later Lincoln's secretary of state throughout the Civil war; Lewis Cass of Michigan, secretary of war in Jackson's time, minister to France, candidate for president before and after this period and Buchanan's secretary of state; and Stephen A. Douglas, the "Little Giant" of Illinois, who was so conspicuous a figure in the decade just prior to the Civil war and whose debates with Lincoln are so famous. Four southern senators also spoke in behalf of the resolution, including Sam Houston, the picturesque prototype of the state of Texas, and Henry Clay of Kentucky, one of the two or three greatest orators, perhaps, which this country has produced in all time.

"Generally speaking, however, the southern senators were bitterly opposed to the adoption of the resolution, and 11 of them spoke against it; of these the most noteworthy were Jeff Davis of Mississippi, later president of the Confederate States of America, and John C. Calhoun of South Carolina, the able opponent of Daniel Webster in so many conflicts on the floor of the senate.

"I wish that I might give you an adequate idea of the debate, which at times was marked by almost unexampled bitterness. I cannot, however, do more than cite a few extracts which are perhaps characteristic of the general tone of the debate. You will see for yourself the results of the unfortunate predicament in which Father Mathew had, entirely without his fault, been placed in the eyes of the two factions which were then tearing the country.

"The resolution was as follows: 'Resolved, that the Reverend Thobald Mathew be permitted to sit within the bar of the senate during the period of his sojourn in Washington.'

"When the resolution had been read, Senator Clemens of Alabama at once rose in opposition. He said in part: 'I object to the passage of this resolution because the individual whom it refers has been charged with denouncing one portion of this confederacy as little better than a band of pirates.'

Henry Clay at once arose in defense of Father Mathew. He said, in his most eloquent vein:

"Mr. President, I confess that I have heard with great regret this opposition made to the adoption of that resolution.

"I submit it to the candor of the honorable senator whether it is prudent, right, just and proper to refuse a compliment which I venture to say, the hearts of all mankind accord to this distinguished foreigner, a compliment no less due to him for his great services in the cause of humanity, than it is due to him as an Irish patriot."

"Then William H. Seward of New York made the unfortunate allusions to slavery which precipitated the bitter subsequent debate. He, however, paid a tribute to Father Mathew in his speech which was fair in its view of the matter.

"Jefferson Davis replied to him in part as follows:

"I am glad to hear the senator from New York (Mr. Seward) place this movement upon a distinct basis—to know that it is advocated because of the opinions in relation to domestic slavery, which are ascribed to the individual named in the resolution. Yes, sir, I am glad to hear that now avowed.

"Sir, I have no wish to depreciate the labors of or to contest the merits of him whose name is identified with the beneficent cause of temperance reform. The good he has done to a portion of our race deserves the thanks of mankind. The honor of a great tribute to him, the honor of a great labor like his, and who has not refused in the happy influence his mission has exercised over his unfortunate countrymen? Could it devolve upon the senate to decide either of these points, there would, I suppose, be but little difference of opinion among us. But it would not then

The residents of West Chelmsford have filed petition with the Lowell & Fitchburg street railway in the interest of getting back the 10:30 p. m. car, which was taken off some time ago. Their reason is that those who work until 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon cannot do their shopping in Lowell and make connections for the 6 o'clock car, which is the last to go to West Chelmsford.

Their Novelty Dance Orchestra will make its first appearance at the Assn. hall, Tuesday evening, Oct. 15. This great orchestra is composed of five artists, singing all the latest popular songs, carrying and playing more novel instruments than any other dance orchestra in America. Hear Laura E. Timber, Boston's famous telephone, piano, marionette, organ, electric piano, electric bells and telephone solos. Dancing will start at 8 o'clock.

The first meeting of the fall term of the Nurses' Alumnae association of the Lowell General hospital was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss S. V. Peterson in North Chelmsford. The affair was largely attended and consisted mostly of a reception to Mrs. Helen C. Butterfield, who was presented a charming daisy and took and from Mrs. Butterfield was also presented a coal bowl filled with pink carnations. A Victrola concert was enjoyed and refreshments were served. The hostess was assisted by Olive Kelly, Elizabeth Fraser and Eva Henney.

The sidewalk directly in front of the waiting room in Merrimack square has been a source of danger for some time. An entire section of the sidewalk has been removed next to the curb leaving an indentation of several inches which is an optical affront. Many people have stumbled over this spot and the only wonder is that serious injury has not been met with in some passerby. When the street is crowded the difference in level is unnoticeable to the eye. Two ladies directly in front of the writer fell to the sidewalk last night after one of them had turned her ankle on the edge of the miniature pitfall. Many people have been with the same sort of accident while walking through Merrimack square.

SENT TO PRISON

Jos. Brown Will Think it Over in the House of Correction

Joseph Brown charged with the larceny of a watch, chain and chain, and a 10 from a man who had treated him as a friend, did not have much of a defense to offer in police court yesterday although he strenuously denied that he would ever do such a wicked thing.

John J. Monahan was the name of the complainant and he was the first witness. He stated that he had been in the defendant's company on the day of the alleged theft and that he had bought them each several drinks. The defendant parted from the witness as the latter was headed for his home.

Monahan said that he fell asleep in the grass on Fort Hill Park and that when he awoke, his watch, chain, and money were missing. He did not see anybody take it, however.

The next witness in the case was a man who runs a pawnshop. He testified that Brown had come to his place of business the day after the theft and that he had pawned Monahan's watch for $2.

The defendant put up quite an argument over his identification as the man who pawned the watch but the witness was very sure of his ground. In response to a question by the court the witness asserted that he has known the defendant for a dozen years.

Brown gave a great imitation of an imprecise man after he was sworn to and had taken the witness stand. "I never stole the money nor anything else, Your Honor," he said. "I was found guilty by a judge of right and sentenced to four months in the house of correction."

Mary Gutowski and her husband did their best to have two fellow countrymen, Roman Lital and Michael Maslin, sentenced for stealing $7 from their house over a month ago. No reason was introduced why they had waited until now to bring the case.

The defendants were discharged. Alice Merrill pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness. She was her third offense on the same complaint, but Judge Enright gave her another opportunity to reform. She received a suspended sentence of five months. In jail, John M. Ryan, charged with drunkenness, had his case continued until the 17th of the month in order to give him a chance to straighten up.

SHAW-EDWARDS
A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening at six o'clock at St. Anne's church when Mr. William Shaw, a well known draftsman at the Saco-Lowell shop, and Miss Sadie E. Edwards were united in marriage by the Rev. Samuel Jobe, assistant rector at the church. The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Catherine Marie Lynch was the bridesmaid and she wore a dress of cream satin and carried a bouquet of Killarney roses. Mr. Harold Shogren was the best man and the flower girls were the Misses Leland and Bagley. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold pendant and chain and the groom's gift to the best man was a gold scarf pin. Following the marriage there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Senator and Mrs. Henry J. Draper, the house being tastefully decorated with potted plants and flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw were the recipients of many beautiful gifts. The wedding party, on the evening of an extended wedding tour after which they will reside at 70 Fourth avenue, this city.

SULZER CASE
The governing to dissuade Henry Morgenthau from testifying in regard to his $1075 campaign contribution.

Wanted Man to Perjure Himself
"The damning character of the defendant's request is apparent at glance," continued Mr. Brackett. "He wanted Mr. Morgenthau to perjure himself to save him, the defendant, from the result of his previous crime in not reporting the Morgenthau contribution made to him during the campaign, and thereby brought himself precisely within the section of the code and precisely within the article."

The alleged request of the governor of Duncan Peck, superintendent of public works that he deny his contribution of $500 under oath. Mr. Brackett placed in the same category.

"The testimony of Allan Ryan is still to be considered," he continued. "It stands here without contradiction of any kind. The defendant asked him to see Senator Root and have members of this court solicited to vote in his interest to dismiss these proceedings; failing that, to see Mr. Murphy for the same purpose, saying he would do whatever was right if he could be freed from the impeachment proceedings."

Black Evidence
"This is black evidence convicting him under article four."

"The thing urged by the defendant stands out in all its detestable line. He urged Morgenthau to perjure himself; he urged Peck to perjure himself and declared his intention of doing so and he urged Ryan to tamper with this court to the end that he might be acquitted."

"And through and over it all runs the foulest of crimes connected with the administration of justice, subornation of perjury and an intention of the defendant himself to commit perjury. God, God in heaven, can more be required to convict this defendant and remove him from his high place, and forever disqualify him from association with law-abiding men!"

Urges Verdict of Guilty
"Knowing full well, appreciating to the utmost the disgrace and degradation that must come upon this most unhappy man by your verdict of guilty, I still beg you not to think you will mitigate his punishment by a judgment of acquittal of the charges here proved. It will not be your action that will render him infamous for all the future. That future is already his before you speak."

"If this last and best attempt at self-government, under which we have rested in security in all the century and a third of our national life, under which the state has been the leader of

CHINESE HOLIDAY

Flag of the New China Takes the Breezes in Lowell Today

Since the completion of the Sun building many beautiful and novel emblems have floated from its roof under the stars and stripes, in accordance with the commendable desire of its proprietor to honor the flag of all nations on their respective national holidays, but it is doubtful if any more novel or more artistic flag has waved over Lowell than that which took the breeze today and aroused the questioning admiration of thousands. It is the flag of the new China, a flag of five stars of different color and of equal width, arranged horizontally—red at the top followed by yellow, blue, white and black. This is no mere beautiful arrangement of contrasting bars blended by the discerning hand and the artistic eye of some master of color in the ancient land of art and the dragon, but a striking and symbolic arrangement symbolizing the union of the five great races that make up the vast area of united China. Red is for the Chinese, yellow for Manchus, blue for Mongols, white for Tibetans and black for Mohammedans.

The recent election of Yuan Shi-Kai as constitutional president will give the celebration of the national holiday an unusual significance in China. Today is the second anniversary of the outbreak of the revolution at Wuchang, and it is observed as a national holiday and festival throughout the country. One year ago today in Peking, sacrifices were offered to the spirits of dead revolutionaries, the inscription over the Ta Ching gate was removed and a review of some 20,000 troops was held by the president.

There was considerable apprehension in regard to the celebrations at Wuchang itself, but the precautions taken by the authorities prevented any disturbances from taking place. The occasion was marked by a liberal bestowal of orders and military ranks upon prominent officials and ex-officials, Tientsin, and naval and military officers.

All up to Associate, Fri. night.

BROKERS FINED $3500

NEW YORK MEN WERE CHARGED WITH SMUGGLING AND CONSPIRACY

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 10.—Charged with smuggling and conspiracy John McCullough and Edward McCullough, New York stockbrokers were today fined $3500 in the United States district court. Sentence was suspended on Mary Monahan, a maid employed by the McCulloughs. The parties had been indicted Sept. 18, from the Emperor and it was stated in court failed to declare clothing and other articles valued at $6500.

ARREST CHIEF OF POLICE
PEKING, Oct. 10.—Chen, chief of the Peking mounted police, was arrested today while the ceremony of inaugurating Yuan Shi Kai as president of the Chinese republic was in progress. He confessed that southern rebels had bribed him to make an attempt to assassinate Yuan Shi Kai as the president was taking oath of office.

BANKERS' SHORE DINNER
BOSTON, Oct. 10.—All business having been completed yesterday the delegates to the bankers convention here partook of a New England shore dinner today. The fog which had laid an embargo on the Massachusetts coast for nearly a week, lifted enough this forenoon for the bankers and their wives and guests to make a trip down the harbor to Nantasket in three special steamers. More than 3000 were fed at one clam bake pavilion and dinners were provided at other places for several hundred more.

SEVERELY PLAYED BY PARKER
Never since the impeachment trial of Gov. William Sulzer opened has he been subjected to such a severe verbal flaying as Judge Alton Parker administered in his argument for the board of managers today.

"Before this bar the defendant stands guilty of the offenses charged by the impeachment and proven by uncontroverted evidence," he said. "Before the bar of the court of public opinion this defendant stands condemned on the evidence here presented and on the further damning testimony of his shifty defenses and of his futile efforts to dodge by technicalities the trial of the issues before this high court. That same public opinion takes cognizance of the fact that the defendant here is suffering from such a severe attack of moral near-sightedness that even when directed by a myriad of scornful fingers he cannot discern the dishonest, criminal and dishonorable nature of the acts proven."

Falsify Testimony
"Even justice must see through its severe eyes something of the pathetic in this defendant's frantic efforts to cover the nakedness of his wrongdoing. Defiance, defense, justification, prevarication, denunciation of his accusers—attempts to suppress and falsify testimony and efforts to cast the blame elsewhere—each in turn has been stripped from his quaking flesh until he stands now naked before this court without a rag of his attempted vindication clinging to his deformed and mutilated manhood."

"Every disguise has been torn from his back from the petticoat in which he trusted for safety to the armor of defiance in which he threatened to attack and expose a political leadership to which we have found him suing for a merciful obliteration of his misdeeds and offering the bribe of submission."

"No act of his shows more perfectly the complete baseness of his character, unfitting him utterly for any public or private trust, than does his efforts to coerce the members of this court through channels which his warped intellect mistakenly thought held the power of coercion."

"Regardless of the origin of these charges, regardless of any personal inflection of disfavor, this court must, we feel certain, find on all the evidence that this defendant has been guilty of misconduct so gross as to necessitate his removal for the honor, peace and government of this community."

"And to this court we shall commit the decision of the case against William Sulzer securely confident that honor, safety and welfare of this the Empire State are assured of the protection contemplated by the constitution in the creation of this high court."

"The causes for impeachment may be considered in three words—unfitness for office; the object of impeachment in four—security for the state."

THE YOM KIPPUR STAY AND STARVE

Greatest of All Jewish Feasts Will Open at Sundown Today

With the setting of the sun tonight, the synagogue in Lowell will be packed with hundreds of Hebrews, who will usher in with prayer and all the impressive ceremonies of the Hebrew ritual, the Yom Kippur, or Day of Atonement.

Yom Kippur, the holiest day of the Jew in the entire religious calendar, will last until the stars appear tomorrow evening, when the blast of the "shofar" or the trumpet in the synagogues and all the places of worship will announce the end of the Day of Atonement—the most ancient of all Jewish festivals. During the entire 24 hours that the celebration lasts the rigidly observant of the Hebrews eat nothing, nor does a single drop of water pass his lips. The reform Hebrew does not hold tenaciously to some of the old traditions to which the more orthodox cling, though the reform Hebrew observes the day.

Many Americanized young men and women and even boys and girls fast on this great and terrible Day of Judgment. It is needless to say that they do it willingly and cheerfully. At night all are happy in the thought that they have been purified of all sin and have received a verdict of not guilty.

The observance begins tonight in the synagogues with the evening service called "Kol Nidre," from its opening which deals with the vow of the individual and his conscience. Throughout the following day in the orthodox synagogues a continual service is held which, towards the middle of the afternoon, becomes most impressive by a solemn commemorative service for the dead.

The "shofar" or ram's horn is blown once after the sun has gone beyond the horizon, and then the devout worshippers turn homeward.

Militant "Hunger Striker" in London Will Not be Released

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The belief of the militant incendiaries that under the "cat and mouse" act they were assured of speedy release from prison by "hunger striking," and could then repeat their offense, received a rude shock yesterday by the announcement of the home secretary that Miss May Richardson, who has been in prison since Oct. 4, on the charge of arson and who has been refusing food since her arrest, would not be given her freedom. The prison authorities have been instructed to resort to forcible feeding. If necessary to prevent the incendiaries from starving themselves to death.

The home secretary says that the act will continue to be applied as heretofore, to minor suffragette offenders whose crimes do not include acts of serious violence.

ORDERS NEW SCHOONER

HAMBURG, Oct. 10.—Emperor William today ordered from Max Ortiz, the well known yacht builder of this city, a new schooner to replace his present racing yacht Meteor and her success will have an important bearing on the question whether Germany will challenge for the America's cup with a cutter designed by Ortiz.

GIRL ON STUMP MILL GATE RALLY

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Miss Dorothy Frooks, said to be the youngest social worker in the country, and daughter of the New York millionaire, Lewis Reginald Frooks, was called home yesterday, from her studies in a Harvard extension course to take the stump for McCall, the democratic candidate for mayor of New York. Miss Frooks will enter upon this work at once.

During her stay at Radcliffe and Harvard Miss Frooks, who is but 18 years old, completed a book that deals with the peace movement. It will be published soon. To gain material for the concluding chapters of a book she is writing on social matters, Miss Frooks went about Boston in disguise, recently, trying her luck at securing positions, representing herself to be a poor working girl, when as a matter of fact she drives her own car at her home in Bayonne, N. J.

During the time that Miss Frooks was conducting her experiments in behalf of the working girl she attempted to live at an expense of 25 cents a day, but was forced to abandon the plan owing to the condition of her health.

Petered Out and Organizer Young Took a Shot at Bankers' Asso.

The democratic rally scheduled to take place at the gates of the Saco-Lowell shops in Dutton street at the noon hour today did not materialize, but the men who gathered there were not disappointed for they were well entertained by Organizer Young of the Machinists' union. Mr. Young is well known in Lowell. He spent about six weeks here and organized the strongest machinists' union ever organized in this city. He was given a good reception. In his speech, which was necessarily brief, Mr. Young bawled the Bankers' association.

In part he said: The Bankers' association met a week ago in Boston and decided several things, one of which is the great value of organization. The first thing they think of is to get together. They did not believe the government should have the control of currency, for they say the bankers ought to have that. They say they have the true interest of the people at heart, but they do not consider that there are 3700 people in Boston who go to bed hungry every night. At their convention they said absolutely nothing about this.

The bankers were supposed to meet in Lowell and out of the many delegates in Boston only three came to this city. Why did not the others come? I do not know and they will not tell. Nevertheless Lowell ought to be the place for these men to meet and make quarters for all time, for it is here that the money is tied by capitalists. I know that during their visit in Lowell they did not stand in Middlesex street the way I do, in order to see many cripples and invalids go through our streets, for their work, for this is too little a thing for big bankers to consider.

LOWELL MAN ELECTED

WILLIAM A. WEBB TO BE DIRECTOR OF NEW INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL AT LAWRENCE

At a meeting of the Industrial school commission of Lawrence held last night it was announced that William A. Webb of the mechanical department of the Industrial school of this city will be the director of the new Industrial school in Lawrence. Mr. Webb was the second choice candidate for the position, Charles J. Carter of the University of Maine, first choice of the commission having declined the position. Mr. Webb has submitted his acceptance.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Last evening at the home of May and Anna Harris, 50 Fay street, a miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Anne Smith, who is soon to become a bride. Miss Smith had only lately recovered from the effects of a linen shower, and she was quite overwhelmed when she appeared amongst another gathering of her friends. She received many beautiful gifts. In the evening's entertainment there were piano solos by Miss Laura Readon and David H. Dwyer. Vocal selections by Alice Reynolds and Anna Harris, and some fancy dancing was contributed to the occasion by Miss Gertrude Ward and May Harris. The party broke up at a late hour, wishing the bride long life and happiness.

COM. CUMMINGS SUIT FOR $10,000

And Inspector Francis John Scullane Injured While in the Employ of Boston and Maine

Commissioner Cummings and Inspector Connor of the public buildings department are scheduled to take a little trip this afternoon for the purpose of getting data on tuberculosis hospitals in other cities. The cities to be visited are Woburn, Malden and Reading.

Mr. Cummings said in Reading there is a fine hospital, and his purpose in going there is to find out how much the building cost and also the cost of the maintenance as well as the mode of registration adopted. In Woburn there is no hospital, and the commissioner wants to know how the city cares for the tuberculosis patients, while in Malden, it is understood the sufferers of the white plague are being cared for in private houses.

Permit Granted
A permit for general repairs at the stable of the Harvard Brewing Co. in Payne street, which was recently gutted by fire, was granted this morning at the public department office, the approximate cost to be about $4000.

Awarded Contract
Purchasing Agent Foye this morning awarded the contract for 2,000 feet of one-inch wrought iron pipe for the water work department to H. R. Barker Co., whose bid was $51.60. The other bids submitted were as follows: Farrell & Condon, $98; Middlesex Machine Co., $142.50; H. S. Drury, $95; Welch Bros., $100.

Approved Bills
Mayor O'Donnell and Commissioner Cummings met in the aldermanic chamber this forenoon for the approval of the monthly bills. There was a large number of bills submitted and among them was one which caused more or less hilarity among those present. This was a bill to the amount of $135 for services at a fire in Lowell by the Chelmsford wire warden, who claimed he worked one hour and a half with his machine. The bill read as follows:

"Aug. 25.—Ordered to a fire near Chelmsford line by state fire observer. Extinguished fire and reported to observer that same needed watching. Tired proved to be in Lowell on Middlesex canal on land of one Charlton of Highland avenue. To services above 1-1-2 hours with auto. $1.35. Signed: A. C. Perham, forest warden, Chelmsford."

Headings
Hearings on the following petitions will be held before the commissioner of streets and highways on the evening of October 20.

Omer J. Smith, that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the southerly side of Crawford street in front of premises at the corner of Fourth avenue.

George H. Lussier, that a sidewalk of edge stones and cinders be laid at the corner of Moody street and Sixth avenue, a distance of 55 feet on Moody street, and 95 feet on Sixth avenue.

Walter G. Charles, that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the northerly side of Crawford street, opposite the premises numbered 31.

Rev. T. W. Smith, O. M. I., and others, that Bourne street be accepted from Otis street to that portion of said street already accepted, and that said street be macadamized and edge stones laid on both sides thereof.

LIKE OUR GIRLS

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 10.—Richard Wallis, owner of a linen mill in Germany, and John Eddleston and Harold Heyworth, joint owners of a large cotton mill in England, after having inspected the cotton industry in this city said that their greatest surprise was at the manner in which the female mill operatives of New Bedford dress.

"Why they look like perfect ladies," the three foreign mill magnates said. "In our own countries, where the wages are not much different from what they are here, it is customary to see the young women going to the mills in worn-out dresses, with shawls covering their shoulders. And here in New Bedford the operatives dress as up-to-date as the finest ladies of the land."

The three sightseers said that this characteristic for good dressing was not alone confined to the mill girls, for everywhere in the American cities they have visited they have found the women to be dressed in the height of current fashion, whatever their social status or their weekly payroll was.

USES OF PAPER

Facts Concerning Paper That Everyone Should Know—Uses in Japan

It is a question whether there is an industry in this country more interesting than the manufacture of wood pulp and its many uses. A number of countries have contended for the honor of enjoying greatest progress in the making of various articles from wood pulp. Germany, France, England and the United States are the principal claimants. Of the four countries named, Germany would seem to have the largest of testimony on its side. Nevertheless, from paper pulp are by no means of rare occurrence in the United States, and are now so multifarious as to defy enumeration.

At first, wood pulp was used entirely in making paper, but today it is employed for manifold purposes. Its use has far outgrown the manufacture of paper. It is used for making matches, tractors, chairs, belt pulleys, gear wheels, barrels (reinforced with wire), tubes, rails, washboards, water pipes, conduits, caskets, bath tubs, carriage bodies, door covering, electric insulators, umbrella stands, furniture, imitation of leather, cloth and silk. Clearly the employment of wood pulp is practically unlimited.

The great consumers of wood pulp today are the paper manufacturers who use nearly 99 per cent. of the entire production. According to the bureau of statistics, there are at present about 250 mills which manufacture wood pulp in this country. The capacity of these mills is over 2,500,000 tons of pulp annually, valued at more than $12,000,000. In addition to this

FALLING HAIR MEANS DANDRUFF IS ACTIVE

Save Your Hair! Get a 25 Cent Bottle of Dandruff Right Now

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is sure evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scourge.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Dandruff tonight—more anytime—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandruff from any drug store, or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Strengthen Your Lungs Is Timely Advice

when consumption claims over 350 daily in the United States. Neglected colds, overwork, confining duties and chronic disorders exert the weakening influence which allows tubercular germs the mastery.

The greatest treatment that science affords is courage, rest, sunshine and Scott's Emulsion.

Scott's Emulsion contains pure cod liver oil to clarify and enrich the blood, strengthen the lungs, rebuild wasted tissue and fortify the resistive forces to throw off disease germs.

Strengthen YOUR lungs with Scott's Emulsion—its benefits are too important to neglect.

amount, more than 400,000 tons are imported from Canada and various countries of Europe. The value of the material received from abroad in 1911 was nearly $15,000,000. These figures show an increase in the business of over 500 per cent. in the past 10 years, and the same time in the future promises even greater strides.

The largest treatment wood pulp can be made perfectly translucent, and breakable, and indifferent to atmospheric changes. While it has not yet been made transparent, it admits abundant, soft, pleasant light, where it is used in place of window panes. Paper pulp is now made up into boards that can be used in a variety of places to supplant the use of rock. The ease of molding into any desired shape and the saving in weight make the use of this product valuable in construction of the ornamentation of ships such as the facing and frames of doors, washboards, panels, etc. This material is also used in making imitation tiles for the walls of bathrooms, the forming of closet doors, etc. In fact, entire houses, cottages, horepops, etc., have successfully been made of this paper board. When properly impregnated it is impervious to moisture and forms a good non-conductor of heat. Another product used in house construction is roofing tiles, which are now gaining a reputation for their superior qualities over other roofing material in the market. The application of wood pulp for house building is not new, and has met with complete success. In Europe there are some firms which build houses almost entirely of water-proofed pasteboard. Wood pulp is likewise used instead of wood for making furniture, tables and folding chairs, their chief advantage being lightness.

Paper screws are now being made which give thorough satisfaction. The principle of having wood against wood is a point in favor of wood screws. They are used for ornamental work, where it is desirable to give the heads of the screws the same color and grain effect as wood. A varnish on top of this adds to the effect, and protects the dye, as it penetrates the fiber and acts as a preservative. It has been estimated that these wood pulp screws can be made so cheaply as to compete successfully with screws and lag bolts of other types. Paper screws can be readily removed even after they have been in place for many years. The screws are cast and the thread is cut in the common wood screws. The drive screw is cast with attenuated thread curves, so that when driven it revolves and finds a firm footing in the wood. It can be driven only into soft wood after a hole is first started.

Another economic application of paper which is gaining in importance is the making of cord and rope. These new ropes are spun and twisted out of the thin threads which are made from wood pulp. This industry has attained considerable importance in Europe. It is said that these ligneous fiber ropes are used more or less extensively in the foundries of Germany. The fine threads which make up these ropes are made by forcing the chemically-treated wood pulp or cellulose through very fine tubes into running water, in which they harden. After they are dry they are perfectly pliable and somewhat elastic, and may be spun or twisted into any form whatsoever. These minute, elongated threads are caught up as they are forced through the fine tubes and spun into a fabric resembling silk.

A French inventor discovered that paper may be cut into narrow strips several millimeters wide and that after these have been steeped in certain chemicals which give them tenacity and ductility they may be rolled and twisted into threads, which may be worked up into fabrics of various kinds and put to a great variety of uses. Another French chemist has discovered a way to make such fabrics, as well as ordinary paper, waterproof, and a German inventor has produced a good quality of thin paper practically fire-proof.

Such discoveries have led to the making of hats, raincoats, corsets, vests, underwear, collars, ties, socks, shoes and even overcoats. In the Chicago City hospital the patients have been made in furnishing the patients with garments made of a soft tough paper. These garments are light and airy. After use each garment is destroyed and thus all danger of infection is avoided. The paper raincoat is a novelty. It is made of a light-weight, waterproof paper. The garment comes folded in a very small package which can easily be put into a lady's handbag. The package is opened and the coat unfolded as occasion demands. The article is so cheap that it can be thrown away after use. One inventor has designed a paper sock for use in the army. The sock covers only the palm of the foot that is usually chafed by the shoe. This insures light weight and adds greatly to the comfort of the wearer.

Paper may even be so treated as to make it suitable for sails for light boats. Such sails are not woven from strands or threads but are made from pressed sheets of paper, which are made in the regular way, the pulp having been thoroughly mixed with certain chemicals and other substances. These paper sails are inexpensive compared with good canvas stock or rubber material.

But by far the greatest progress has been made in the application of this material to sanitary and domestic uses. The realization by the public generally of the germ theory of disease has done more to multiply the uses of paper than any other factor. It has led to the introduction of the various individual receptacles and containers that now appear upon the market. Notable among these is the individual drinking cup. The cup in which these cups are utilized can be comprehended when it is stated that the returns realized from the sale of penny cups from slot machines in the Pennsylvania state capital building alone amounted to $113 during the past year.

In modern sanitation and the treatment of diseases the various paper receptacles and protective appliances have proven of inestimable value. In some of the western states, notably California and Colorado, which furnish a climate especially beneficial in the treatment of tuberculosis, it has become imperative for all public articles to be thoroughly protected. Otherwise contagious diseases can be spread instead of checked. Some of the most dangerous articles are the telephone mouthpiece, the common towel, and the public drinking cup. Paper has come to the rescue and supplied towels and drinking cups that are to be discarded after use.

Small bottles of paper will soon be in extensive use. They are cheap and sanitary and the troublesome washing and collection of the empty bottles is obviated. A very recent improvement in paper milk bottles appears in a patent to A. G. Grant (No. 1,067,217). This is a bottle having a narrow strip of transparent material running the full length of the side. This allows the buyer to see the level of the cream in the milk or the level of the liquid in the interior, and enables him to tell whether there is any sediment in the bottom of the bottle.

Paper receptacles of all kinds are now on the market. These are especially valuable in the parking and shipping of foodstuffs. The manufacture of water- and grease-proof paper has recently been introduced and is especially useful in this connection. These are best packed in paper receptacles, and a recent practice has been of shipping eggs by parcel post in a special type of paper container. Ice cream is at present sold in small quantities, packed in paper receptacles, and it has become a practice for some of the progressive dealers to furnish the wealthy cheap paper spoons that are very little used.

The packing of loaves of bread in individual wrappers is another advance in the handling of foodstuffs, an advance which not only insures cleanliness, but also prevents the entry and escape of moisture and preserves the freshness of the loaf.

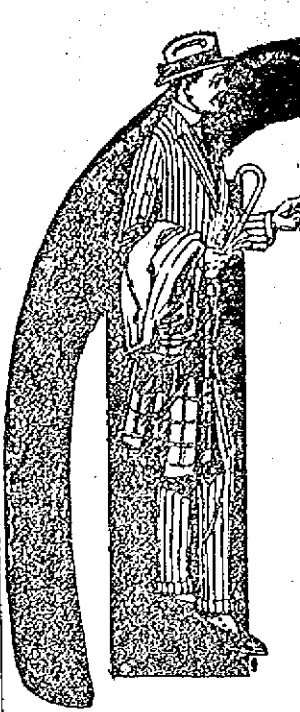

One inventor, J. W. Weiss (No. 1,063,421), makes a collapsible box of paper with a reinforced partition along the sides or corners. Usually collapsible paper

AGAINST REPEAL

Chairman Underwood Favors Tariff Law as it Now Stands

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Efforts to repeal the five per cent. tariff discount provision on imports in American ships, which has aroused the state and treasury departments, met a setback yesterday with the return to the city of Representative Underwood, chairman of the ways and means committee, original champion of the clause.

After Joseph W. Folk, solicitor of the state department, who advocates repeal of the provision, had talked to Mr. Underwood he announced that there would be no developments in the matter for several days. It also was stated that President Wilson's mind in the premises still is open.

Mr. Underwood still emphatically favors the provision, and had no hesitancy in saying so.

"The tariff is now a law and I am for the bill as it stands," Mr. Underwood declared. "If the president thinks the issue grave enough to send a message to congress urging the repeal of the discount provision or if he indicates that he wishes it repealed, I will call the ways and means committee to consider the idea. But even then, I would not favor a repeal until a thorough hearing had been held and everything has been said on both sides."

Mr. Underwood further stated that he believed there was a misconception in the departments regarding the clause and that he believed it would work out advantageously to this country.

CARL H. SMITH WON BET

Lowell Boy Crossed Continent in Auto in 30 Days Without Assistance, Winning $10,000 Wager

Carl H. Smith, San Francisco theatrical man, arrived in this city yesterday in his big Locomobile car after an across-continent trip in a motor car under peculiar conditions. Carl Smith is a former Lowell boy, son of the late Dr. Herman J. Smith and brother of Foster H. Smith. Carl is visiting his mother and brother in Merrimack street.

The trip responsible for Carl's presence in Lowell, his old home, was undertaken on a wager and while New York city was the wager terminus, so to speak, Carl decided to come to Lowell for the rarely missed an opportunity to visit his mother.

The trip as before stated, was undertaken on a wager with D. Hallahan, proprietor of the Market Street theatre, in San Francisco and involves about $10,000. Carl, who has driven an automobile only a year, and knows practically nothing of its mechanical parts, having never done more than change a tire when occasion demanded, agreed to drive from San Francisco to New York in 60 days without aid in making repairs or any kind of adjustment.

Several other bets hinge on the trip and all the money is in the hands of Middle Grady of San Francisco and John Morgan, the world's champion three-cushion billiardist. In order that everything would be strictly on the level, an official observer accompanied Mr. Smith and let it be known that Carl has won the wager.

He crossed the continent in 30 days. The trip, however, was not without its difficulties and its dangers. On the way east a cloudburst was encountered in Wyoming, a terrific hail-storm on the Colorado-Kansas line which tore the top of the car to ribbons, and he arrived in Denver two days behind the schedule necessary, but made up the time between Chicago and New York.

It was stipulated in the bet that the trip must be made with but one set of tires and unnecessary to state Carl succeeded in negotiating the distance with one set.

Carl allows he has proven to the big automobile men of the country that an amateur is capable of driving a big car across the continent and make a cool $10,000 out of it besides.

HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENTS

State and Federal Officers to Work Together for Better Roads—Value of Proper Road Construction

Secretary Houston of the department of agriculture says that the state and federal governments should work together for highway improvement in order that a large proportion of the money annually spent for road construction may not be wasted.

In his own department the office of public roads has been demonstrating the value of proper road building by the construction of certain objectionable roads, and the forest service is carrying out his idea of national and state cooperation in road building. The law requires that ten per cent. of the gross receipts from the national forests shall be spent in the states in which the forests are situated. This money is expended for road improvement under the direct control of the secretary of agriculture.

The amount appropriated under this act, based on the receipts of the national forests for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, is $23,623,638. From the 1912 receipts for this ten per cent. road item, there is an additional $134,321.10 which is still available.

In administering the ten per cent. road fund, forest officers charged with the actual plans and expenditures in the neighborhood of their forests have, in almost all cases, secured an equal or a larger cooperative fund from state authorities for the building of certain pieces of road.

With the money thus expended many important roads are being built or put in repair. One on the Wyoming national forest, six miles long, makes accessible to farmers a large body of timber and opens up a region of great scenic beauty. In northwestern Arizona, part of the fund will be used in connection with the LeFevre-Bright Angel road, important because it makes accessible to tourists the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. In one place, the Ocean to Ocean Highway crosses the Apache national forest, Arizona, and on this project the forest service and the local authorities cooperated enthusiastically. On the Florida national forest in western Florida, steel bridges and graded roads have, under the stimulus of this fund, taken the place of corduroy, bog, and sand.

This federal road fund is now available in all national forest states of the west. Just as fast as returns come in, the forestry officials say, a similar fund will become available in states in which eastern national forests are being secured.

YALE MAN'S WIFE

Has Sued Charlemagne Tower, for Alienating Son's Affections

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Claiming that she was married to Charlemagne Tower, Jr., on June 7, 1911, in New Haven, Conn., Mrs. George Anna Tower, formerly Miss Durdick, brought suit here today against Charlemagne Tower, former ambassador to Germany, for alleged alienation of her husband's affections.

The young woman, who is now living in this city with her mother, Mrs. George A. Durdick, declares she does not desire pecuniary damages so much as to compel recognition by her husband and his family. She is 28 years old and formerly lived in New Haven. Young Tower is 25 and was a junior at Yale when she met him. A desire that he secure his diploma, she says, prevented an earlier announcement of the marriage.

Members of her family and a few intimate friends, however, were told of the secret, she says, and she lived with her husband at her mother's home in New Haven and subsequently in New York. She declares she visited the former ambassador here at the beginning of this year and was received most courteously until she refused to sign a paper that there had never been an engagement or marriage. Last spring there was a report in this city that young Tower had been married but this was denied by both him and his father. It was also reported that he made a categorical denial to the Yale faculty.

Service of the writ was accepted yesterday by counsel for Charlemagne Tower, Sr., who declined to discuss the matter.

REPUBLICAN METHODS IN CHINA

David Z. T. Yui, formerly secretary to the vice-president of the Chinese republic, is now traveling in this country to learn modern methods for adoption in China. He is at present in charge of the lecture board of the Chinese Y. M. C. A., which is in close touch with the new government and is aiding in putting into effect an educational campaign for the citizenship of the republic.

While in Washington recently Mr. Yui spent some time investigating the work of the forest service, in order that he might find out whether its organization and methods would be of value to the newly created department of agriculture and forestry in China. In speaking of this part of his work, Mr. Yui said:

"In the matter of forest conservation the United States profited much by looking upon the disasters which were the result of the Chinese neglect of forestry. This was a great warning to you. Now we wish to profit by the improved methods of forestry which the United States has discovered and applied."

AMUSEMENT NOTES

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Warner's feature offering at the Opera House today will be that superb electric version of the famous Grimm fairy tale, as told to the children of every nation, "The Sleeping Beauty." This is a gorgeous three reel subject presented by an all-star cast including Eileen Albert, Allan Forrest, Joe Burke, and that bright little star, Baby Early.

"DOLLARS AND SENSE"

Douglas Fairbanks, who will make his first appearance in this city as a star next Monday afternoon and evening under the direction of Cohan and

Harris, in Porter Emerson Browne's new comedy, "Dollars and Sense," is one of the most adventurous spirits among American actors. He and Robert Lorraine and perhaps one or two others are among the few players who are skilful aviators as well, and Fairbanks can handle a racing auto as dextrously as any of the great drivers.

This past summer Fairbanks enjoyed a flight in one of the newest Zeppelin dirigible balloons over the greater part of Germany, but as this kind of flying seemed rather tame to him he made several aeroplane ascents both in Germany and France, on one occasion rising to an altitude of about ten thousand feet. On most of these trips he was a passenger, but frequently the actor has permitted to handle the levers and he handled them like a veteran of the skies. While abroad last summer Mr. Fairbanks also covered several thousand miles by automobile, and it is interesting to hear him tell of his visit to the Balkans in view of the fact all the scenes of his last season's success, "Hawthorne of the U. S. A." were laid in that country. He says he could not resist the temptation, after playing the piece for a year, to go there and see the place and the people as they actually are.

As an athlete Douglas has few equals. His athletic trainer and instructor, Albert Gilmore, has been traveling with him continuously for the past three years. There is scarcely a sport on the calendar, indoor or outdoor, in which young Fairbanks does not excel. He is a clever boxer, a dexterous fencer, plays tennis and golf like a master, is an adept at the oar, and can sail anything that floats from a cat-boats to a cup defender. Thus, who witnessed the thrilling fight between him as Hawthorne and Prince Aladar in last year's play may have wondered how he got through each performance without breaking a few bones. As a matter of fact, it was only his superb physical condition which prevented him at times from being injured; and it is stated upon good authority that at the evening performance of "Hawthorne," the actor who played the Prince had two ribs broken during his fierce encounter with the hero and it was necessary for him to withdraw from the cast temporarily until the fracture healed.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

As "Zoe," the slave girl in "The Octagon," the attraction by the Players at the Merrimack Square theatre next week, Miss Grace Young will be seen in one of the most unique roles which she will probably portray this season. Mr. Walter Scott Weeks also has an exacting role in "Wa-na-Ten," the Indian. This is a most difficult character inasmuch as he doesn't speak one word although on the stage most of the time. It was originally played by Dion Boucicault, the author, and is one on which Mr. Weeks has worked hard on. The staging of the play will be competently handled by Mr. Howard Sydney. The latest motion pictures will also be shown. Seats for all performances, including the special Columbus day matinee are now on sale.

"THEATRE VOYONS"

"The Chieftain's Son," a biography Indian drama at the Theatre Voyons today, given the best picture of Indian life as it really is that has been shown for months. The old Indian chief, his three sons and the outcast and his daughter all are characters that are clear cut in their dramatic strength and the story is an excellent one despite the lack of gaunpily and white men. "A Wall Street Wall" is a novel comedy in every sense of the word. Its story does not amount to anything but the every foot is a laugh and a new laugh.

KEITH'S THEATRE

drawing power. In part this is due to the excellence of the production of "A Bachelor's Dinner," a musical comedy written by Mr. A. Seymour Brown and presented by a cast of 18 persons. It is filled with snappy, catchy songs, and the dancing is an interesting feature. "On the Banks of Killarney" runs this a close second for popular favor. Emmet and Emmet imparting a flavor of the "old darl" to it. An entire farm-yard of creatures is used in the piece, giving it a decidedly local coloring. Booby and Everdeen, in songs, dances and comedy, have an offering which is nothing if not varied. Miss Boothby is a most attractive person. Alf Holt, Australian mimic, does a lot of unusual work, and Billy Davis, the blackface monologist, gets a lot of laughter with his parodies. # THE CIVIL SERVICE JOBS DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

Good Opportunities for Those Who Win Them—Examinations to be Held in Lowell

The civil service commission announces the following competitive examinations: Associate physicist (male), to be held on Oct. 27, for a vacancy in the bureau of standards, department of commerce, Washington, D. C., at a salary of $2,900 per annum. An educational training equivalent to that required for the degree of doctor of philosophy from a university of recognized standing is a prerequisite for consideration for this position. During his post graduate work the applicant must have specialized in the subject of spectrometry, interferometry, and the measurements involved in astrophysics, and in addition have had at least two years' work in original research involving spectrometry, radioactivity, and the measurement of light waves.

Applicants must have reached their twenty-fifth but not their forty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination, but will be rated on the following subjects, which will have the relative weights indicated: General education and scientific training, 30; practical experience and fitness, 40; publications, 30.

Assistant (men), teacher, (men and women), industrial teacher, (men), Dec. 30-31 at Lowell, to fill vacancies as they may occur in the positions of supervising teacher, teacher, industrial teacher, and clerk in the Philippine service. The entrance salary of the majority of male appointees will be $2,200 per annum, and appointees will be eligible for promotion up to $2,600 per annum as supervisor or teacher, although positions above $1,600 are limited in number. Eligibility in the assistant examination is required for promotion to the positions of division superintendent, which carry salaries ranging from $1,500 to $3,000.

Only men will be admitted to the assistant examination.

Women will not be admitted to the teacher examination unless they are the wives, immediate relatives or fiancées of men examined for teacher or assistant, or appointed to or already employed in the Philippine service, except that those who have had special experience in the teaching of domestic science and home economy, or have had training in these subjects and are applicants for positions as special teachers of domestic science and home economy, may be admitted. Each woman applicant should state definitely in her application the name, address, and relationship of the applicant or employee in connection with whom her examination is requested, on that she is applicant for a position as a teacher of domestic science and home economy. Appointments made from the female teacher register will be at entrance salaries of from $1,000 to $1,200.

It is desired to secure as many eligible as possible who are graduates of colleges and normal schools and of polytechnic and agricultural schools. The majority of the assistant eligibles are considered for positions in the bureau of education.

Medical intern for government hospital for the insane, Washington, D. C., salary, $500 per annum. Examination at Lowell Oct. 22.

Electrical expert aid (male) for vacancy at Navy Yard, salary, $4 per diem. Assistant director, (male), office of public roads, department of agriculture, salary, $350 per annum.

An educational training equivalent to that required for graduation in civil engineering from a technical school or college of recognized standing and not less than five years' practical road work are prerequisites for consideration for this position.

Applicants must have reached their thirtieth birthday on the date of the examination.

Stenographer and typewriter, (male). While no difficulty has been found in providing sufficient female eligibles, the number of male eligibles has not been sufficient to meet the needs of the service. Young men who are willing to accept entrance salaries of $410 and $500 per annum have excellent opportunities for appointment. While the entrance salary is small, promotion is reasonably rapid for those who merit it.

Commissioner Cummings and Harvey B. Greene Exchange Compliments

Commissioner Lawrence Cummings and Harvey B. Greene, chairman of the park board, didn't weigh in at the ring-side and nothing was said about weight of gloves, but for a few minutes it looked as if there might be something doing.

You see, it was just like this. Harvey, at a meeting of the park board on Tuesday night, said that Larry wasn't on the level with the park department and that the municipal council had a funny little way of playing politics at the expense of that department.

The controversy had to do with an appropriation of $200 for improvements on the South common, including a band stand and wading pool. It was stipulated in the order appropriating the money that it should be spent under the direction of Commissioner Cummings and Mr. Greene declared, right off the bat, that this stipulation was inserted in order to give Commissioner Cummings the political benefit of it.

Perhaps Larry wasn't sore when he heard what Harvey had said about him. The matter came up at a meeting of the municipal council yesterday and Larry indulged in a bareback at Harvey. Larry said that Harvey had a political grudge and that he could never get over his defeat of last year.

Well, to make a long story short, the municipal council, yesterday, voted to have Mr. Cummings confer with Mr. Greene relative to the $200 and the building of the bandstand on the common and a meeting was arranged for this morning at Mr. Cummings' office.

Mr. Greene is content.

Chairman Greene arrived shortly after ten o'clock and he was escorted to the private office, and Mr. Greene's first words were "I resent the statement you made at the council meeting yesterday."

Mr. Cummings: "And I resent what you said in the newspapers."

Mr. Greene: "My statement was true."

Mr. Cummings: "So was mine, but I am here to do business for the city and not to argue this question."

Mr. Greene then went along and told him he received a letter from Supt. Kernan of the park department saying he questions who is to spend the money appropriated by the council for the construction of the wading pool and band stand. Mr. Kernan further stated he had a conference with City Solicitor Kennedy last July, the time you said I was enjoying my vacation, who said the park department was to spend the money. I got things started and sometime in August I learned you were going to spend the money. On Sept. 1 we stopped all proceedings and if you remember well, I called you up and at that time you said you did not understand the order.

Mr. Cummings: "I signed the order for the appropriation of $200 for the work, but did not take time to read it, and did not know that there was a supplement attached to it in reference to me spending the money."

Mr. Greene: "If the order is carried not Mr. Carr and told him the money was to be spent under my direction, and before the contracts were given out, I had better be consulted on the matter." Mr. Cummings further stated the order appropriating $200 was printed in the newspapers and the park board members had ten days to look into the matter, but nothing was done. He also said he believed the citizens of Lowell are in favor of having the work done by local contractors instead of giving the contract to out-of-town men, as suggested by Mr. Greene, who seemed to favor a Boston concern. Mr. Greene said he also favored the same, but he believed the citizens of Lowell desire good work in every respect.

At this point Inspector Connor was called in and asked how long it would take an architect to prepare plans and specifications for the improvements, and he said he believes it can be done in a couple of days. Mr. Greene insisted that the work be done at once and finally it was decided to call a special meeting of the park board tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock. Messrs. Cummings and Connor will be present and the matter will be settled.

KING TO RESCUE

Alfonso Picks up Man Who Was Thrown from Horse at Madrid

MADRID, Oct. 10.—On the way back from the royal hunting lodge, yesterday, where President Poincaré of France and King Alfonso had lunch, the automobiles frightened the horse of a civil guard and the driver was thrown against a post.

King Alfonso, who was driving his own car, witnessed the accident. He jumped out, picked the man up and skillfully bandaged his head and then placed him in an automobile and sent him to a hospital. All this was done so quickly that President Poincaré, who was in a car ahead of the king's, was unaware of the accident, but on learning the details he sent a gold medal back to the guard.

FIRE DESTROYED 6-STORY MILLING PLANT AND BURNED CONSIDERABLE WHEAT AND FLOUR

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 10.—Fire that destroyed the six-story plant of the Southwest Milling Co. in Kansas City, Kas., early today and burned 25,000 bushels of wheat and 15,000 barrels of flour caused a loss estimated by C. M. Hadenburg, manager of the mill, at $600,000. Ten men who were at work on the top floor when the fire started and who at first were believed to have perished, were found to have left the building safely. The cause of the fire is unknown.

AUTO HITS CAR FIREPROOF ROOF

Automobile and Electric in Collision—E. J. Frost Injured

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Swerving his automobile from the road to the car tracks, in order to avoid collision with another machine, Edward J. Frost, general manager of the William Filene's Sons' company's store, received injuries last evening on Commonwealth avenue, Chestnut Hill, when an inbound Boston Elevated car crashed into his auto, pinning him beneath it, and hurling his chauffeur, the only other occupant, 25 feet through the air to the opposite roadbed.

At the Frost home, 7 Williston road, Auburndale, last night, it was stated that his injuries were not serious, and that he suffered mostly from the shock and shaking up. Persons on the scene of the accident, however, feared that he had been badly injured. The chauffeur, Peter J. Rooney, who was on the seat beside the owner, did not require medical assistance.

The accident happened just after 6 o'clock while Mr. Frost was driving his car toward the junction of Chestnut Hill and Commonwealth avenues. Suddenly out of the gloom a big touring car, traveling at terrific speed, approached on the wrong side of the roadway. Quick action was imperative, and Mr. Frost, failing to note the approaching electric car, turned quickly on the track. The motorman had no time to stop the car and crashed into the Frost machine, half overturning it and pinning the driver beneath. At the same moment the other touring car whizzed past and vanished into the night.

The car crew, assisted by volunteers from the passengers, righted the overturned machine and freed the driver. He was conscious, though violently in pain. Physicians were summoned, and Mr. Frost was taken to his home in another automobile. The accident happened so quickly that no one was able to identify the machine which had caused it.

The tender and front vestibule of the electric car were damaged, but none of the passengers suffered from the crash. The front of the automobile was not badly damaged.

SUFFRAGE CLUB

Forty Students of Radcliffe College Organize—Granddaughter of Charles W. Eliot a Member

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 10.—A suffrage club has been formed at Radcliffe college. More than 40 students have joined it, including Rosamond Elliot, granddaughter of President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard. The club was organized chiefly through the arousing of suffrage sentiment among her fellow students by Anne Page of Brookline, who marched in the suffrage parade in Washington last spring.

Lowell Will Have First of its Kind in New England on Church

Work on the fire-proof roof of St. Jean Baptiste church in Merrimack street is progressing rapidly and those in charge hope to complete the job in a couple of months. Their work would be finished before that time, so they say, but they are being delayed some by the men who are doing the stone work on the rear part of the church.

It is indeed very interesting to watch the crew of men laboring 120 feet from the ground, stationed on small stagings, which is very dangerous, but nevertheless, although this work has been conducted for the past two months, an accident is still to occur.

The roof is constructed of a steel layer covered with cement, and that is the process that is being done. This particular work is being done by the W. F. Kearns Co. of Boston and 22 men are constantly perched on the roof, laying the cement in the coffers. John Cooke of Boston has charge of the work, and he says his company is very precautions for accidents and in order to avoid them, he had small stagings constructed and upon them two men work at one time. There is a large staging extending the whole length of the church on the edge of the roof, and this is encircled by a strong railing, so if one should lose his balance from the top of the roof, his fall would be checked by this railing and staging.

The roof of the church, according to an engineer, is exactly the same height as the Sun building, owing to the fact that the steeple is built on an incline. A hoister was erected on the north side of the church and this is run by steam power, and from this hoister runs a large staging to the center of the roof, which by the way has a pitch of 45 degrees.

A pitch of 45 degrees is finished a slate covering will be put on, and the center of the roof will be ornamented by a copper railing four feet in height. Work on the interior of the edifice is also progressing. Both galleries have been taken down and two were constructed in the rear, one for the congregation and the other for the organ. The steel work on these galleries is finished and as soon as the interior of the temple is cleared of its debris and the roof finished, the wood work will be started.

It will be a year before the church is ready for occupancy and then Lowell will have the first church with a fire-proof roof in New England. Fire traps will not be in evidence in the church for the walls of brick will be covered with plaster, and wood will be utilized for the floors and pews only. An all is being added to the rear of the church which will afford more floor space for the sanctuary choir and sacristy. Architect Henry L. Rourke has full charge of the work, while the woodwork is under the direction of Contractor William Drapeau.

K. OF C. PLAN BIG PARADE

on Columbus Day

Special Trains and Reduced Rates — Local
Knights Enthusiastic

Columbus Day will be celebrated as a state holiday in New Hampshire for the first time on Monday next, and the occasion will be marked by a monster parade in Manchester in which members of the Knights of Columbus and other societies from Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill and many other Massachusetts cities will take part. The Knights of Columbus are particularly anxious to make Monday a red letter day in the history of Manchester and they have made detailed arrangements not only for their members but for their friends and the public generally to be present at the great parade and the host of other attractions which will make Monday memorable to all who attend. The neighboring city is leaving nothing undone to arrange a program that will satisfy the most exacting. Messengers from there to the various courts of the participating societies have declared that the city will be in gala attire and that the decorations, music, side attractions and all the other manifestations of honor to the great discoverer will be on a scale such as the city has not seen heretofore. The first celebration of Colum-

LOCUST BORERS

Affected Trees May be
Should be Burned

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 10.—The cutting of the locust tree for all purposes, including thinning operations and for private commercial use, should be done between the first of October and the last of March. To destroy the locust borer before they enter the wood, the removal of the bark from all desirable portions of the trunks of the trees killed is important and necessary. Tops and thinning should be burned.

The yellow striped, long horned, winged beetle that produces the devastating borer is found from August to October on trees and the flowers of the goldenrod. During this period, eggs are deposited in the crevices of the bark of growing trees and the young borers, after being hatched, pass the winter there and in the spring bore through the bark to the heart of the tree.

The injury to the trees consists of wounds in the bark and sapwood, which if sufficiently severe and repeated year after year, result in a worthless growth or the death of the tree.

bus Day in New Hampshire will leave a standard of excellence that cannot easily be equalled in future.

Held Overflow Meeting

The local council of the Knights of Columbus held an overflow meeting last evening in their new club rooms on Anne street and after the transaction of the usual routine business, the rest of the time was given over to making arrangements for attending the Manchester celebration next Monday. It was decided that the members of all the local divisions meet in the early morning in the morning and march in a body to St. Peter's church where services are to be held at 3 a. m. After the church services the members will march back to the hall where a short social session will be held. It was voted that all members with the exception of the fourth degree shall wear dark clothes, derby hats, grey ties and grey gloves. The fourth degree will wear their formal regalia. The Knights are particularly anxious that the general public should know that all people are at liberty to avail of the special trains provided for the occasion and of the reduced rates. The outward train will leave the northern depot at 12:15 p. m. immediately following the passing of the 11:30 from Boston, and there will also be a special train for the return trip which will leave Manchester at 8 p. m. These trains will be taken by the Knights accompanied by a band, and they request that those wishing to seize the opportunity to attend the splendid celebration should plan to avail of this special service also, as it will be far more convenient for all concerned. Tickets are $1.95 for the round trip and are now on sale at the following places: Goodale's drug store, Central street, D. S. O'Brien Clothing Co., Merrimack street, Carter and Sherburne's, Merrimack square, and James Brown's pharmacy, Broadway.

Record Breaking Crowd

The local Knights have notified those in Manchester in charge of arrangements to be ready for a record breaking crowd from here, and to see to it that the hotels, restaurants, etc. will be prepared for the great influx of visitors. Plans will also be made by the Lowell delegation to provide a special amusement features for those from this city and they, therefore, wish that as far as possible our people should keep together when in Manchester. Any one in doubt about any part of the arrangements or wishing to seek further information will receive same by telephoning 1112, the new home of the Knights of Columbus on Anne street.

Broderick's, No. Billerica, Fri. eve.

timber affected. The numerous worm-holes in the wood also reduce its commercial value. The presence of the insects in injurious numbers is indicated at this season of the year by the frequency of the adults on the goldenrod flowers and on the trees. So extensive has the damage of this pest been in some sections of the eastern states and the middle west that it is now considered a profitable to grow the tree for either shade or timber. One important reason for holding this borer in check is to prevent its extension into the far west and other sections which are at present free from it.

How to Kill Grubs

Experiments have demonstrated that the grubs may be killed by spraying the trees and branches with a strong solution of kerosene emulsion. This should be done not earlier than November and not later than March because this spraying when the trees are in leaf will destroy the foliage and check growth.

The emulsion may be prepared as follows:

Kerosene emulsion (soap formula): Kerosene, 2 gallons; whale-oil soap (or 1 quart of soft soap) ½ pound; water, 1 gallon. The soap, first finely divided, is dissolved in the water by boiling and immediately added boiling hot, away from the fire, to the kerosene. The whole mixture is then agitated violently while hot by being pumped back upon itself with a force pump and direct discharge nozzle throwing a strong stream, preferably one-eighth inch in diameter. After from three to five minutes pumping the emulsion should be perfect, and the mixture will have increased from one-third to one-half in bulk and assumed the consistency of cream. Well made, emulsion will keep indefinitely and should be diluted as wanted for use.

For the treatment of large orchards or in municipal work requiring large quantities of the emulsion, it will be advisable to manufacture it with the aid of a steam or gasoline engine, as has been very successfully and economically done in several instances, all the work of heating, churning, etc., being accomplished by this means.

The use of whale-oil soap, especially if the emulsion is to be kept for any length of time, is strongly recommended, not only because the soap possesses considerable insecticidal value in itself, but because the emulsion made with it is more permanent, does not lose its creamy consistency, and is always easily diluted, whereas with most of the other common soaps the mixture becomes cheesy after a few days and needs reheating to mix with water. Soft soap answers very well, and 1 quart of it may be taken in lieu of the hard soap.

Use Rain Water

In limestone regions or where the water is very hard some of the soap will combine with the lime or magnesia in the water, and more or less of the oil will be freed, especially when the emulsion is diluted. Before use, such water should be broken with live, or rain water employed.

For use on locust trees dilute 1 gallon of emulsion with 2 gallons of soft water.

Pure kerosene and pure petroleum will effectively kill the insects, but may do some damage to the bark of the trees.

Experiments with carbolic emulsion indicate that this preparation is of no value to kill the young grubs. According to Dr. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology, the brown and apparently dying condition of the yellow or black locust trees in the states of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio is caused by the insect known as the locust leaf beetle. Nearly every summer the brownish appearance of these trees attracts attention and causes considerable inquiry and some alarm. However, with a few exceptions, the trees recover and come out fresh and green the following spring.

A more complete description of the locust borer and methods for its control may be obtained from circular No. 63 of the bureau of entomology, which is written by A. D. Hopkins in charge of forest insect investigations. The bulletin contains photographs of the borer.

When in need of a blood medicine remember Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—not a patent medicine but a doctor's prescription, now used the world over because of their recognized value as a household medicine. A tonic for the blood and nerves and a specific for diseases caused by thin blood.

NEW BIRD REGULATIONS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Hunters in all parts of the country are much interested in the new regulations governing the shooting of migratory birds. These regulations went into effect October 1. The department issued a few months ago the proposed new law and requested that if any one took serious objections to these regulations they would be given a chance to be heard. There were many protests at first from the Cape, the Vineyard and other sections of New England, but so far as is known here there have been no hearings in Washington with regard to the matter, and it is to be assumed that the sportsmen are satisfied with the proposed law.

In some states the new law will not materially affect the hunting privileges because it will not make any greater restrictions than are imposed by the state laws already in existence. In others the change will be more keenly felt. The five-year closed season for certain game birds, the prohibition of shooting between sunrise and sunset, and the long closed season for birds along certain navigable waters are the most important features of the new regulations. The new law authorized the department of agriculture to formulate regulations covering the points needed for the federal protection of migratory birds. These regulations were to fix and prescribe the closed seasons with due regard to temperature, breeding habits and the times and lines of migration of the different classes of birds. A committee of experts were selected to prepare these regulations which were made public for three months before final adoption and approval by the president.

This committee has fixed suitable districts in different parts of the country in which it shall be unlawful to shoot, kill or capture migratory birds, and at the same time give the hunter all the sport possible without threatening the total extinction of the birds. It is understood that where the states have suitable laws for the protection of migratory birds nothing in the new regulations shall be permitted to conflict with them. Hearings have been held in several sections of the country, and the general approval with which these regulations have been received as a whole has been most gratifying to the committee, and it proves pretty conclusively that public sentiment has become aroused to the need of protection of the native birds, and what opposition there may have been, it is believed, will be thoroughly overcome when the new law is in operation. The provision that the new law should not interfere with the bird laws already existing in the states required much work on the part of the committee. There are something like 700 laws governing bird shooting in the 48 states, and in order to harmonize them a number of exceptions have been included with the regulations which, it is believed, will make the new law a harmonious scheme for conserving the bird life uniformly throughout the country.

As has already been concisely stated, the country has been divided into two zones, the first zone to be known as the breeding zone, and number two as the wintering zone. The new law prohibits shooting between sunset and sunrise, and this restriction has been seriously objected to in New England and a few of the western states, but the objection is not sustained because this protection already exists in a number of states including New York. It is claimed that at least half of the hunters in the country have been subject to this restriction for years by the laws of their states and most of them endorse it as a proper measure. The state of Louisiana has gone still farther, for the shooting of birds after the noon hour is prohibited.

A five-year closed season has been authorized extended to September, 1918, covering band tailed pigeons, swans, curlews and three varieties of crane. The enormous decrease in these birds threatens their total extinction. A closed season will extend from January 1 to November 1 for all migratory birds passing over or at rest upon any of the navigable waters between certain designated points. These are the Mississippi river from New Orleans to Minneapolis, the Ohio river between its mouth and Pittsburgh and the Missouri river between its mouth and Bismarck, North Dakota.

Aside from the esthetic value of birds, their destruction by the wholesale methods which have been in operation has meant a great loss to the nation. All sections of the country have suffered from insect pests which did not exist until the slaughter of the birds had lessened their protection, and it is claimed millions of dollars are lost annually from the destruction of trees because of the scarcity of songbirds. Where there are plenty of songbirds, no trees are seriously damaged. It is further claimed by scientists that birds can do more to overcome the gypsy moth than any human device.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM READY

Will Meet Rindge Manual Tomorrow — Lawrence Academy Plays Here on Monday

Lowell high will meet Rindge Manual Training school of Cambridge on the gridiron at Spaulding park tomorrow afternoon and a slashing game is expected to be the result. Rindge Manual is an unknown quantity in football circles for they have not met any of the large teams. Tomorrow's contest, however, is sure to be a hard fought battle as Lowell high does not want to lose a game this season and the boys from Cambridge hate to lose to a small city aggregation.

Captain Jake Cullen asserts that his team is in great shape. They have not been in competition but once this season when they defeated Natus high school and have appreciated the long rest. All of the first team are anxious for a game and feel certain that the team which outplays them now will have to be made of championship material.

On next Monday afternoon at Spaulding Park Lowell high will play the strong Lawrence Academy football team. It is seldom that the local team has two games as heavy as are these contests coming together in the early part of the season.

This team should prove one of the best aggregations that the local team has turned out in years. The line is heavier than that of the ordinary schoolboy eleven and the ends and back-field are fast. It is hard to see where Lowell will be pushed hard this season even with a difficult schedule facing them.

MANY DESERTERS

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 10.—The failure of General Aubert to get to Torreon in time to relieve it—a mission upon which he set out from Saltillo nearly a month ago with a large force of federal troops—is explained by the fact that the greater part of his men deserted him before he had completed half of his journey. He is reported to have reached Madero, 25 miles to the east of Torreon, when news of the evacuation of that city reached him. Immediately the vanguard of the retreating federal troops came into view. General Aubert's men fled with all their ammunition and arms. General Aubert is said today to be at Hipolito, 50 miles west of Saltillo, to which point he retreated with the men who had evacuated Torreon.

ARTICLE ASSAILS COURT

Sensation Caused at Kiev, Russia by Item Denouncing Court for Action in Murder Trial

KIEV, Russia, Oct. 10.—A sensation was caused here today by an article in the conservative and anti-semitic newspaper Kievlanka, asserting in the strongest terms the court trying Mendel Brilish on the charge of murdering Andrew Yushinsky, a Christian boy of Kiev in March, 1910. The newspaper, which usually sells at 2 cents, fetched $1.50 a copy today.

The newspaper besides attacking the court and the public prosecutor, tears the indictment against Brilish to shreds in terms which would be surprising even in the most radical journals.

The writer, while denouncing the alleged unscrupulousness of the Jews in attempting to obtain the release of Brilish says the charge against him is a charge against the whole religion of the most infamous superstition.

The articles deplore the decision of the prosecution to appear before the world with such an outfit, adding:

"Injustice will not produce the desired fruits. However, advantageous or necessary it may be from a party standpoint to prove the existence of 'ritual murders' the prosecution ought not to have and has not the right to undertake the supply of the living object indispensable for a trial of this kind."

"It is a monstrous theory that Brilish is of no account and may even be acquitted providing that the ritual is established. Brilish may be insignificant. Nevertheless you have no right to imprison him unless you are convinced of his guilt. You have treated him like a rabbit on the table of a vivisectionist. The time, perhaps, will come when Chaplinsky (the public prosecutor of the Kiev court) will be replaced by some one anxious to produce the inciter of outrages against the Jews. What will you do if the choice fall on you for such a sacrifice?"

Receives Visit from Her Brother, Fr. Traggerer of Emmitsburg, Md.

Rev. George J. Traggerer, pastor of St. Anthony's parish, Emmitsburg, Md., was in Lowell this week and visited his sister, Sister Martina of St. John's hospital. Sister Martina has been in charge of St. John's hospital nights for the past 26 years. She possesses a wonderful memory and can recall the name of every patient that has been in St. John's hospital during that time.

Fr. Traggerer's parish is located within the shadow of Mt. St. Joseph, the mother house of the Sisters of Charity, and about a mile and a half from Mt. St. Mary's college. While in town Fr. Traggerer was the guest of Rev. Fr. Kerrigan of St. Patrick's church, at dinner. Fr. Kerrigan was ordained at Mt. St. Mary's college and was a close friend of Fr. Traggerer. The latter, after spending a day in Lowell left for Montreal to attend the consecration of Bishop Forbes, an old Mt. St. Mary's friend.

Nurses Graduated

A class of seven nurses was graduated at St. John's hospital last evening. The exercises were attended by the nurses and nurses and a very pretty program was carried out. Ice cream and cake were served after the banquet. The young women graduates were: Miss Margaret O'Dwyer, Lowell; Miss Mary E. White, Boston; Miss Helen Fitzpatrick, Lowell; Miss Cecile Pléard, Lowell; Miss Teresa Forbes, Fitchburg; Miss Agnes Donnelly, New Brunswick; Miss Mary Lynch, Lowell.

AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

HARVEST SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT LAST EVENING A BIG SUCCESS

A harvest supper and entertainment constituted the attraction at St. John's Episcopal church last evening. The affair was under the auspices of the ladies of the parish and there were over 100 persons present.

The tables abounded with epicurean delights, and the menu embraced the usual wide variety of fruits, vegetables and dishes associated with the time of bounteous harvests.

The kitchen was in charge of Mrs. Mary Spencer, while Mrs. A. E. Moors and Mrs. Bishop had supervision of the dining-room.

One of the most attractive tables was that on which harvest vegetable and fruit products were piled high in all their many forms and colors. This table was in charge of Mrs. Maria Palmer, Mrs. Clarence Edwards and Mrs. Willis Holt.

For those inclined to sweets, a wide variety of candy was displayed in an attractive manner on a table in charge of Mrs. George Walker and Mrs. James Regan.

Following the supper, an entertainment was given under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Wilde. A clever sleight-of-hand and juggling act was "put over" to use a theatrical term—by Jonah Vennard, while the violin and piano duets rendered by Miss May Tyler and William Galloway received enthusiastic applause.

A full evening of merriment was concluded with general dancing, in which the young people engaged until the fair broke up at a seasonable hour.

RECONSTRUCTION OF NEW HAVEN

It is indeed a persistent and prejudiced pessimist who would deny that the officials of the New Haven railroad are making honest efforts to repair the injury brought on by wilful extravagance and impractical policies. Yet it has been the fashion to find fault with the road so long that there are still many people adversely critical about all that concerns the future of the road and especially its management. Much of this attitude is due to the continual attacks of those who have had an axe to grind and others who blindly followed disgruntled leaders, but much of it was founded on a sincere desire to see better things done for the railroad which could be and should be one of the greatest contributing influences to the prosperity of this region.

The management of the New Haven may answer much of the virulent criticism directed at it more fully, by silence, but there has been serious criticism of a type that called for explanation and action. Of this variety was the finding of the interstate commerce commission which after patient investigation condemned the road on its management, its acquisition of extraneous interests, its equipment, its provision for safety and many lesser points. In the days of the able Mr. Mellen we would expect such a harsh finding to be met by a dignified silence and possibly an answer in kind, but the New Haven road is now in different hands, and the fact was never emphasized more strongly than by the answer which has been made to the finding of the commission.

The directors of the road held a very important meeting on October 2nd for the declared purpose of giving "closer supervision to the details of the business and also in considering the financial, corporate and physical condition of the properties for which they are trustees." They covered all the main points in the report of the interstate commerce commission and took steps to have the recommendations attended to as soon as possible. They laid stress on the important fact, however, that "making large changes in the structure of any organization is necessarily a slow and delicate process, which should be done so far as possible without demoralizing the forces." Even the most aggressive member of the commission will agree with that.

The most important step taken was the naming of committees of the directors, "confering with others" to proceed on the following phases of former New Haven activity: The Connecticut trolley situation, the Rhode Island trolley situation, the steamship lines, the relations of the company with the Boston and Albany railroad, Western Massachusetts trolley lines, and relations of the New Haven with the Boston and Maine. These various committees were given full power "to call upon officers and employees for any and all information which will be promptly furnished," and they were also given permission to "incur reasonable expense." A representative committee was formed, headed by Howard Elliott, to call upon the interstate commerce commission and the attorney-general to lay before them the plans that were formulated for the upbuilding, or more properly the reconstruction, of the New Haven railroad.

It seems as though at last there are practical men at the head of the involved affairs of the New Haven and the voice of public opinion has been heard and heeded. This public opinion has been largely destructive in the past, possibly with good results, but it should now become constructive. When the officials of the road are showing such an evident desire to meet reasonable requirements, there is no valid reason for a continuation of an adversely pessimistic public attitude.

BIRD TO GARDNER

He is a very game Bird indeed who answers the invitation of Mr. Gardner to a walloping party in Faneuil hall, Boston, on Oct. 15th, for the purpose of giving one hour to the discussion of personalities. Incidentally he is a brave and wise Bird even though he refused to be walloped for he reminds the excitable republican nominee that if the latter has exposures sufficiently weighty to make against the progressive candidate, exposures which would make imperative the hiring of a special hall and one hour of revelations, it is his duty to the voters of Massachusetts to make those exposures now. Apparently Mr. Bird, whose character, by the way, sincerity of purpose and devotion to principle, should make him indifferent to vindictive attack, has discovered the vote-catching motive back of the tiresome bravado of Mr. Gardner and refuses to take part in any controversy which would "lower the dignity of Massachusetts campaigns for governor."

It is nice and delicate of Mr. Gardner to set aside one hour for giving a "wallop" to the progressive nominee, but it would be far more creditable to him if he had decided to do this before ridiculing and assailing the character he has called "Dr. Jekyll." If Mr.

Gardner has suffered from the personal attacks of certain progressives he must find consolation in the reflection that he has invited that regrettable type of political attack. Had he treated Mr. Bird with the courtesy displayed by Mr. Walsh, which courtesy Mr. Bird publicly commends—he would have been treated by Mr. Bird as Mr. Walsh has been treated, with dignity and moderation of speech. If it has been made a campaign of personalities, Mr. Gardner is the greatest offender.

Democrats and the Walsh sympathizers in all parties may be encouraged by the fact that in his latest letter to Gardner Mr. Bird calls Mr. Walsh his "formidable opponent." If Gardner continues to blunder so lamentably, the same epithet will apply to Mr. Bird from the democratic side, as from the present indications it looks as though Mr. Bird will get a great many votes that would have been republican had Benton been the chosen candidate.

OUR MUCKRAKERS

Mr. A. G. Cunnock hit the nail squarely on the head yesterday at the dinner to the visiting bankers at the Textile school when he said that we have far too many muckrakers. No one can live long in Lowell without being convinced of the fact that it is the general rule for many Lowell people to deride the city, its institutions, its government, and its other leading civic features, leaving it to outsiders to praise the many excellent things to be found within its borders. Mr. Cunnock referred especially to the prevailing tendency to throw stones at our mayor and commissioners after election, even though before taking office they were on the crest of the wave of popularity. His remarks are as true as the popular tendency is regrettable, and none are more conscious of the fact than the officials interested.

After elections the mayor and commissioners are not the officials of any part of the public but of the whole public and they should receive the undivided support for which Mr. Cunnock pleaded. They cannot do their best work if they feel that the people are not with them and they cannot have the enthusiasm that comes from public co-operation. When there is obvious reason to condemn, the press and public will condemn, but too many of our people make up their minds to condemn at all times without the occasion justifies it or not. The man who votes for any candidate for civic office pledges his support to the man of his choice, and the public spirited citizen of all parties will support the popular choice in everything conducive to public good. Muckrakers die hard and we shall have many of them with us for a long time to come, but let us hope for a better spirit in the future.

CHURCHILL ON HOME RULE

If there has been any feeling here that the wooden rattle bluff of the bitter Ulster minority or the impractical conference scheme of Lord Loreburn had weakened the cause of Irish home rule, it will be dispelled by the recent speech of Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, who, speaking in Scotland, declared that nothing will prevent the government from carrying through the home rule bill as planned. The answer of Mr. Carson has not yet been recorded but like one of the dragons of medieval legend he may be expected to fairly breathe forth smoke and flames.

For the first time in any great struggle in which the fortunes of Ireland have been involved, of recent years, the world sees the liberal party of England advocating Irish home rule, not as a sentimental proposition but as a matter of fact economic change. There are, of course, a great many sentimental reasons why Ireland should have self-government, but it is a relief to see the nationalists attending to the interests of their constituents in a grave and dignified manner, leaving the tumultuous howlings of forced devotion to the small body of northern malcontents.

THE CHINESE FLAG

In accordance with the custom of the proprietor of The Sun to fly the flags of all nations from the Sun building on their respective national holidays, the beautiful flag of the new China with its five colored bars representing the five races in the union has floated from the roof of our building all day. It comes appropriately after the very recent election of Yuan Shi-Kai as constitutional president of the Chinese republic for a term of five years, and we hope the flag of a great democratic ideal will float as undisturbed over the ancient land during his term of office as it has floated today in this city where many natives of the flowery kingdom are giving us an example in thrift, progressiveness and honesty.

We note with pleasure that the Lawrence Eagle is about to move into its new building on Essex street. The Eagle is apparently reaping the reward of its zealous efforts to furnish the people with a live, up-to-date newspaper.

Seen and Heard

Little George was six years old at New Year's and the family was much interested in having him start to school in February, but he insisted that he was not going.

One day his grandmother said to him, "George, you are going to school with sister this winter, aren't you?"

"No, grandma, I'm not going to school at all. I can't read, nor I can't write, nor I can't sing, and I'd like to know what good I'd be at school."—Woman's Home Companion.

Prof. Brander Matthews, the eminent critic, was talking at Columbia University about the wretched quality of modern American fiction.

"When I look over our best sellers," said Professor Matthews, "I can't believe that these writers are really doing their best. I believe that they must loathe their work—that they must be ashamed of their work."

"But such work if it catches on pays, while fine work can never pay like a best seller. And so I suppose we must say of our modern American novelists as of most other people:

"They give up what they like to do in order to get what they like to have."—New York World.

Enrico Caruso, at a dinner preceding his departure for the season in London, said that when he grew too old to sing he would probably teach.

"Teaching the voice is a difficult task," he continued. "It is a fine thing to be a good teacher. Some pupils are so very stupid."

"You can no more hurry a voice than you can hurry a flower; but most pupils want to become star singers in a month or two."

"A lady said to one of my friends, a superb teacher:

"I'm going abroad next month, and I want 25 lessons in voice culture, before I sail."

"Impossible!" said the teacher.

"Why impossible?" said the lady. "I could take two lessons a day some days."

"Or, better still," said my friend sarcastically, "you could take the whole 25 lessons all at once, one after the other. A day would do it, then."

"Splendid!" cried the lady. "Shall we make it tomorrow?"—New York Telegraph.

One of the most remarkable wells in Oklahoma is owned by J. C. McSpadden at Tahlequah, Okla. This well not only furnishes an abundance of pure water almost ice cold in the summer, but it affords a supply of chilled air which is utilized for a cooling plant that keeps the McSpadden home cooler on the hottest day than any summer resort within a thousand miles.

It is a freak well all around. When the well was sunk it was for a cistern.

When about 50 feet deep the bottom broke through, revealing a sort of cavern in which there was a tremendous flow of ice cold water. Apparently this is an inexhaustible supply, for the well was sunk years ago and the water has remained at the same level ever since.

One may open the cover of this well and his hat will be lifted from his head by a rush of air from the well that feels like an icy blast. Where the water or the cold air comes from is a puzzle no one has answered. Unlike most underground streams, this one changes temperature in the winter, getting much colder. While the water stands 45 feet below the surface of the ground, yet in winter ice five inches thick has been known to form in the well.

Taking advantage of the freak well's supply of cold air, Mr. McSpadden sealed the top of the well with a concrete cap and placed pipes in it. Through the other he draws a supply of cold air that is piped through every room of his six-room cottage. These pipes reduce the temperature many degrees even on the hottest days, and when the weather is moderately cool the house can be made so cold as to be uncomfortable.

BEAUTIFUL HANDS

O you hands—they are strangely fair! Fair—for the jewels that sparkle there—

Fair—for the witchery of the spell That ivory keys about can tell. But when their delicate touches rest— Here in my own do I love them best, As I clasp with eager acquisitive hands My glorious treasure of beautiful hands.

Marvelous, wonderful, beautiful hands! They can coax roses to bloom in the strands Of your brown tresses; and ribbons will twine Under mysterious touches of thine. Into such knots as entangle the soul, And fetter the heart under such a control.

As only the strength of my love understands My passionate love for your beautiful hands.

As I remember the first fair touch Of those beautiful hands that I love so much.

I seem to thrill as I then was thrilled, Kissing the glove that I found unyielding.

When I met your gaze, and the queenly bow As you said to me, laughingly, "Keep away!"

And dazed and alone in a dream I stand, Kissing this ghost of your beautiful hand.

When first I loved, in the long ago, And held your hand as I told you so— Pressed and caressed it and gave it a kiss.

And said "I could die for a hand like this."

Little I dreamed love's fulness yet Had to ripen when eyes were wat'ry, And prayers were vain in their wild demands For one warm touch of your beautiful hands.

Beautiful hands! O beautiful hands! Could you reach out of the alien lands Where you are lingering, and give me, forlorn,

Only a touch—were it ever so light— My heart were soothed, and my weary brain

Would lift itself into rest again; For there is no solace the world commands Like the caress of your beautiful hands.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

MEN NOT PLATFORMS

Lowell Courier-Citizen: The Springfield Union quite properly remarks that the platform of Wendell's Ambition Pills and possibly Foster, the personality of these men, with their past record, constitutes the real reason for a preference of the three last governors. The consumer who feels the pinch of high prices should secure one at once.

PARADOXICAL TOM

Deverly Times: Tom Lawson has presented to congress de luxe editions of his book, "High Cost of Living." The consumer who feels the pinch of high prices should secure one at once.

NOT DIFFERENT

Portland Express: A man French dressmaker who designs some of the most daring costumes for women, recently visited this country. He brought his wife with him and it was noticeable that her dress, while stylish, were very modest. Quite likely, the French dressmaker is like some other men, an admirer of conspicuous clothes only on other men's wives.

SULZER

Providence Tribune: Honest men must stand appalled at the revelations in Albany. The candidate of the prospective governor visiting the office of one of the most prominent financiers in the country and soliciting $1500 or as much more as he could get is one that the people of his state can never forget. The incredible stamp of shame is on the transaction. We can all see the crawling, cringing candidate with his attempt at humor, begging $10,000 out of a man to whom the money was but a fly-sneak, but who, no doubt, thought he owned a governor when he said it over.

TICKET SPECULATORS

Fall River Herald: The sale of seats for big sporting events like the world's series by speculators flourishes because people are willing to do business with the speculators. The crusade against it encounters the same difficulty that the crusade against the practice of giving tips encounters, and we may look for the disappearance of both about the same time.

OUR ROADS

Manchester Mirror: Much good highway work has been done, but much money has been burned up for nothing. Many stone roads have become rock because of lack of maintenance. Others because the materials originally lacked the adhesive quality that creates a surface binder. There is too much disposition to regard the state and national governments as rich uncles who will pay all the bills.

AMERICAN CHILDREN

Lyons News: There is no great evidence of any general race guide. The nation has yet a great majority of people born in this country and knowing no other flag save the stars and stripes. These children are the true wealth of the country. Nothing else is to be compared with them. Wealth may be or not, but these are the future creators of all the grandest and noblest things that the world knows. Sometimes we have been accused of being ruled by our children. Perhaps so, but isn't it well to have so

HOME RULE CAMPAIGN

Demanded by British People
and Opposed by Peers

Following is a statement of the present situation relative to home rule in Ireland by a member of the nationalist party and therefore, expressive of the prevailing sentiment: So far as parliament is concerned, the home rule cause could not be in a more hopeful position. The government has passed triumphantly through what everybody regarded as its most critical session, the period that would test the loyalty of its supporters and the practicality of its policy, and it is stronger and more united now than at any time since its ascent to power. The parliament act has successfully withstood every attack made upon it, and there is now no doubt entertained amongst its friends that it will prove all-effective for its intended purposes of effectually limiting the veto of the house of lords and of ensuring that the will of the people, expressed through their elected representatives, must and shall prevail. The absurdity of the position taken up by the lords in rejecting all the parliament act bills and the plural voting bill, and in claiming the right to order a general election at any time they think fit, is realized now even by the most reactionary of the Tories. The lords themselves, through Lord Curzon, are endeavoring to explain their words and deeds, but without avail. Instead of placating the people, they are arousing passions which may sweep the hereditary chamber out of existence.

Mr. Redmond's Appeal

The attendance of the members of the Irish party at Westminster during the session has been exemplary, and well deserves the tribute of praise paid to it by Mr. Redmond in the very important letter which he has just addressed to the electorate. If a poll of the Irish party were taken, there would be a unanimous verdict that not one amongst them has equalled the record of Mr. Redmond himself for self-sacrifice and devotion to duty. He has never asked one of his colleagues to follow where he has not led, the well as their leader, and that is why he commands their loyalty and affection to a degree that is unique. The session will end about the 15th of August, and the Tories have been planning in secret another "snap" division. Mr. Redmond got to know of this, and he immediately issued a personal appeal to the Irish members to remain in constant attendance at Westminster until the very end of the session. As he puts it, to have a defeat inflicted on the government at the end of a session of such splendid achievement would be a humiliating anti-climax. It may be taken for granted that the Tory fleet will not succeed.

A Popular Cause

Whilst the home rule position in parliament is quite secure Liberal and Irish members who have been addressing week-end meetings in the country state that the enthusiasm of the people in support of the government and its program is refreshing. Home rule is now the most popular cause with democratic audiences in Great Britain. By rejecting all the parliament act bills, the house of lords has linked home rule, Welsh disestablishment, and the abolition of plural voting with the cause of popular freedom, of the people against the peers, and the result is a forcible conclusion. The parliament act must stand, unless the people are to lose the fruits of their long struggle against the domination of the lords. But the defeat of the home rule bill and the Welsh disestablishment bill would be tantamount to the defeat of the parliament act by the lords, and for that reason if for no other, the passage of these measures is assured.

A Unionist Wall

Mr. Garvin, in the "Observer" bewails the conduct of the Unionist campaign in parliament and in the country. It has been all talk, he says. The government is determined to pass the home rule bill, and so Mr. Garvin has two policies to offer his party. The one is a settlement on federal lines by which he does not mean anything like home rule and the other is as follows:

"If the government persists in using the existing parliamentary position to carry out Mr. Redmond's policy by Mr. Redmond's votes without the sanction of the country, we are nothing for it but the desperation of conflict. There will be chaos in the house of commons, meetings of protest in every constituency, petitions for the dissolution of parliament to be signed by every Unionist in the land, and if possible by an actual majority of the electors in Great Britain; and an appeal to all Unionists, officers and men alike, to leave the territorial army. That is only part of the prospect."

We shall see, Mr. Garvin's "Die-Hards" were to resist the parliament bill to the death. They celebrated its passage by a good dinner.

The Autumn Campaign

Apart from Mr. Garvin, however, there can be no doubt that the Unionists have arranged a big anti-home rule campaign in Great Britain for the autumn. As Mr. Dowlin, M. P., announced at Belfast, this campaign is to be met by a counter-campaign, the details of which are under consideration, and which will be both thorough and effective. The program will include a series of great meetings at which leading cabinet ministers will probably speak, and a great number of smaller meetings for which the services of many of the rank and file of the Irish party will be called upon.

The Rent Ulster

The reply of the nationalists of Belfast to Sir Edward Carson is a subscription of £500 as a first instalment to the home rule fund for 1913. The "Irish News" publishes the list of subscribers, which tells its own tale. The largest subscriptions are £50 from "a Belfast Protestant," and £10 from "a Belfast Protestant, home ruler." All the rest is in subscriptions of from one shilling up to £5. Last year, Belfast's first instalment to the fund was £250. The increase of £170 is eloquent of the growing strength of the home rule cause in the Ulster capital, and a fresh illustration of the generosity and patriotism of its nationalist citizens.

DR. T. BANCROFT

When Abraham Lincoln Was Shot

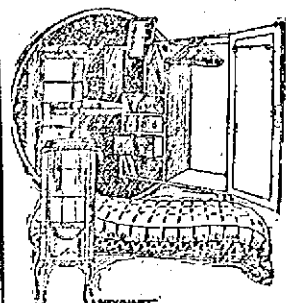

Dr. T. B. Bancroft, of Portland, Oregon, was the speaker at the opening meeting of the Men's club of the Grace Universalist church, last evening.

Dr. Bancroft is one of the few surviving persons of the audience which was in Ford's theatre, Washington, D. C., on the night when President Abraham Lincoln was shot.

He told, in reminiscent mood, of the events immediately before the shooting of the beloved president by John Wilkes Booth, and of the tragic ones which followed it. Dr. Bancroft also told of the conditions obtaining in 1862, when an attempt was made by the Southern states to have the territory of Kansas enter the Union as a slave state. The narrative told of how he shipped west to join the army of free state men who were mustered to fight the men from Missouri, who at that time were endeavoring to bring Kansas into the list of slave states. Dr. Bancroft had many interesting things to tell of the strange state of affairs of that year. Finally it was decided to settle the matter by means of an election. It was to be a very fair election, he said, for the Missourians were very sympathetic people, and they came across the border in big bunches to assist the Kansans in voting.

Soap boxes were set right down on the prairie, he said with little holes in them, and the Missourians brought over thousands of ballots, all of which stated that the depositors voted for slave state candidates. But the men from the north, who also voted, had thousands of ballots, also, and these they tucked into the soap boxes, the names of anti-slave candidates being marked on them. Somehow, he said, the northerners managed to get more ballots into the boxes than did the Missourians, and so this very fair election brought Kansas into the Union as a free state.

TOSSED IN THE AIR

Young Woman Struck by Train and Instantly Killed

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Oct. 10.—While trying to cross the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad tracks at the Columbus avenue station here last night, Miss Anna Beltz, 20 years old, of Stonington, Conn., was struck by the east bound Boston express and instantly killed. Miss Anna Weckworth of Plantsville, Conn., her chum, narrowly escaped death in a futile effort to save her. Miss Weckworth, although tossed 20 feet or more by the train and badly injured, is expected to recover.

The two young women, members of a picnic party, had miscalculated the speed of the flyer which they saw approaching, believing it was the train they wished to take and that it would stop at the station.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine, trimmed with princess lace and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Laura Goodwin of Marblehead as maid of honor, who was gowned in pink brocade crepe de chine. The flower girls were Misses Phyllis E. Ober and Frances M. Phillips. Mr. G. L. Hodge of Billerica was the best man. After the marriage a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Phillips, Lafayette street, Marblehead.

FATHER MATHEW'S DAY

were thus at times considerably obscured. Six northern senators spoke in favor of the resolution, including William H. Seward of New York, who was later Lincoln's secretary of state throughout the Civil war; Lewis Cass of Michigan, secretary of war in Jackson's time, minister to France, candidate for president before and after this period and Buchanan's secretary of state; and Stephen A. Douglass, the "Little Giant" of Illinois, who was so conspicuous a figure in the war and whose debates with Lincoln are so famous. Four southern senators also spoke in behalf of the resolution, including Sam Houston, the picturesque prototype of the state of Texas, and Henry Clay of Kentucky, one of the two or three greatest orators, perhaps, which this country has produced in all time.

"Generally speaking, however, the southern senators were bitterly opposed to the adoption of the resolution, and 11 of them spoke against it; of these the most noteworthy were Jeff Davis of Mississippi, later president of the Confederate States of America, and John C. Calhoun of South Carolina, the able opponent of Daniel Webster in so many conflicts on the floor of the senate.

"I wish that I might give you an adequate idea of the debate, which at times was marked by almost unexampled bitterness. I cannot, however, do more than cite a few extracts which are perhaps characteristic of the general tenor of the debate. You will see for yourself the results of the unfortunate predicament in which Father Mathew had, entirely without his fault, been placed in the eyes of the two factions which were then tearing the country.

"The resolution was, as follows: 'Resolved, that the Reverend Theobald Mathew be permitted to sit within the bar of the senate during the period of his sojourn in Washington.'

"When the resolution had been read, Senator Clemens of Alabama at once rose in opposition. He said in part:

"I object to the passage of this resolution, because the individual to whom it refers has been charged with denouncing one portion of this confederacy as little better than a band of pirates."

Henry Clay at once arose in defense of Father Mathew. He said, in his most eloquent vein:

"Mr. President, I confess that I have heard with great regret this opposition made to the adoption of this resolution."

"I submit it to the candor of the honorable senator whether it is prudent, right, just and proper to refuse a compliment which I venture to say the hearts of all mankind accord to this distinguished foreigner; a compliment no less due to him for his great services in the cause of humanity, than it is due to him as an Irish patriot."

"Then William H. Seward of New York made the unfortunate allusion to slavery which precipitated the bitter subsequent debate. He, however, paid a tribute to Father Mathew in his speech which was fair in its view of the matter.

"Jefferson Davis replied to him in part as follows:

"I am glad to hear the senator from New York (Mr. Seward) place this movement upon a distinct basis—to know that it is advocated because of the opinions in relation to domestic slavery, which are ascribed to the individual named in the resolution. Yes, sir, I am glad to hear that now."

"Sir, I have no wish to depreciate the labors or to contest the merits of him whose name is identified with the beneficent cause of temperance reformation. The good he has done to a portion of our race deserves the thanks of mankind. The heart pays a willing tribute to the benevolence of a higher life, and who has not rejoiced in the happy influence his mission has exercised over his unfortunate countrymen? Could it devolve upon the senate to decide either of these points, there would, I suppose, be but little difference of opinion among us. But it would not then

The residents of West Chelmsford have filed a petition with the Lowell & Fitchburg street railway in the interest of getting back the 1909 p. m. car which was taken of some time ago. Their reason is that those who work until 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, cannot do their shopping in Lowell and make connections for the 6 o'clock car, which is the last to go to West Chelmsford.

SENT TO PRISON

Jos. Brown Will Think it Over in the House of Correction

Joseph Brown, charged with the larceny of a watch, chain and chain, also $6.46 from a man who had treated him as a friend, did not have much of a defence to offer in police court today although he strenuously denied that he would ever do such a wicked thing.

John J. Monahan was the name of the complainant and he was the first witness. He stated that he had been in the defendant's company on the day of the alleged theft and that he had bought them each several drinks. The defendant parted from the witness as the latter was headed for his home.

Monahan said that he fell asleep in the grass on Fort Hill Park and that when he awoke his watch, chain, chain and money was missing. He did not see anybody take it, however.

The next witness in the case was a man who runs a workshop. He testified that Brown had come to his place of business the day after the theft and that he had pawned Monahan's watch for $2.

The defendant put up quite an argument over his identification as the man who pawned the watch but the witness was very sure of his ground.

In response to a question by the court the witness asserted that he has known the defendant for a dozen years. That settled the case for Mr. Brown.

Brown gave the great trial of an impromptu speaker after he was sworn in and had taken the witness stand. "I never stole the money nor anything else, Your Honor," he said.

He was found guilty by Judge Enright and sentenced to four months in the house of correction.

Mary Gutowski and her husband did their best to have two fellow countrymen, Roman Lelak and Michael Maslinski, sentenced to staying $7 from their house over a month ago. No reason was introduced why they had waited until now to press the case. The defendants were discharged.

Allice Merrill pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness. It was her second offence on the same complaint, but Judge Enright gave her another opportunity to reform. She received a suspended sentence of five months. In jail, John M. Ryan, charged with drunkenness, had his case continued until the 17th of the month in order to give him a chance to straighten up.

MATRIMONIAL

SHAW-EDWARDS

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening at six o'clock at St. Anne's church when Mr. William Shaw, a well known draughtsman at the Saco-Lowell shop, and Miss Sadie E. Edwards were united in marriage by the Rev. Samuel Jobb, assistant rector at the church. The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin and carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Catherine Marie Lynch was the bridesmaid and she wore a dress of cream satin and carried a bouquet of white roses. Mr. Harold Sheppard was the best man and the flower girls were the Misses Leland and Bagley. The bride's gift to the bridegroom was a gold pendant and chain and the groom's gift to the bride was a gold scarf pin. Following the marriage there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Senator and Mrs. Henry J. Draper, the house being tastefully decorated with potted plants and flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw were the recipients of many beautiful gifts. They left early in the evening on an extended wedding tour after which they will reside at 70 Fourth avenue, this city.

CHINESE HOLIDAY

Since the completion of the Sun building many beautiful and novel emblems have floated from its roof under the stars and stripes, in accordance with the commendable desire of its proprietor to honor the flags of all nations on their respective national holidays, but it is doubtful if any more novel or more artistic flag has waved over Lowell than that which took the breezes today and aroused the questioning admiration of thousands.

It is the flag of the new China, a flag of five bars of different color and of equal width, arranged horizontally, equal at the top followed by yellow, blue, white and black. This is no mere beautiful arrangement of contrasting bars blended by the discriminating hand and the artistic eye of some master of color in the ancient land of art and the dragon, but a striking and symbolic arrangement symbolizing the union of the five great races that make up the vast area of united China. Red is for the Chinese, yellow for Manchus, blue for Mongols, white for Tibetans and black for Mohammedans.

The recent election of Yuan Shi-Kai as constitutional president will give the celebration of the national holiday an unusual significance in China. Today is the second anniversary of the outbreak of the revolution at Wu-chang, and it is observed as a national holiday and festival throughout the country. One year ago today in Peking, sacrifices were offered to the spirits of dead revolutionaries, the inscription over the Ta Ching gate was removed, and a review of some 16,000 troops was held by the president. There was considerable apprehension in regard to the celebrations at Wu-chang itself, but the precautions taken by the authorities prevented any disturbances from taking place. The occasion was marked by a liberal bestowal of orders and military ranks upon prominent officials and ex-officials, Tutuhs, and naval and military officers.

All up to Associate, Fri. night.

Wanted Man to Perjure Himself

"The damning character of the defendant's refusal is apparent at a glance," continued Mr. Brackett. "He wanted Mr. Morgenthau to perjure himself to save him, the defendant, from the result of his previous crime in not reporting the Morgenthau contribution made to him during the campaign, and thereby brought himself precisely within the section of the code and precisely within the article."

The alleged request of the governor of Duncan Peck, superintendent of public works that he deny his contribution of $500 under oath, Mr. Brackett placed in the same category.

"The testimony of Allan Ryan is still to be considered," he continued. "It stands here without contradiction of any kind. The defendant asked him to perjure himself and have members of this court solicited to vote in his interest to dismiss these proceedings; failing that to see Mr. Murphy for the same purpose, saying he would do

Black Evidence

"This is black evidence convicting him under article four."

"The thing urged by the defendant stands out in all its detestable lines. He urged Morgenthau to perjure himself, he urged Peck to perjure himself and declared his intention of doing so and he urged Ryan to tamper with this court to the end that he might be acquitted."

"And through and over it all runs the foulest of crimes connected with the administration of justice, subordination of perjury and an intention of the defendant himself to commit perjury. God, God in heaven, can more be required to convict this defendant and remove him from his high place, and forever disqualify him from association with law-abiding men!"

Urges Verdict of Guilty

"Knowing full well, appreciating to the utmost the disgrace and degradation that must come upon this most unhappy man by your verdict of guilty, I still beg you not to think you will mitigate his punishment by a judgment of acquittal of the charges here proved. It will not be your action that will render him infamous for all the future. That future is already his before you speak."

Severely Flayed By Parker

Never since the impeachment trial of Gov. William Sulzer opened has he been subjected to such a severe verbal flaying as Judge Alton Parker administered in his argument for the board of managers today.

"Before this bar the defendant stands guilty of the offenses charged by the impeachment and proven by uncontroverted evidence," he said. "Before the bar of the court of public opinion this defendant stands condemned on the evidence here presented and on the further damning testimony of his shifty defenses and of his futile efforts to dodge by technicalities the trial of the issues before this high court. That same public opinion takes cognizance of the fact that the defendant here is suffering from such a severe attack of moral near-sightedness that even when directed by a myriad of scornful fingers he cannot discern the dishonest, criminal and dishonorable nature of the acts proven."

Falsify Testimony

"Even justice must see through its seven eyes something of the pathetic in the defendant's frantic efforts to cover the nakedness of his wrongdoing. Defiance, defense, justification, prevarication, denunciation of his accusers—attempts to suppress and falsify testimony and efforts to cast the blame elsewhere—each in turn has been stripped from his quaking flesh until he stands now naked before this court without a rag of his attempted vindication clinging to his deformed and mutilated manhood."

"Every disguise has been torn from his back, from the petticoat in which he trusted for safety to the armor of defiance in which he threatened to attack and expose a political leadership to which we have owed him suing for a merciful obliteration of his misdeeds and offering the bribe of submission."

"No act of his shows more perfectly the complete baseness of his character, unfitting him utterly for any public or private trust, than does his efforts to coerce the members of this court through channels which his warped intellect mistakenly thought held the power of coercion."

"Regardless of the origin of these charges, regardless of any personal intimation of discomfit, this court must, we feel certain, find on all the evidence that this defendant has been guilty of misconduct so gross as to necessitate his removal for the honor, peace and government of this community."

"And to this court we shall commit the decision of the case against William Sulzer securely confident that honor, safety and welfare of the Empire State are assured of the protection contemplated by the constitution in the creation of this high court."

"The causes for impeachment may be considered in three words—unfitness for office; the object of impeachment in four—security for the state."

Herrick For Defendant

Judge Herrick then began the final arguments in behalf of Governor Sulzer.

"Not a single great ruler in history," he said, "can be absolved by a judge who fixes his eye inexorably upon one or two unjustifiable acts. Bruce, the deliverer of Scotland; Moritz, the deliverer of Germany; William, the deliverer of Holland; the great deliverer of England, Cromwell; the father of his country, Henry IV. of France, Peter the Great of Russia, how would the best of them pass such a scrutiny?"

History takes wider views and the best tribunal for great political cases is the tribunal which anticipates the verdict of history. Reasonable and moderate men of all parties felt this in Clive's case. They could not pronounce him blameless but they would not abandon him to the low minded and rancorous pack who would run down and worry him to death."

"A man may be unfit in some respects. He may have committed indiscretions or worse in his private life and yet we are to judge of him of a public official by what he does in public office and in no other way."

Try Him On Charges

"Some of you are members of a powerful and imperious political organization that has kept the respondent in public life for years and has placed him where he now is in more than one respect. Differences have arisen between that organization and the respondent. Many of its members believe him to be ungrateful and disloyal. Who is right and who is wrong. I know not, whether the allegiance and loyalty that he owed to the state I know not, whatever the causes of these differences may be with that organization he is not bound to disregard them. He is not on trial for disloyalty. He is not on trial for ingratitude and you have taken a solemn oath to try him impartially upon the charges here brought against him and nothing else."
